House fight over rules reform set for next week

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Will they or won't they? The suspense over the adoption of reform rules for the Massachusetts House of Representatives lingers on as the debate, originally planned for Wednesday's opening session, was put off until next week.

Last week, Speaker of the House Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn) announced he was postponing any action on adoption of the Mon., Jan. 8, House rules until because he considered Wednesday's opening session of historical significance. The House would, instead, concentrate on the usual "household chores" after the swearing-in ceremony — seating arrangements, and electing clerks.

Traditionally, each party holds a caucus prior to the 11 a.m. swearing-in ceremony to choose a nominee for Speaker of the House. The House is then called to session, the representatives are sworn-in, rules are adopted and a Speaker is elected.

Until a decision is reached on the reform rules, which, among other changes, call for a secret ballot removal of vote for Speaker, and the appointive powers from the hands of the Speaker allowing the representatives themselves to vote on committee assignments and chairmen many representatives are facing a new kind of suspense.

In past years, representatives waited for a week or two after the Speaker was elected before their committee appointments were announced. They still have to wait this year, whether reform is adopted or not, but a bit of the unknown awaits them.

For the suspense isn't so much what freshmen representatives, like Cohen, submit a list to the Speaker in December requesting legislative committees they wish to be on. Cohen requested membership on either the Judiciary, Education, Public Service and Civil Service or Administration of Retirement Laws Committee; in most cases, freshmen representatives get seated on at least one of their preferred committees.

But, for incumbent representatives, especially chairmen, the adoption of new rules could mean an unexpected shake-up in their legislative lives. The Speaker chooses chairmen, and rarely removes them from their appointments explained Rep. David Mofenson (D-Newton).

Mofenson, who has served as chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs for four years, said he "believes" he will be reappointed to his seat this year by the Speaker. That is, if the Speaker does the appointing.

Mofenson, who supports some of the reforms, but not the whole package, feels the reform-backers have an insufficient number of votes to carry the changes through. But, if the reforms do pass, chairmen and their chairmanships would be reviewed and voted on by their colleagues.

Mofenson feels that opening committee membership and chairmen to House vote would jeopardize the more progressive, liberal representative. He believes the majority of the House membership is conservative and "coming from Newton, could put me in trouble."

However, those who favor the reforms say they will bring, like similar reforms in the U.S. House, a new, more democratic atmosphere to the Massachusetts House.

Three gas stations broken into by car going through windows

Three gasoline service stations in Newton Centre were broken into early Saturday morning when a car was driven through through the front windows, police report, and there was one armed robbery and one attempted armed robbery over the weekend.

The Quickmart at the Citgo Station, 1087 Beacon St., Newton Centre, was broken into by someone driving a car through the bay door, police discovered at 5 a.m. Saturday. The safe was opened and coins were scattered on the floor.

The Newton Centre Shell Station 387 Boylston St. was broken into in the same manner sometime between 4 and 4:30 a.m. Several windows were broken, and more than $50 in cash was missing.

The Old Colony Gas Station, 1170 Beacon St., Newton Centre, reported $57 in cash missing after the front plexiglass window was pushed in sometime before 4:30 a.m., police said.

Police reported on New Year's morning a man from Bull of 400 ough Park, Newtonville, was robbed at gunpoint in a Newton Corner parking lot. The man had fallen asleep in his car behind the Elks' Club, 447 Centre St., Newton Corner, and was awakened by two men at about 7 a.m.

One pointed a gun at him and he was forced to hand over his watch, a diamond ring, and his wallet with $400 cash in it.

Police searched for the black Ford sedan the men left in, but found no trace of it.

A Newton Corner juvenile was charged with attempted armed robbery following an incident at Park Street and Alba Circle, Newton Corner, at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

A man from Brackett Road, Newton, told police a teenager with a large stick threatened to hit him on the head unless he handed over his money. Suddenly the boy fled, and police found a boy fitting the description given by the victim on Peabody Street.

The 16-year-old Newton Corner boy was charged with attempted armed robbery, police said.

Police also arrested two teenagers on charges of breaking into the Zer-was School on Beethoven Avenue, Waban' early Saturday morning.

A 17-year-old boy and a 16-year-old boy, both from Newton, were charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime and possession of stolen property after they were spotted by police walking on Beacon Street with tape recorders in their hands at about 1:30 a.m.

Police later discovered that the goods were engraved with "Beethoven School," the old name for the school, and discovered a break there.

Police also found on the two suspects leather goods, pencils, pens, and a lighter.

Gold jewelry and 50 pairs of earrings worth more than $3500 were taken from a home on Dedham Street, Newton Centre, Sunday night, police said. Sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 12:50 a.m. New Year's Day, while the owner attended a party at the Charles River Country Club, his home was broken into through a side window. The missing jewelry included a bracelet with coins of the 1800s attached.

Coins and jewelry worth about $500 was taken sometime during a New Year's Eve party at a home on Water-ton Street, Newtonville, police said. Monday at 1:30 p.m. the owner discovered the jewelry was missing from an upstairs bedroom dresser.

Two windows were smashed in a side door of a house on Mandalay Road, Newton Centre, sometime Monday, police said, and two television sets and jewelry were missing.

Police also reported four other breaks over the weekend, but there was no record of what was taken.

Schur resigns as chairman

Ald. Susan Schur has resigned as chairman of the Legislation & Rules Committee of the Board of Aldermen. She will be succeeded by Ald. Ethel Sheehan, vice chairman of the committee.

Schur said this week, "I want to be able to use the time spent on the chairmanship for constituent service." She is the ward alderman from Ward 5.

The time required for a chairmanship, Schur said, involves working with department heads, preparing committee reports and general "housekeeping" duties. The time, she feels, would be better spent on handling constituents' requests and problems.

She has felt for some time, and proposed a rules change to that effect last year, that chairmanships of committees should be rotated every year instead of running through the two-year term of the Board.

Schur has been Ward 5 alderman since 1972.

Two Boston men charged with breaking into Our Lady's rectory

Police hope a rash of breaks in churches will cease after the arrest of two men on the property of Our Lady's Help of Christians Church Tuesday morning.

At 10 a.m. police received a call of an intruder in Our Lady's Rectory. Monsignor John McManmon reportedly confronted a man on the third floor who ran downstairs and out the side door.

Two persons saw the man enter the church through the rear door.

With the help of custodians, police searched the church while a funeral was going on.

Detectives Manley Kiley and Sgt. Gerald Lawrence found the suspect in a storage closet near the main entrance of the church and took him out at gunpoint, police said.

He was identified as James M. Sharpe, 26, of 120 Skylar St., Roxbury.

He was charged with breaking and entering in the daytime, larceny from a building, receiving stolen property, and possession of burglarious tools.

Police also charged him with breaking and entering and larceny in connection with an incident at St. Ignace Church in Chestnut Hill on Dec.

27, when over $1000 was taken.

Behind Our Lady's Church, Officer Edward Pendergast arrested a second suspect in a car, Jerry Works, 23, of 55 Faneuil St., Brighton, was charged with breaking and entering in the daytime, larceny from a building, and receiving stolen property.

Police said more than $300 was taken from the third floor of the rectory after a desk was pried open, and more than $400 was recovered from the pockets of the two suspects.

Sgt. Lawrence said there have been about six breaks recently into churches, and he hopes there will be fewer in the future following these arrests.

Sports dispute goes to binding arbitration

The Newton Teachers Association (NTA) and the School Committee are expected to enter binding arbitration soon to determine if elementary physical education teachers should receive more pay than they currently do for after-school sports.

NTA President Gregory Beard said Wednesday that his group will file to have an independent arbitrator decide the grievance after the School Committee turned down the teachers' request Dec. 18.

The 16 elementary physical education teachers are asking that they be paid as much as other teachers filling in at some elementary schools for the same after-school sports activities.

Regular teachers are paid up to $12.57 per afternoon session in addition to their regular pay, and physical education teachers receive up to $6.33 extra per session.

To make the pay scales equal would cost the School Committee about $9000, an NTA consultant told the Committee last month.

The after-school sports program started about 11 years ago when teachers volunteered to teach it.

School Committee Chairwoman Honora Kaplan made it clear at the hearing Dec. 11 that there are two separate pay scales in the contract for the regular teachers and physical education teachers, and any problems with the scales should have been worked out during contract negotiations.

Treasurer will serve as director of finance

Treasurer Theodore Scafidi was approved by two aldermanic committees Tuesday night to be Newton's director of Finance.

Theodore Scafidi

The position has not been filled since 1974.

The Administration & Planning and Finance committees voted to name Scafidi, despite Finance Chairman Edward Richmond's plea that the need for the job be reexamined first.

According to the city charter, the director of finance shall be either the comptroller or the treasurer. With the resignation of Comptroller Lawrence Marino, no choice between the two men is necessary, and no feelings will be hurt.

The director of finance is supposed to be the supervisor of both the treasurer's and the comptroller's office. No salary increase is written into the job. Scafidi is paid $25,000.

Robert Perruzzi, Marino's assistant, has been named acting comptroller while the Board of Aldermen finds a replacement for Marino.

According to the city charter, the comptroller and the treasurer are "elected" by the Board of Aldermen.

The Scafidi appointment will be voted on by the Board of Aldermen Jan. 8.

Committee approves mild control of nuclear shipments

Instead of a proposed total ban on transportation of nuclear material in the city limits of Newton, the aldermanic Public Safety & Transportation Committee Tuesday night passed 8-0 regulations governing the passage of radioactive material through Newton.

The ordinance will be voted on by the Board Jan. 8.

After months of debate and hearings, the committee decided that federal regulations will preempt any local ordinance conceived and therefore the best to be hoped for is local control over time and route of such shipments, with advance notification of shipments to the chief of police.

The short ordinance, written by Ald. Robert Sandman, says that before any large shipment of radioactive material, as defined by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, is transported over streets or highways passing through Newton, notice shall be given, 24 hours in advance, to the chief of police.

The notice shall include the quantity, type of material, packaging, degree of radioactivity, shipping route and time the shipment will be in Newton.

The ordinance does not say how shippers will be made aware of Newton's ordinance.

Presumably the police chief may change the time schedule and route if local conditions warrant.

Shipments are forbidden to leave state or interstate roads as they pass through Newton.

Antinuclear activist Louise Bruyn commented that the new ordinance accomplishes nothing more than a permit procedure would have. The permit procedure, with permits costing up to $500, had been considered and rejected by the committee.

Taxpayers' Association files bills on tax caps, civil service

Members of the Newton Taxpayers' Association have filed two bills with the incoming legislature to definitively allow municipalities to establish local tax limits or caps if they want to, and to review the effects of civil service and tenure operations in conjunction with collective bargaining in Massachusetts law and practice.

The local tax limit bill could resolve a current dispute between those who believe the home rule constitutional amendment of a few years ago eliminated that authority entirely and those who think the limitation power still remains. It would make it clear that cities and towns can establish such limits if they so desire, said Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., the association's executive director.

The labor study resolve has several aspects, Muther stated. The prime ones that concern us are the extent of increased costs and impaired efficiency resulting from the present situation where management not only must deal with collective bargaining agreements but also with civil service and tenure restrictions.

Opinions vary as to the effects of these combined provisions, but no one the Taxpayers' Association has contacted or read about doubts that costs are higher and efficiency is lower in varying degrees because of their joint operation, Muther concluded.

Heart club holds meeting

The Mended Hearts, Inc., Boston Chapter 20, will hold its regular monthly meeting on Sunday, January 7, 1979 at 2:00 p.m. at the Garden City Activity Center, American Legion Post 440, 295 California St., Newton. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Mended Hearts, Inc. is a national organization of persons who are faced with or who have had heart surgery, and others who are interested. Its with the approval of physicians and hospitals, visit pre-and post-surgery heart patients, giving them help and encouragement. Additional information can be obtained at the Mended Hearts office at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital: 732-5609.

Nominations sought for Court of Appeals judgeship

By appointment of the President, a panel of the U.S. Circuit Judge Nominating Commission has been constituted to consider prospective nominees to fill a vacant judgeship on the federal Court of Appeals in this circuit.

The panel must submit to the President by March 4 the names of not more than five persons deemed well qualified to be a U.S. Court of Appeals judge. Anyone may submit suggested nominees to the panel for consideration, and anyone may request that he or she be considered.

To be considered by the panel a person must be a member of the bar in good standing. Important factors in determining whether a person is well qualified are professional competence, extent and nature of legal experience, character, temperament, and health.

A proposed nominee should normally have 12 to 15 years of legal experience and be physically and mentally capable of sustained work on difficult intellectual problems, with the potential for rendering long and energetic service on the federal bench. Experience of particular relevance may have been acquired in these areas: (a) substantial appellate experience as a lawyer or judge; (b) substantial trial court experience as a lawyer or judge; (c) substantial federal law mastery as demonstrated by teaching or by professional association with public or private offices dealing extensively with federal law; (d) substantial legal writing with relationship to federal law; (e) substantial experience in judicial education or law reform activity of a highly professional nature, with some correlation to federal matters.

Generally, experience in at least two or three areas will be required. In cases of substantial and outstanding service as a federal or state judge, experience in one of these areas will be sufficient.

For this vacancy the panel will confine its consideration to persons from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Puerto Rico.

Names of proposed nominees should be sent in writing to the chairman of the panel, Florence R. Rubin, 1304 Centre St., Newton, MA 02159. Though not required, it will be helpful if reasons are given why the person suggested is well qualified for this judicial position.

Correction

Last week's summary of 1978 in the Newton Graphic contained an incorrect statement about last year's budget proposal by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink. Fink recommended a budget of $34.9 million which represented an increase of 3.9 percent over the previous year's budget, not 7.9 percent as stated in the story.

Commentary

Board starts year with big backlog of unfinished business

By ELIZABETH McKINNON of the Graphic staff

What did the 1978 Board of Aldermen do, anyway?

Facing the Board now are more than 125 docket items left over from 1978 to be considered and voted on, not to mention 25 items from 1977 and about three from 1976. There are even some from before that.

There will be some 900 new items to consider in 1979.

The latest "unfinished business" docket takes up 12 pages. The Board inherited one from the 1977 Board only five pages long.

Some of the old-timers on the Board explained the lack of action during the early part of this year as being due to a lack of cohesiveness on the part of Board members.

The largest number of new members the Board ever had at one time would take a while to sort themselves out, the veterans said, and soon the whole process would jell. But it never turned out that way.

Among the more important matters untouched by the Board have been components of the comprehensive plan, demanded so strongly by previous Boards. One of these was submitted in 1977, one in 1978.

The capital improvement program, an annual outline of how much money would be needed over the following five years to accomplish large-scale, high-cost improvements and acquisitions for the city, was never acted on completely by the 1977 Board, and so the Planning Department did not prepare a CIP last year. Its absence was scarcely if at all noted by the 1978 Board.

A number of land offers, important pieces of proposed legislation, a municipal sewer-use ordinance required by the federal government, license renewals, and nebulous "studies" approved in weak moments languish in unfinished business.

Much of the failure of this Board must be attributed to personalities of its members.

Where before, two or at the most three groups evolved among the 24 aldermen, now there seem to be 24 different points of view.

The number of committees was reduced with the new Board from 11 to seven in the interest of efficiency. But some chairmen have used their chairmanships not to expedite matters of the Board but to give themselves a forum, and have delayed beyond repair the business of their committees.

Some chairmen come unprepared to their committee meetings and use meeting time to find out what they should have been investigating before the meeting.

Full Board meetings are prolonged beyond endurance by aldermen who will not accept committee reports, even when they reflect the sentiments of a large majority of the committee members.

Distrust of committee work, coupled with a compulsion to speak on every issue, whether or not the speech adds new information, has resulted in costly delays and return of matters to committee, where the whole process begins again.

Board President Matthew Jefferson has made efforts to control work habits of the aldermen by tight restrictions on meetings during the recess of Board meetings. These meetings used to take up to an hour in the middle of a busy night.

But the endless, fruitless meetings and the attitude that the more words uttered, the wiser they will seem, are a habit difficult to break.

Editorial The year for King

The big question, as Governor Edward J. King prepared for the change of administrations at the State House Thursday is how close he can come to his $500 million tax rollback pledge during his five years in office.

A second source of speculation might be how many chiselers King's aides and agents can weed out of the state's welfare rolls and how much welfare fraud they can eliminate.

King's first two days in office this week will be devoted largely to the traditions and ceremonies associated with the inauguration of a new Governor. But by the start of his first full week as the head of the state government he will get down to the serious business of performing a job he worked so hard to get.

For the first weeks of his administration Governor-elect King will enjoy what political writers call the "honeymoon" of his administration. It will be the period he is allowed to adjust himself to his office and learn the ropes—a period during which he is nearly immune from criticism for any mistake he makes.

King will take the oath of office tomorrow in the chamber of the Massachusetts House of Representatives as the old cannon booms on Boston Common in observance of an ancient tradition.

Retiring Governor Michael S. Dukakis may walk alone down the State House steps to keep alive another custom that has come down through the years. Many of his friends and followers will be on hand to give him a farewell cheer and a round of applause.

Dukakis does not yet know what he will do as a private citizen and will not decide until he has done some careful thinking.

Nobody really knows what Edward J. King will do as governor in the months ahead or how close he will come to his promises during his term.

His first year as governor will be a make-it-or-break-it one for King. Many people will gain a lasting impression of him during that year, just as they did of Mike Dukakis in 1975.

Ed King will be a hard-working governor, just as he was a hard-working director of Massport.

Whether he will be able to make good his pledges on the $500 million rollback, no matter how hard he tries, will be the crucial question during his first year as Governor. Most scholars of government don't believe he can without curtailing essential services or curbing welfare assistance.

King himself is apparently having some doubts because he tried to temper his $500 million promise but did not attract too much attention in his attempt.

If King comes even close to a rollback during 1979 it will be an accomplishment of monumental proportions. If he fails to get within reasonable range of that figure, he will be the target of criticism from all sides.

Impact of 'Early Retirement' remains to be felt

By ALVIN MANDELL

In these days of tight dollars and shrinking job opportunities, Early Retirement Incentive Clauses (ERIC) are a hot negotiating item between teacher unions and school committees. Currently, about 39 communities have agreed to some form of ERIC's in contracts already signed.

Essentially, ERIC provides an incentive in the form of a sizable salary increase to those teachers who indicate in advance that they will elect to retire early. For example: a teacher at age 52 indicates a willingness to retire at 55. The ERIC then provides a sum of money in addition to the normal salary for that teacher.

In some contracts the additional money the first year is $3,000 to $4,000, the second year an additional $2,000 to $3,000 and the third year an additional $1,000 to $2,000 more. Thus, over a three-year period, the bonus for selecting early retirement can be as high as $14,000 to $20,000.

When this extra bonus is factored into the teacher's pension, it can amount to an additional annual sum of as much as $2,310 to $3,300 payable to that early retiree for an average expected life span of 20 years, representing a total increase of from $46,200 to $66,000 over the retirement span of the early retiree.

Some reasons given for negotiating ERICs are: to save a school committee's money by expediting the early retirement of the higher priced teachers who then may be replaced by younger, lower priced teachers, and to provide more jobs for young teachers. Presumably the young teachers will provide new blood to keep the schools vibrant.

Opponents of ERIC question the savings to local communities by pointing out that the pension costs are picked up in the state budget, which in fiscal 1979 provided over $120 million of taxpayers' money to keep the pension system solvent.

The time bomb in this issue is the cost of a pension system which is not self-supporting, but which requires additional budget funds of over $120 million a year in order to provide pension money for the approximately 17,000 retired teachers now in the system.

There are currently about 76,000 additional teachers contributing 5 to 7 percent of their salaries to this underfunded pension arrangement. The ticking in this time bomb is the potential for increasing the number of pensioners by encouraging teachers to retire early.

If three years from now an extra 10 percent of the 76,000 teachers decide to retire early, then an additional 7600 people will be added to the rolls of the present 17,000 which is an increase of 45 percent.

It is not my intent, in this article, to take sides in this issue but to point out the potential impact on the economy of the Commonwealth. What is required are answers to the following questions:

How many teachers of the 76,000 now contributing to the retirement system would be eligible for early retirement? When and at what rate could this retirement take place? What is the potential impact of ERIC upon the resources of the taxpayers in the Commonwealth? What is required to make the retirement system self-supporting? Is the latter requirement attainable within an acceptable time scale?

The requirement for answers should be supported not only by the Massachusetts Association of School Committees, but by the two other groups most directly concerned—the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) and the taxpayers of the Commonwealth.

The new governor will face horrendous problems. Newly negotiated ERICs will provide an additional problem. The new secretaries of Education and Administration and Finance will have a major role to play in keeping the Commonwealth solvent.

In a society where experience is rewarded, it does seem strange, however, that ERIC negotiations are proceeding against the mainstream of American policy which has recently made it possible to work beyond 65 years of age.

Does the shah matter to us?

WASHINGTON — In the day-to-day crisis reporting on the events in Iran there has been a tendency to overlook the larger questions concerning this situation, the kind of questions I recently heard a listener ask of a local radio talk-show host: Does it really matter if the shah is overthrown? So what if a pro-Soviet or an anti-U.S. regime does come to power in Iran?

Ian Grieg, deputy director of the London-based Foreign Affairs Research, thinks it does matter what happens in Iran. Calling the current state of affairs in that country "extremely critical," he says that what's happening there "clearly carries with it the risk of developments which could threaten the entire world balance of power and the economies of many different countries on a scale which could only be described as awe-inspiring, and which could dwarf other current events on the international scene almost into insignificance."

Grieg notes that not only is Iran itself a major supplier of oil to the United States, Western Europe, Japan, Israel and South Africa but, together with Oman, it controls the straits of Hormuz at the entrance to the Persian Gulf. Through these straits, at a rate of one every four minutes, giant tankers bring altogether 70 percent of Western Europe's imported oil, 90 percent of Japan's and a steadily increasing percentage of U.S. supplies which, by the 1980s, could reach a figure as high as 60 percent.

Grieg writes:

"In recent years, the Iranian government has also embarked upon a program of major expansion of its naval forces which, when completed, will make a very significant contribution to the maritime balance in an area in which the sole permanent Western naval presence consists of one squadron of three small American vessels.

"Security of oil supplies is, however, not the only factor that makes Iran of the greatest to the non-communist world. In common with other countries in the area, it has recently been giving discreet support to anti-Marxist forces in Oman and Africa and it is a major trading partner of a number of Western countries."

While there may be some doubt in the West as regards the strategic importance of Iran, there is no such division of opinion in the Soviet Union. The evidence is mounting that the various clandestine services under Soviet control have been working hard not just for months, but in some cases for years, to bring about the collapse of the pro-Western regime of the shah.

A study by Robert Moss for the Institute for the Study of Conflict — "The Campaign to Destabilize Iran" — states that there exists in Tehran a school of thought which believes that the current upheavals in Iran are due in some measure to rising Soviet anger at the pro-Western policy and actions of the shah, and perhaps in particular to the visit to the country last year of Chairman Hua of Communist China. Moss quotes a senior member of the Soviet Embassy staff in Tehran as saying: "We defeated the United States in Vietnam. We will not tolerate arrogance from an American puppet with which we share a common border."

Indeed, the Soviets do not appear to be tolerating such "arrogance." Moss describes Iran as having long been a major field of activity for agents of the Soviet intelligence services, both the KGB and the GRU. He points out that the presence of about 4,000 Soviet technicians of various kinds in the country, plus the presence of approximately 600 technicians from other East European countries, provides ample opportunity for such agents to find suitable cover.

During the past 15 years a considerable number of Soviet spies from the KGB and GRU have been expelled from Iran. In 1977, this problem was dramatically highlighted when Iran's deputy chief of army planning and logistics was arrested on charges of being a Soviet agent. He was tried and executed. It is believed that in the extremely sensitive position this individual held, he gained access to almost all of Iran's defense secrets with the exception of those relating to the air force, and this information was passed to his Soviet contacts.

In addition to the internal espionage being committed by Soviet spies in Iran, the communist takeover in near-by Afghanistan has also presented the KGB and GRU with new opportunities for recruitment. By November of last year an estimated 500,000 illegal Afghan immigrants were in Iran, their appearance and dialects in most cases being indistinguishable from those of Iranians in the eastern provinces of that country.

Robert Moss believes that the survival of a strong Iran under a government that is prepared if necessary to help in the defense of neighboring states against communist aggression must surely be "the linchpin of any realistic Western strategy for the containment of Soviet expansion in the area."

So how did the United States get in a position where we must stand by able to do nothing more than wring our hands while Iran is on the brink of a civil war which could bring a hostile government to power? In Ian Grieg's opinion:

"The fact that the West nowadays seems to be so often in the position of merely attempting to catch up with events, instead of trying to help shape them, is probably due in part to the damage done to Western intelligence services by the witch hunt against them by sections of the media. It is clearly damage that must be repaired at once if there is to be any hope for the emergence of a constructive Western strategy to meet the dangers of a steadily worsening international situation, now centered in the Persian Gulf region."

Excellent advice. Let's hope it's not too late to be followed.

Baron Hugo recalls the 'good old days'

Back in the days of the big bands, do you know who had the biggest?

Why, it was a band led by Boston's own Baron Hugo.

And not only was it the biggest, it was also one of the best.

The Baron Hugo Band featured 28 pieces, a boy singer and a girl vocalist, plus a singing boy-girl quintet. The band was so good it was the "house" band at the famed Totem Pole Ballroom in Auburn-dale for nine years.

Baron is of Finnish descent. His real name is Hugo Englebert Lira. He was born and raised in Quincy, but lives now in Milton. He was seen so often leading a band, many people tend to forget he was a drummer—and a darn good one—as well as a crack arranger. The Baron's theme song, appropriately, was "Totem Tom Tom," but the song he received the most requests for over the years was his version of "Autumn Nocturn" done in Charlie Spivak's "Sweetest Trumpet in the World" style.

For years Hugo played at Mrs. Ferguson's tea parties in Brookline, but in 1939 when the big band craze caught on, he went from tea dances to big dances. As Hugo Lira, however, he and his orchestra met with only minimal success. But one day when he was signing a contract to play at the Longwood Towers, he found his name had been changed.

Hugo Lira became "Baron Hugo" because the booker had been listening to comedian Baron Munchausen the evening before on the radio and he thought "Baron" and "Hugo" when paired together had a nice ring to it.

—O—
Recently, Baron Hugo came to my house for a little Danish and Finnish and reminisce a bit for this column. He passed inspection by my new Belgian Shepherd puppy and all went well until I was sipping coffee, forgot myself and yelled:

"Down, Baron, down!"

Well Baron the drummer, didn't know whether to sit or go blind. He leaped from the table and looked at me as if I was Son of Sam.

"Hold it, hold it," I quickly told the musician. "I was talking to the dog. His name is Baron, too."

That didn't seem to pacify anything, until I hastily explained, "No, the dog isn't named after you. He's called Baron after my favorite brew, Budweiser. Baron Von Budweiser. His father was Baron Von Schlitz and... oh, hell with it."

After we mopped up the spilled coffee, Baron Hugo continued:

Baron Hugo and His Orchestra at the Totem Pole

His big break came on Christmas night in 1942, but it didn't look like much of a break at the time. That was the night that he opened at the Totem Pole and business was so bad, owner Roy Gill told Hugo he was going to close the mammoth dance hall for the duration of World War II.

Hugo prevailed upon him to give it one more try and Baron's one-nighter turned into a stay that lasted nine years. I remember anytime and every time I came home on liberty or leave it was off to the Totem Pole.

During his stay at Norumbega Park, Baron discovered the Sansone Sisters of Norwood, one of the finest groups of singing sisters to ever grace the stage. But their designs were on marriage, not on show business, and in one fell swoop each of the three sisters announced their retirement in 1944.

The Sansones were replaced by the Twinaires, two boy twins and two girl twins. Not only were the boys and girls not related, they hated each other and as Baron recalls it "When they weren't singing, they were plotting how to embarrass the others."

Another member of the Baron Hugo aggregation at The Pole was Don Costa, a fine arranger who went from the Baron to Vaughn Monroe to Frank Sinatra.

Baron Hugo not only holds the record for a having the biggest of the big bands, he also might be the man who started more romances than any other musician in New England.

That's because Baron Hugo didn't confine his sweet swing to the Totem but also played at the old RKO Boston Theatre in downtown Boston, at moonlight cruises, social and club dances and at scores of high school and college proms and weddings. Last Sunday morning Baron Hugo recalled one of the most enjoyable weddings at which he says he ever played. It was at the wedding of Barbara Graham to Lawrence L. Cameron, both of Dorchester. The bride was a law student and the groom a police officer in Jamaica Plain's District 13.

The father of the groom, Duncan Cameron, played a fine fiddle and so did his friend, a genial Irishman named Paddy Cronin, who made the strings on his instrument literally sing.

During the wedding reception the father of the bride asked Baron Hugo if he'd mind if somewhere along the line Duncan and Paddy played fiddle. Baron didn't; they did.

"They were so good" the Baron recalls, "I don't think anyone would have minded if the band went home right there and then."

As a footnote to the occasion Baron points out the groom is now Judge Lawrence L. Cameron, presiding justice of South Boston District Court, and the bride is the city's chief assessor.

How about the Baron?

He's still on the bandstand, playing the tunes of yesterday and today, the wonderful Baron Hugo way.

Conservators against Carabetta

To the Editor:

The Newton Conservators voted unanimously at its Nov. 28, 1978 board meeting to oppose the petition of Carabetta Enterprises to rezone the Chestnut Hill Country Club (CHCC) land from Residence B to Residence F.

Since 1974 our policy has been that Newton's golf courses "...are priceless assets for the enjoyment of today's and tomorrow's residents of the city and this use is their highest priority...They are an amenity we cannot afford to lose." We believe that the construction of two 12-story towers would substantially change the character of this smallest of the private golf courses in the densely built up areas of Newton and Brighton.

Looking closely at the CHCC land, we see that it is an open and unified parcel consisting of a stream valley surrounded on three sides by hills, any point of which can be seen from almost all other points. It would be impossible to "hide" two 12-story towers on this land without causing serious visual and noise impacts.

The necessary road construction would further disrupt the view and cut off the pond and surrounding areas. Attempts by the developer to remove the towers from their previously proposed position in the middle of the land has created two more problems. First, the towers would dominate the view of the nearby Boston residents, and second, the steep sledding hill, perhaps the area of the land most heavily used by the public in winter, would be eliminated.

Furthermore, when we step back and take a citywide view, we are concerned that such a major increase in density on a parcel of attractive open land would set an unfortunate precedent for the other golf courses in the near future. We oppose this piecemeal planning that proceeds exclusively at the initiative of the land owner and the developer.

There are many other options for accommodating Newton's need for public access to open space and for varied housing types. These should be explored in the city's comprehensive planning process which is underway but by no means complete.

Our position is best summed up in a statement by Lincoln land use planner, Robert Lemire, at our Jan. 26, 1978, public meeting on open space planning for Newton.

He said, "Newton already is a planned development. Further building on major parcels of open space is, in effect, building in your back yard."

This means to us that by pursuing every real or imagined dollar saving on the tax rate we can destroy Newton's aesthetic values and thereby a portion of our property values, as well as the "intangible" values of open space.

Lemire went on to recommend that we encourage housing and commercial investment in our established village centers. It is needed there and would strengthen the almost unique historically decentralized structure of Newton. The idea is not new; it has been proposed by Ald. Ed Richmond and others and deserves to be considered in opposition to the "fill in the open spaces because they are there" approach that has characterized urban sprawl in so many places.

John S. Bliss, president

Houghton Gardens

To the Editor:

The Dec. 28, 1978, issue of the Newton Graphic printed the following sentence in the paper's article entitled Year in Review: "The Conservation Commission reversed a previous decision and passed a policy allowing weddings to be held in Houghton Gardens in Chestnut Hill."

No such policy has been passed at any time by the Conservation Commission as may be seen by a reading of the Rules and Regulations as filed with the City Clerk for the Webster Conservation Area of which the Houghton Garden Section is a part.

Following a complaint about a wedding having taken place in Houghton Garden on May 28, 1978, without notice to the Conservation Commission, the Commissioners discussed the matter in meeting of June 22, 1978. They concluded that no specific amendment to the regulations to prohibit weddings in the Webster Conservation Area is necessary at the present time because the existing Regulations against destruction of vegetation are adequate to cover whatever situations may arise.

Conservation lands are being purchased by the City of Newton to protect them as natural resources and man's activities in these lands should be compatible with the enjoyment and observation of the natural environment and should not be destructive of the plants, birds, and animals found there.

The trail system in the Webster Conservation Area is maintained to give the public access to observe and enjoy the area and to use the trails for hiking, jogging, cross-country skiing, rock-climbing, i.e., activities which are not destructive of the woods bordering the trails. This does not prohibit persons from wandering off the trails to explore as they choose.

Complementing the conservation lands are Newton's park and recreation lands which provide an outdoor setting for man's recreational activities, but which were not acquired primarily for the purpose of protecting the lands as natural resources.

Conservation Commission

Fine policework

To the Editor:

This is to let you know what a fine job two Newton police officers did Thursday, Dec. 21, 1978.

Officers Robert Fitzgerald and Richard Murphy demonstrated genuine concern and caring in their handling of a confused person that they brought to Newton-Wellesley Hospital Emergency that morning.

As a member of the Psychiatric Emergency Team I was called to see the individual. The officers were willing and available to help and it was through their resourcefulness and efforts that we were able to work out the most beneficial care plan for that person.

They were at all times gentle and considerate and conducted themselves in an exemplary manner that does credit to themselves and to the department.

Thanking Foley

To the Editor:

I want to thank Building Department Inspector Paul Foley on behalf of the King Chin family for the help he gave them after they were made homeless as a result of a fire in their home.

He helped keep the family together over the Christmas holidays by working with a trailer dealer so that a trailer could be installed adjacent to their home in compliance with the law.

In addition, he and Fire Department Capt. Joseph Fitzsimmons reviewed the trailer's gas installation and ordered changes that greatly enhanced its safety.

Newton residents may claim undeliverable state tax refunds

The Massachusetts Department of Revenue is trying to locate Newton taxpayers whose 1977 income tax refunds were returned because the post office was unable to locate them at the addresses listed on their returns.

Those whose names are listed below should complete State Tax Form M-3911 and return it to the Collections Bureau, Room 300, Saltonstall Office Building, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02204.

Copies of the form can be obtained by calling in person or writing to the Bureau or at any of the Department's nine District Offices. Commissioner Kane said that any taxpayer in this group desiring additional information or assistance may write to or visit the department's headquarters in Boston. A special telephone listing (727-4459) also is available to provide answers to questions these taxpayers may have.

Storm drains

To the Editor:

We have often been asked in the dead of winter to clear our storm drains so that rain or melt water can be dispersed.

Usually, we can't find the drain, which is somewhere between our front walk and the driveway; and I've spent many a chilly hour poking around in ice and snow.

There's still time now to find that storm drain, clear it of debris, and measure to its center from the curb and from the nearest fixed object. Then we'll know where to find it when the time comes.

Countryside special ed classes need new home

Parents of special needs children at Countryside School are dissatisfied with the School Department's slowness in deciding where their children will be placed after Emerson students move in Sept. 6.

Lucille Chansky and Carol Beard, parents of special needs students, recently asked the School Committee to establish a search committee to find space for the four classes of special needs students at Countryside.

Ms. Beard noted that special needs classes have been affected by every school closing — Memorial, Hamilton, and Emerson.

"Is it then surprising that parents are wondering if special needs (students) are but one step ahead of every closing?" she asked.

Mrs. Beard addressed the School Committee on Dec. 18, and this Wednesday Director of Special Education John Cullinane said there will be a committee set up to look for space.

Cullinane said Director of Research and Planning Vincent Silluzzio is taking an inventory of classroom space in the city that he expects will be finished in February.

A committee of parents, including many of the ones who recommended the Burr School for the Hamilton special needs children, will be formed to make a recommendation in the spring about where the Countryside classes should go.

One self-contained class of special needs children was moved over last summer from the Countryside to Oak Hill School, Cullinane said.

Now at Countryside there are two classes of multiply handicapped children, one class of special needs children, and a preschool program which was planned to be at Countryside for one year only, Cullinane said.

Mrs. Chansky suggested the classes of multiply handicapped children could be moved to Newton North High School where they would have more access to the swimming pool for physical therapy and recreation.

Both parents urged the School Committee to consider special needs students along with other all other children when deciding on school closings.

"The relocation of all the children should be planned for and determined before a final decision is made," Mrs. Beard said.

Peabody sold for conversion

The old Peabody School on Oak Hill is in process of being sold to developer Edward Leventhal for $425,000, according to Mayor Theodore Mann Wednesday.

The Board of Aldermen approved the sale for conversion to 22 condominiums on Dec. 4 at a minimum price of $400,000. The mayor negotiated the price with Leventhal.

Architects Jung-Brannen are associated with Leventhal in the project.

Leventhal will retain ownership of two of the condominiums, which he has said will cost an average of $90,000 each, for lease to the Housing Services Department for its subsidized housing program for low-income families.

No 'shots,' no school for 114

Principals of Newton North and South schools turned away 114 students this week because of their failure to produce proof of immunizations or parental permission for school nurses to administer them.

As of Wednesday, Newton North sent 68 students home; Newton South turned away 46 on Tuesday, and Principal Ernest VanB. Seasholes said Thursday that some of those undoubtedly had complied with requirements since Tuesday.

All students who have missed time in school because of the refusal to comply with immunization requirements — either failure to be immunized or failure to show proof of immunization — will be expected to make up missed work.

Seasholes said he had not figured out what to call the absences. "You can't suspend a kid and then penalize him for the missed days," he said.

The crackdown on immunizations was initiated by the state Department of Public Health.

Parents and students have been notified several times by the School Department beginning in October.

Plastic menorahs are fire hazard

Several Newton-area retailers sold a molded, clear plastic Menorah over the holiday season that may be a serious fire hazard.

Michael Shor of - ChandlerLevy Hardware in Newton Centre, reported that three of the $35 plastic Menorahs they sold over the holidays, have been returned after the heat of the candles melted the plastic and started it on fire.

The Menorah, manufactured by Grainware Co. of Chicago, if bought at Chandler-Levy, can be returned for a full refund. If you bought one Chandler-Levy at another store, suggests you contact the retailer as soon as possible.

Drinan, Backman propose specific actions to counter oil price increase

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Last week's announced 14 percent increase in imported oil prices by the OPEC countries prompted two Newton legislators to call on the President and the Congress to rescue the American economy.

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton-Brookline) and State Sen. Jack Backman both cited the inflationary consequences of the price increase, and proposed steps to deal with it.

Drinan said that the OPEC increase will cost New Englanders at least $312 million in higher fuel bills next year. He praised the Carter Administration for postponing the planned 1979 phase-out of oil price controls, saying that any move to decontrol domestic oil prices next year would have "a devastating inflationary effect on the American economy."

Immediate decontrol of oil prices would, according to Drinan, cost New England at least $700 million per year above and beyond last week's OPEC increase. In efforts to reduce American oil demand without the adverse economic effects of price decontrol, the Newton lawmaker has proposed three legislative actions designed to accomplish this end.

Sen. Backman, who labeled the recent OPEC oil price increase the possible "final straw which breaks our economy's back," called for three specific Presidential initiatives to deal with the increases. "Without a firm and effective response," said Backman, "the Administration's plans to bring inflation under control without increasing unemployment cannot succeed."

In a letter to the President and leaders of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation, Backman said the first step in any plan by the Administration should be a complete evaluation of all oil resources and reserves in the country.

Drinan wants legislation providing financial and technical assistance for industries using innovative technology to reduce their energy consumption; low-interest loans for weatherization and other energy conservation investments by individuals and small businesses; and the combination of a greater federal commitment to mass transit with a crackdown on gas-guzzling automobiles.

The Congressman cited similar investments in West Germany and Japan and other industrialized countries that energy use 40 percent less per capita than the United States while maintaining a comparable standard of living.

Backman also asked for an investigation of any possible interconnections between multi-national oil companies and OPEC to discover what price increases are justified by increased labor and material costs, and what price increases are artificial, merely representing additional company profits.

As a final step, Backman urged comprehensive controls on wages, prices, rents and interest as "the only way to assure that burdens on consumers and government do not become unbearable."

Mideast policy draws wrath of local legislators

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Unhappy with the Administration's Mideast policy in recent weeks, four Newton lawmakers aimed sharp criticism directly at President Carter last week.

Newton Democrats Rep. Robert F. Drinan, State and State Reps. Sen. Jack Backman, David Mofenson and David Cohen criticized President Carter for what they called his "tilted" and "one-sided" policy favoring Egypt over Israel.

In a letter to the President signed by Backman, Mofenson, Cohen and three other state representatives, the six legislators charged the President's "one-sided criticism of Israel" as aiding a further division between Israel and Egypt, as well as "driving a wedge between the long-standing support and respect Israel and the United States have held for each other."

Similarly, in a statement released from his Washington office, Drinan criticized President Carter for "placing undue pressure on the Israeli government to accept significant new Egyptian demands."

All four legislators expressed the opinion that recent new demands by President Sadat, demands not agreed upon at the Camp David summit, are supplanting the original Camp David agreements. They feel that Egyptian-Arab relations are now foremost in the Administration's mind.

"President Sadat is now insisting upon new treaty clauses which may undo both the spirit and the letter of the Camp David framework," said Drinan. He said he was particularly distressed that the White House is backing major modifications sought by Sadat, citing Egyptian efforts to deflate the importance of an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty as compared to Egyptian defense pacts with other Arab nations.

Cohen, Mofenson and Backman's letter, written at the request of members of the Jewish community, expressed concerns similar to Drinan's.

"We believe Israel has always been ready to sign a peace treaty with Egypt based on the Camp David agreements, and continues to be prepared to do so," the letter stated. "Your (President Carter's) now obvious favoritism toward Egypt," the legislators continued, "has done nothing more than raise Arab hopes that what they have been unwilling to do at the peace table will be forced upon Israel by your Administration."

In their closing remarks, the six state legislators urged the President to return the country to its role of mediator and help Israel and Egypt reach final agreements. Drinan, on the other hand, ended his statement warning that if the Carter Administration maintains its present one-sided approach to the treaty negotiations, "the prospects for peace may be harmed immeasurably."

working conditions. Tsongas gave his support.

School Committeewoman Nancy Mann asked about Tsongas' stance on the Kennedy health insurance plan. Tsongas said he cosponsored it four years ago in the House, and supports the cost containment measures being sought.

But Tsongas warned, "This is not the era for new programs" with a downswing in congressional spending predicted.

In trying to reach a balance between spending money for defense and social programs, Tsongas opposed the B-1 bomber, but supports increasing the weaponry for troops in Europe. He feels spending money on civil defense in preparation for a nuclear war is "worthless."

In his first public forum since being elected, Tsongas spoke from the floor of the auditorium for about an hour and a half, and said he hopes to be in Newton every other year as he plans to have 40 "town meetings" across the state each year. The senator will be sworn in Jan. 15.

$18M in conservation grants marked for schools, hospitals

The Massachusetts Energy Office has met with some 50 representatives from hospital and school organizations throughout the state to begin implementation of an $18 million federal energy conservation grant program.

The program, which was contained in the National Energy Act (NEA) passed last fall, will appropriate money on a 50-50 matching basis over the next two years. Funds for energy audits will be available by September.

The grants will assist hospitals and schools in insulating their buildings and analyzing projects to save hundreds of barrels of oil.

"It is imperative that the state begin working on this program to ensure we get the grant money before the end of the fiscal year," said Henry Lee, the director of the Energy Office.

Those institutions which will be eligible for the grant money include the following:

- Public and nonprofit hospitals, both general and special purpose.
- Hospital-related facilities such as laboratories and outpatient buildings, nurses' homes, and training centers.

- Public and nonprofit schools.
- Accredited institutions of higher learning.

— School related facilities such as classrooms, laboratories, dormitories, and athletic buildings. — Local government buildings. — Public and nonprofit public care institutions including chronic disease hospitals, public health centers, and residential child care centers.

The Energy Office is required by the Department of Energy (DOE) to submit a state plan by May or June for the implementation of the program. The plan, developed with the help of advisory committees, will set forth priorities for funding, matching requirements, and a specific implementation program.

The DOE will have final approval over all the Energy Office grants.

Stephen Cohen of Newton, news director at Boston's CBS affiliate, WNAC-TV, received an Emmy Award for the Year's Outstanding News Program last month. Cohen announced this week he was leaving Channel 7 on Jan. 15, and taking a similar job at the CBS affiliate station in New York.

Keep out of dark

With winter officially here, and the storm season just around the corner, Boston Edison is offering tips to help consumers guard against problems caused by snow, ice, cold weather, and power failures.

If your lights go out, first check your fuel box or circuit breaker. If they seem okay, check your neighborhood to see if you're the only one without power. If you are, be sure to look at the wire connected to your house, because it may have been knocked down by wind, ice or tree limbs.

If the wire is down, don't go near it. Call the Edison Company immediately.

If the whole neighborhood is without power, it means the problem is probably on Boston Edison's end. Chances are good that the company already knows about it from automatic signals, but to be sure, call the local office. The number is listed in the white pages of your local telephone directory.

When the whole neighborhood is out of power, turn your major appliances off. Leaving them on might cause a sudden surge of demand when the power returns, and that can delay the return of power. Leave just one small light on, so you'll know when the power has been restored.

Keep candles and matches, a flashlight and a transistor radio handy. If the storm is a major one, stay tuned to your favorite station. Boston Edison gives regular progress reports to all stations.

Finally, if the storm creates an emergency situation, and Boston Edison has you publicly announced that will be out of power for a long time, stay tuned to your radio for tips on preserving heat in the house.

Newspaper logs: You can help in the energy crisis by burning newspaper logs in the fireplace. Environmentalists will tell you that ordinary newspapers converted into logs burn as cleanly and pound for pound give the same amount of heat as wood. With just a half an hour of labor any one can provide himself with three or four hours of comfortable fireplace fire.

Different people have different ways to roll the logs. Here's how one reader does it: Take papers and fold them into sections one half page size (about 12x15 inches) and one half inch thick or less. Soak them in a tub of water and detergent overnight. While they are still wet, roll the sections individually on a one inch rod and squeeze out the excess water while smoothing the surface edges. Slide the rolls off the rod and stand them on end to dry, tipping the roll slightly to allow air to circulate the logs.

The "logs" should be about 12 inches long and two to four inches in diameter. They are ready to use when completely dry. Some people roll the logs dry and like them.

Soaking them in water helps to burn them longer and hold together in the fireplace. Unsoaked logs tend to fall apart as soon as their ties burn. They can be soaked before or after they are rolled. Of course, you use them when they are dry. A tablespoon of detergent will minimize the fly ash. A wheelbarrow or a laundry tub is good for soaking the papers.

Newspaper logs can be treated so that they will burn with different colors, as you do with pine combs. Copper sulfate gives off green flames; calcium chloride, orange; copper chloride, blue; lithium chloride, carmine and potassium chloride, purple. These solutions should be made outdoors and only in wooden pails or earthen crocks. The ratio is one pound of the chemical to a gallon of water. If you want many colors, have many pails, or start fresh with each chemical. Always wear rubber gloves.

Don't worry about newspaper logs releasing lead into the air. Printer's ink has little if any lead in it. What little lead that's found naturally in wood goes up the chimney and not into your room, so don't worry about it. Over 98 percent of the lead in our atmosphere is said to come from automobiles and industrial. Not only are newspapers about the same as wood as an energy, but what other fuel is delivered to your doorstep each day?

Green Thumb Clinic: "My plants have a sooty blackish substance on the leaves but I can't find any insects. What causes this?"

Answer: Chances are you have scales, an innocent-looking insect which secretes a sticky substance which in turn attracts spores of a fungus. What you see is sooty blotch. Stickiness can also be caused by aphids, mealybugs and white flies, all sucking insects. Wash soapy water, and use a sponge leaves off with or soft tooth brush to dislodge the scales.

Carl Struzziery honored

On Dec. 8, a bridge dedication ceremony was held at the new M.D.C. bridge spanning Mother's Brook in Hyde Park. The bridge is named the Calvin Struzziery Bridge.

M.D.C. Commission Secretary, Joseph Moran; Master of Ceremonies Edward P. McSweeney, M.D.C. retired; and Rep. Paul Feeney spoke of the 40 years dedicated service Struzziery enjoyed with the M.D.C. Parks Department. Following the dedication ceremony, family, relatives and friends gathered at the V.F.W. Post in Dedham to extend their congratulations to Cal. Struzziery left his native Italy in 1908, when he was 17 years old, to come to America. He became actively involved in World War I and was part of the 58th infantry, Company L, 4th Division. He was in action in the two major battles in France, the Meuse Argonne Forest and the Chateau Thiery. It was during this "fighting for freedom" that Cal was disabled and was awarded the "Purple Heart" medal for brave and meritorious action under fire.

Struzziery graduated from the Franklin Union Institute of Engineering, with added engineering and construction courses at Wentworth Institute. He resides in Dedham with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Gladden.

Charlotte Thornbury, chairman of the nominating committee, presented a slate which also included first vice president Lalie Uhlmann; second vice president Evalene Budge; recording secretary Gertrude Smith; corresponding secretary Esther Hahn; treasurer Charlotte Thornbury; auditor Isabelle Savides; program chairman Marjorie Heiser; publicity chairman Maudyeva Campbell; ward directors Martha Bell, Margaret Tennant, Flora Ellington and Josephine DiCarlo.

Maudyeva Campbell, first vice president of the Massachusetts Federation of Republican Women, installed the new executive board.

Deborah J. Martin has been named personnel-marketing officer for the main office of West Newton Savings Bank.

Births

A son, Jonathan Samuel, was born to Dr. and Mrs. William E. Brodtkin (Joyce Wasserman formerly of Newton) on Dec. 15 at Leominster Memorial Hospital. Grandparents are Mrs. Marian Wasserman of Newton and the late Mr. Edward D. Wasserman, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brodtkin of Syosset, N.Y.

A daughter, Michelle, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tsay of Newton on Dec. 18 at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Jewish Community Center offers exercise classes

The Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center, 50 Sutherland Rd., Brookline, is offering a new series of adult courses.

A 10-week spot reducing and slenderizing course for adult women starts Monday evening Jan. 8, 1979. This course will continue for 10 consecutive Monday evenings. The supervised slenderizing class will be given from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. supervised by Charles Glovin. This course also includes the use of our well equipped exercise room plus steam room and sauna.

Tennis instruction for men and women is also available Monday evening for beginners and those who want to improve their game. The course will run for 10 consecutive Monday evenings starting Mon., Jan. 8, 1979 — beginners from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. and advanced beginners from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Andy Yassinof, P.T.A. instructor will teach the classes.

Hatha Yoga is also offered Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Wednesday mornings from 9 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. Course will start the week of Jan. 8, 1979 and will continue for 10 consecutive weeks. Hatha Yoga helps firm, tone and relax muscles.

Classes are co-ed. For further information for the above courses call the Center 734-0800.

Mt. Ida offers paralegal degree studies

The only two-year, associate degree paralegal program in Massachusetts is being offered by Mount Ida Junior College beginning the 1979-80 academic year.

Designed to meet the guidelines of the American Bar Association, Mount Ida's Paralegal Studies Program will prepare students for employment in law firms and legal offices of corporations, management consulting firms, health care facilities, real estate and insurance companies.

Three-credit Paralegal Studies courses at Mount Ida include Introduction to Introduction to Legal Practices; Probability and Statistics; Real Estate Law; Wills, Estates, Trusts; and Legal Research Techniques.

The associate in arts degree (A.A.) curriculum also comprises liberal arts courses and a summer externship. The externship provides the student with initial working experience in the field. The combination of liberal arts and paralegal courses will prepare students interested in transferring to and in further academic training for careers in law, real estate, business, industry, and government agencies.

Further information on Mount Ida's Paralegal Studies Program may be obtained by calling the Admissions Office at 969-7000.

Established in 1899, Mount Ida is a fully accredited two-year college granting the A.A. and A.S. degrees.

Former Governor Michael Dukakis was the recipient of the first annual Dion J. Archon Award for public service, presented by the Political Science Association of Suffolk University. The award was named for Dion Archon of West Newton (right), former chairman of the Suffolk Government and Economics Department. With the two was Denis G. Dunn (left), secretary of the Political Science Association.

Traveling camp for teens, cross-country adventure

The Sharon Travel Camp, now in its seventh year, announced that registration for its cross-country teen program for the summer of 1979 is now in progress.

An exciting and different six-week experience for teenage boys and girls, the Sharon Travel Camp combines elements of a camping program with travel and exploration of major places of interest across the country. From Canada to California, from the Old West to Mexico enjoy natural beauty and fun-filled activities!

All campgrounds have excellent facilities and were chosen to provide the comfort of civilization, while offering the beauty of outdoor camping. Past campers have enjoyed the most fantastic summer of their lives. Campers travel on an ultra-modern, air-conditioned bus driven by a professional bus driver. The entire trip will be under the personal supervision of Warren and Dottie Kline, who are licensed travel brokers, assisted by a registered nurse and an outstanding counselor staff.

Kline, who has his masters degree in education, has taught high school science and mathematics for over 20 years, and is presently teaching mathematics at Sharon High School. He has many years of experience as a camp director. Mrs. Kline has had extensive teaching experience on a part-time basis through the junior high school level, in addition to her camping background.

Early registration is recommended as space is limited. For further information write 23 Lyndon Road, Sharon, or call 1-784-2084.

YMCA has wide range of fitness programs

If a sound body goes with a healthy mind, you can become more neurologically nimble this winter at the Family YMCA in Newton.

Starting Jan. 8, the Y will offer a series of physical conditioning programs to tone up your body. Registration for Y and non-Y members is now open for all sessions at the Newton Corner building.

Housewives and wage earners working an off-shift will be interested in the morning advanced exercise classes for adults in good to excellent physical condition. The classes will also be offered 7-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

If you have not participated in a structured exercise program for the past year or more, the basic body conditioning course will teach you the proper way to use your muscles. There will also be an adult beginners fitness class Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 7 a.m. designed to help enrollees regain vitality and stamina.

For the more strenuous minded, David Castoldi will return to teach Oriental fighting arts including judo, jujitsu, karate and Chinese hand and leg maneuvers. The course is open to anyone over age 10. Classes are at 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. In addition, on Saturday mornings there will be a special boys judo instructional program.

Preschool youngsters also will receive attention. Swim classes are divided into small groups based on ability — with instruction geared to each child's level. In the aquatic programs, youth classes will be held weekly with enrollees divided into skill levels such as polliwog (beginner), minnow (advanced beginner) fish, flying fish and shark.

Other aquatic programs include an adult swimmer's class Tuesday and Thursday mornings during which exercises are performed in the swimming pool while accompanied by music. The goal — good therapy for aching muscles. You need not be a swimmer to enroll.

Proficient swimmers can certify as YMCA scuba divers during the 32-hour, Monday and Thursday night course. All equipment is provided except during ocean dives. The qualifying swimming test will be held Jan. 8.

Complete details on the winter program are in the 1979 winter schedule of activities which can be obtained at the YMCA, 276 Church St., Newton Corner, or by phoning 244-6050.

Red Cross teaches advanced first aid

The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will offer an advanced first aid and emergency care course at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, beginning Thursday, Jan. 11, 9 a.m. to noon.

A charge of $3 will be made for the text and supplies. No prior first aid training is required for this course, but participants must be at least 15 years of age.

The instructors for the course will be Philip H. Dana and Marie Mosca.

Preregistration is mandatory, and may be accomplished by calling the Chapter House at 527-6000.

CPR classes offered by Health Dept.

The Newton Health Department has set up a schedule of CPR classes for January and February.

The 4-hour CPR Heart Saver Courses will be offered on Jan. 23, Feb. 6 and Feb. 20 from 6-10 p.m. A 9-hour Basic Life Support class will take place on three consecutive Thursdays, Jan. 11, 18 and 25 from 7-10 p.m.

One 8-hour CPR instructor level course will be given on two nights, Feb. 8 and 15 from 6-10 p.m. For the latter course a Basic Life Support card is a prerequisite.

All courses are held at Newton City Hall. For further information please contact Jane Roth at the Newton Health Department, 552-7058.

Horses more profitable than stocks

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Joseph E. Johnson, an attorney and onetime public official in Lexington, spends his time these days managing thoroughbred horses owned in many cases by people interested in beating inflation.

The 48-year-old Johnson — who owns an 800-acre farm on a picturesque country road in the heart of Kentucky's Bluegrass region — says such an investment is far more profitable than the stock market.

"In the last 15 years if you invested in the stock market you'd be even," Johnson said between meetings with his clients at his sprawling horse farm. "But if you invested 10 years ago in good blood stock you'd probably make four or five times (your investment)."

The Kentucky Horse Center operated by Johnson is just down the road from some of the world's most famous thoroughbred farms but Johnson says owning a horse need not be a sport — or investment — reserved for the likes of the Whitneys or Telly Savalas. One reason is the increasing trend toward joint ownership of expensive horses — some by scores of investors.

"Horses have stayed ahead of inflation," says Johnson, whose farm will breed, train and race a horse for a flat fee.

Inflation also has sparked greater interest in Kentucky horses among foreign investors. Daryl Thurman, who keeps track of such things with the state Commerce Department, said the eroding value of the dollar apparently prompted the more than 30 percent increase in foreign sales this year at Lexington's Keeneland track.

The horses sold to foreign buyers by Keeneland alone went to 27 nations and brought more than $20 million in foreign money to Kentucky during 1978.

For his part Johnson says he hasn't been approached by interested Arab buyers. "They've got some kind of religion against gambling," Johnson said.

Johnson says the attraction of investing in horses has improved because of the growing demand for race-quality horses as racing dates increase.

"Horses are in very heavy demand because they've gone to year-round racing in a lot of states," Johnson says. "There's always a shortage of good anything — doctors or newspapermen."

Johnson says the expansion of year-round racing in many states has lowered the quality level of horses able to break into the industry.

"It's like the major leagues when they expanded those leagues they got players that couldn't have played until they went to 24 teams," Johnson says.

While training centers like Johnson's open horse ownership to those without experience in the field, Johnson says the venture still can be an expensive one.

"The most expensive thing in the world is a bad horse," Johnson says with a sigh.

"They don't provide revenue and they require attention about 24 hours a day — you've got to feed them if they make money or not."

The statistics bear Johnson out: Kentucky horse breeders and owners spend more than $34 million annually for feed.

In all Kentucky has more than 45,000 thoroughbred horses and the breeding, racing, shoeing, feeding and other related fields mean more than $1 billion in annual thoroughbred-related business for the state.

Johnson, whose training center includes 600 stalls, a one-mile outdoor track slated for completion in the spring and a five-eighths of a mile covered track promoted as the world's largest, says investing in horses "is kind of like any other investment — there are a lot of ways to invest."

For one, Johnson said breeding stock has increased 80 percent in value in the last three years. "Why, just down the road they have Seattle Slew syndicated for $14.5 million," he said.

Johnson said he recently was approached to buy a 1-40th share of the syndicated breeding rights of 1978 Kentucky Derby winner Affirmed — for $400,000.

"It's unbelievable what they are selling 'em for," says Johnson, who turned down the chance to invest in Affirmed.

The training center has 450 horses boarded by private owners and another dozen owned or being handled by OIUUUPFORMANCE OF VIRTUALLY EVERY RACE HORSE IN North America.

Johnson, who took over ownership of the Kentucky Horse Center in mid-1978, plans to hold his first horse auction next spring featuring two-year-olds — those horses among the group eligible for the 1980 Kentucky Derby.

Chain letter for high rollers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The "Circle of Gold" chain letter, which started out in the San Francisco Bay Area two months ago, has now completed its own circle around the country — making a few people rich, but leaving behind thousands of people who are $100 poorer.

Postal inspectors say they are closing in on at least one person suspected of using the mails illegally. They admit it is kind of late, but say it takes time to investigate chain letters.

Besides, the "Circle of Gold" was a little different from most chain letters. It was passed around or sold hand-to-hand at parties or in small groups, and the only feasible prosecution involved the mailing of money after the letter had been sold in person.

As a player in the "Circle of Gold," one buys the letter for $100. He pays the seller $50 and mails another $50 to the top name in a list of 12 on the letter. Then he sells the letter to someone else for $100.

putting his name on the bottom of the list and crossing out the top name.

If the chain is unbroken, he would soon collect more than $100,000. Some people are reported to have received up to $30,000.

The "Circle of Gold" letter first surfaced in San Francisco and suburban Marin County at parties among a theatrical crowd. It quickly spread to Chicago, New York City, Vermont, down the East Coast into North Carolina.

It turned up recently in such places as Nashville, Tenn., Jackson, Miss., Houston and Santa Fe, N.M., on the way back to California.

It also has been reported in Hawaii.

"Someone is now sending it in the mail to people throughout the United States," San Francisco Postal Inspector R.L. Schlueter said. "We are getting evidence together and will take it to the U.S. attorney."

You knew it must have been a record

BOSTON (UPI) — It probably won't surprise those who remember last winter, but 1978 set a record for snowfall in the Boston area.

A total of 89.2 inches of the white stuff fell in 1978, with most of it coming in the early part of the year. The old record of 82.5 inches, set in 1916, was almost double the 42.1 inch average annual snowfall.

A Jan. 20 storm dropped 21 inches, which broke the record at that time. But that record didn't last long.

On Feb. 6 the Blizzard of '78 dropped 23.6 inches of snow on the Greater Boston area.

That blizzard paralyzed parts of the Northeast and brought winds gusting to 79 m.p.h.

Washington Star publishes all new contracts ratified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Star resumed publication today following ratification of new five-year contracts by the last of the newspaper's 11 unions.

Time Inc., owner of the Star, had threatened to shut down the 125-year-old newspaper if all 11 of its unions did not agree by New Year's Eve to new contracts.

The Star failed to publish Monday because the printers had given only tentative agreement to a new contract. They ratified the contract late Monday after deciding which 95 members will lose their jobs as part of the new contracts already approved by the other unions at the newspaper.

"I am pleased we have concluded negotiations with the 11 unions representing the employees of The Washington Star," George Hoyt, the newspaper's publisher, said in a statement.

"I am more pleased to say that all contracts are ratified, allowing us to publish (Tuesday). With these ratifications, we are lifted out of the financial problems of the last days of December."

The proposed contract will reduce the number of printers from 175 to 80 by June and then to 25 over the next five years. Printers who leave the company will get $40,000 severance pay.

Printing union chief Bill Borman said he believed the agreement "was the best possible package we could achieve in this round of negotiations."

Hoyt said the long-term commitment of Time Inc. is clear.

"Time Inc. has stated publicly its willingness to invest $60 million in the Star over the next five years to make it economically viable as well as a great newspaper," he said. "The new five-year agreements provide new management flexibility to operate efficiently and reward excellence."

"The result will be a newspaper that will attract a greater number of readers and advertisers than ever before."

The Star is one of two daily newspapers in the nation's capital. It trails The Washington Post in weekday circulation by 349,475 to 541,074 and in Sunday circulation by 336,680 to 762,825.

Texas Joe Albritton sold the Star to Time Inc. in February 1978, four years after he bought it for $35 million. Time agreed to assume all the Star's debts.

The newspaper's current losses amount to $10 million annually, Time officials said. The communications giant said it needed the new contracts to ensure labor stability.

"These new agreements create a foundation for the future growth and development of The Star," Hoyt said. "With five years of labor stability, all of us at the Star can get on with the task."

An unusual librarian in a unique library

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
In Focus Editor

"We've had readers going blind and feeling that life is closing in when they discovered talking books. It brings them back to life," noted Mrs. Gisela Titman of Newton who is head librarian at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown.

For eight years Mrs. Titman has worked at the Perkins Library which is the resource for the state public library service for the blind and the handicapped.

Few realize that the talking books and the cassette books service exists not only for the blind, but also for anyone "who cannot read print without special aids; hold a book or turn pages." In addition, the service can be received by "anyone who has a physical disability which prevents them from reading."

"The service for Massachusetts comes through Perkins, but it is paid for by the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind," says Mrs. Titman.

"Our biggest success are those who enjoy listening and those who were steady readers who really want to stay informed," says Mrs. Titman. A small, cheerful woman who smiles readily, Mrs. Titman's job is an unusual librarian's job since it involves dealing with machinery a great deal. "The amount of Braille readers," she points out is "small."

"This is the most challenging form of public library service, and one of the most rewarding," she commented. To illustrate what she says, she reaches across her desk which is strewn with catalogues, bulletins from the Library of Congress, gifts, reports from the Library of Congress and grant reports. She deftly extracts just the letter she wants from the pile.

It is one of the many thank-you notes she receives. This particular one says that the person was helped through "the hardest part of any sickness—the recuperation period where listening to your books helped tremendously."

In another instance, Mrs. Titman says a 90-year-old man "lived totally alone and was unable to get out; thus, he had very little contact with people." "His world expanded through talking books."

"We also have people who are blind from birth on and their needs are quite different from those of the elderly," she points out. These needs would be similar to those which a public librarian would see. She considers "one of the most challenging aspects of her job" to be finding out "what these people want and what is practicable in terms of information."

Another library is also located at Perkins and that is the Samuel P. Hayes Research Library which is "probably the largest print collection of materials dealing with the blind and the deaf-blind," says Mrs. Titman. She said "we are also adding materials on the multiply handicapped."

"The actual number of long term blind is low," says Mrs. Titman who stressed that "anyone who wants to read should." Much of her job is oriented toward the elderly's needs because "the highest percentage of readers are 65 and over." "Thus, their needs are highly significant," she says.

The yearly production of titles is limited. Mrs. Titman pointed out that of approximately 35,000 titles, the Library of Congress will choose roughly 1,200 to be put on cassettes; 350 on talking discs; 150 on flexible discs and 350 will be Braille. The rate of potential readers, she says "is about seven percent a year."

"We have had requests that we could not fill," she noted ruefully adding that "everyone of these I have regretted because it is a clear lack of service."

The mother of two grown daughters, Mrs. Titman says she is "pushing 55." To relax, she enjoys reading, gardening, playing the piano and taking evening courses in yoga and presently in Italian. She also enjoys travel. "Since I have been taking Italian, you can see where the next trip will be."

Her work is exhilarating she says "because there is a lovely, caring atmosphere here at Perkins. It is a positive attitude, not depressing." She paused and then looked up and asked "how could it be depressing when we are bringing people something that makes them happy?"

(Anyone who thinks they qualify for the talking books or cassette book service should get a brief statement of disability, either physical or visual, from a doctor and send it to: Kevin Smith, Talking Book Service, 72 Second Street, Cambridge, MA 02141.

—the phonographs or cassette players are provided.)

The number at the Perkins Library is 924-3434

THE READERS WRITE... Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02038.

You know you're going to be tired Friday by dinner time. After all, it's been such a busy, hectic week! So, on Thursday, between the dark and daylight, why not prepare a casserole of favorite foods? Refrigerate until baking time on the following day.

Those favorite casserole foods include shrimp, peas and noodles, moistened with white sauce. Then they're topped with deviled eggs lightly brushed with a little reserved sauce. At this point you cover and refrigerate the casserole. It takes only about 12 minutes to reheat in a microwave oven and about a half an hour in a conventional one.

Blueberry Muffins may be baked from a packaged mix the day before, with an easily made from scratch streusel topping to add interest. Plain yogurt, honey sweetened and lime juice sparked, may also be made in advance to allow flavors to blend for a fruits-in-season salad.

FRIDAY CASSEROLE 5 to 6 servings

1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3 cups milk
1 package (8 oz.) egg noodles, cooked and drained
1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas, cooked and drained

1 package (6 oz.) frozen cooked shrimp thawed and drained

5 hard-cooked eggs, peeled
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 tablespoons sour cream
1 teaspoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Melt butter in a medium-sized saucepan. Stir in flour, onion, Worcestershire, mustard, salt and pepper. Cook until smooth, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir one minute. Reserve 1/2 cup of sauce. Combine remaining sauce, noodles, peas and shrimp in a 3-quart round glass casserole. Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Carefully lift out yolks; place in mixing bowl. Mash yolks with a fork and add remaining ingredients; mix until light and fluffy. Fill egg whites with yolk mixture. Press deviled egg halves into mixture around outside edges and in center of casserole. Drizzle reserved sauce over egg halves. Refrigerate covered overnight. To reheat, microwave casserole, covered with its top or plastic wrap, on full power, about 12 minutes, rotating a half turn every 3 minutes, until hot and bubbly. Let stand covered 5 minutes before serving.

To reheat in a conventional oven, place casserole in a preheated 350° F. oven uncovered about 30 minutes.

KITCHEN CORNER

Fish is usually the first choice for dieters, the cholesterol-conscious, and senior citizens. In addition, the proliferation of fast food, drive-in restaurants where the fish sandwich and fish 'n chips are available, have turned on a whole new generation of fish lovers.

Here are some recipes which were distributed by the Rhode Island Seafood Council:

FRIED FLOUNDER AND PEPPERS

1 lb. flounder (or Haddock)
2 slices ginger root, minced
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. sesame oil
1 T. sherry
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 T. cornstarch
5 T. oil
1 thin slice ginger root
1 clove garlic
1 small red pepper, cut into 1" squares
1 small green pepper, cut into 1" squares
1 medium onion, cut into lengthwise strips
1 tsp. sherry
1 tsp. sherry

Cut the fish fillets into 1 1/2" pieces (cutting across the grain). Combine minced ginger root, salt, sugar, sesame oil and sherry in a bowl. Add fish, toss to coat and let marinate for two hours, tossing occasionally. Dip each piece in egg, then cornstarch and set aside. Heat 1 T. oil in a wok. Add ginger root slice and garlic and let brown, but not burn.

Remove and discard. Add peppers and onion and stir fry two minutes. Stir in sherry and soy sauce, remove from pan and keep warm.

Heat the remaining oil until very hot. Add the fish and fry quickly until brown on both sides.

Drain on paper towels and keep warm until all fish is fried. Put on serving platter and garnish with peppers and onion.

PT. JUDITH FISH ROLL-UPS

4 fish fillets
1 cup commercial bread stuffing
1 cup coarse cracker crumbs
4 tablespoons parsley, chopped
1/4 cup onion, minced
1/4 cup celery, diced
4 tablespoons melted butter
4 squares of heavy duty foil boiling water
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine the stuffing and crumbs with onion, parsley, celery, salt and pepper - add enough boiling water to moisten the stuffing. Place each fillet on foil. Place dressing on the center of each fillet and roll, tie with string. Brush the roll-up with melted butter and sprinkle with lemon juice. Fold foil around the fillet and fasten securely. Place foil packages in a shallow pan and bake at 400° for 30-40 minutes. Remove opened foil packages to serving dish and serve with the following sauce.

2 tablespoons butter

1 cup milk
Dash pepper
1/4 cup grated cheese
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash paprika
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine all ingredients except lemon juice and cheese. Stir over low heat until sauce is thickened - add lemon juice and cheese before serving.

FILLETS IN LEMON CREAM SAUCE

1 1/2 lbs. fish fillets
salt and pepper
1/4 cup butter
4 shallots, finely minced
1/4 cup white wine
1 cup chicken stock
1 bouquet garni
1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
2 T. butter
1/2 tsp. cornstarch
Juice of 1 lemon
2 egg yolks
3/4 cup heavy cream

Season fillets with salt and pepper and set aside.

Saute shallots in butter until soft and transparent. Add wine, bouquet, garni, salt and pepper to taste. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 15-20 minutes. In a bowl, combine cornstarch, lemon juice, egg yolks and cream. Add salt and pepper to taste. Slowly stir cream mixture into stock mixture and cook over low heat until slightly thickened. Place the fillets, overlapping one another, to fit, in a single layer in the skillet. Cook, uncovered, until the fish is done (about 5 minutes or when the fish flakes easily with a fork).

In a separate skillet, saute mushroom slices in butter. Season with salt and pepper. When ready to serve, place the fillets on a serving platter, top with the sauce and spread the mushroom slices down the center. Serves 3-4

SWORDFISH IN SOUR CREAM

2 lbs. swordfish steaks about 1" thick
6 shallots, finely chopped
4 T. butter
1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 1/2 cups sour cream salt and pepper to taste
fresh watercress

Saute shallots and mushrooms in butter until soft.

Remove with slotted spoon and set aside.

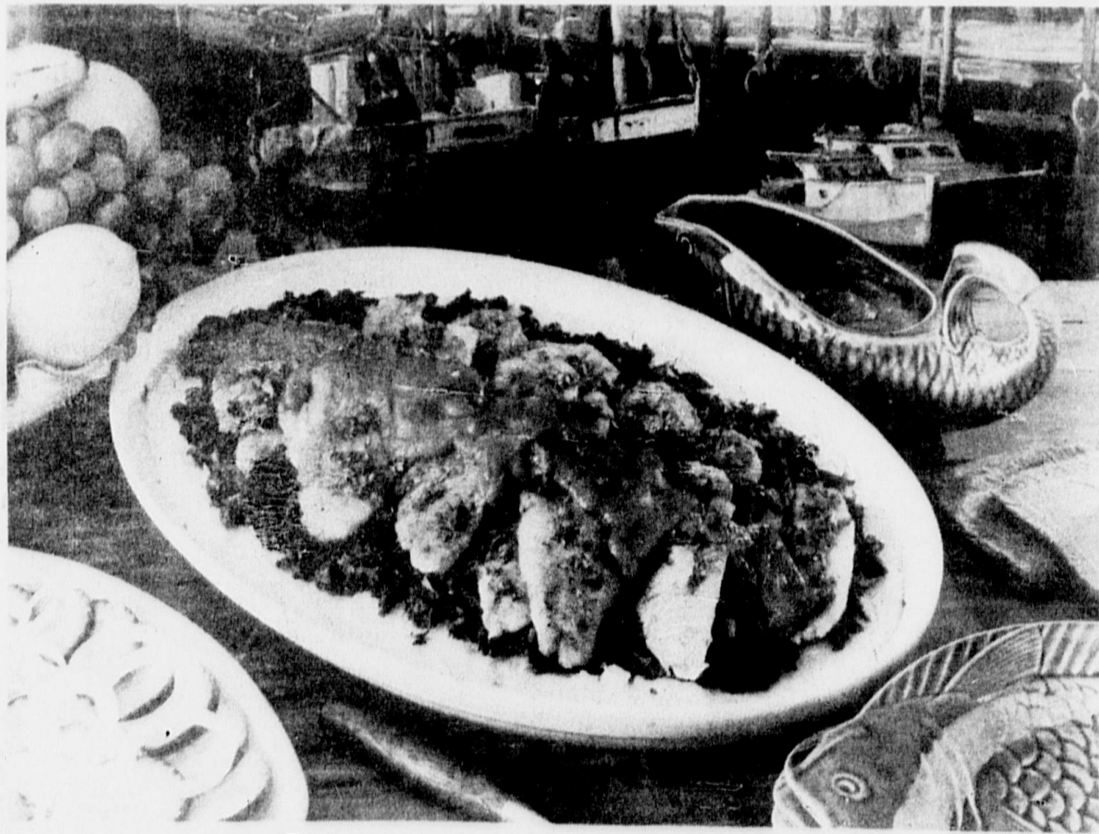

Add the wine to the mushroom liquid in the pan and add the swordfish. Cook according to the 10 minute per inch theory, turning once.

About 2 minutes before the steaks are cooked, pour the sour cream over them. Surround them with the mushrooms and shallots and continue cooking until done, being careful not to let the sauce boil. Season with salt and pepper and garnish with watercress.

Variation: Just before serving, add 1 T. Dijon mustard to the sauce. Serves 4

SCALLOP KEBABS

6-8 slices bacon, cut in half

Fish: a low calorie, low cholesterol choice.

1 lb. sea scallops cherry tomatoes mushroom caps
green pepper squares (parboiled, if preferred)
onion pieces

Partially cook the bacon to render some of the fat. Drain on paper towels.

Wrap the bacon part way around the scallop and add to the skewer followed by the remaining ingredients. Repeat until the skewers are full.

Arrange on a broiling rack and grill 4-5 inches from the heat, turning often, until the bacon is crisp and the scallops are just cooked through. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve with lemon wedges.

CLAMS OREGANATE

12 Little Neck clams
6 garlic cloves, minced
1 T. dried oregano
2 T. minced fresh parsley
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 T. olive oil, approximately

Open the clams, leaving each one on the half shell. Arrange in a shallow pan. Mix garlic, herbs and crumbs, and divide among the clams. Dribble a few drops of oil on each clam. Bake in a preheated 400° F. oven for 8 to 10 minutes, or in a broiler until browned. Serve hot, at once. Makes 1 main-dish serving, or 3 appetizer servings.

SEASIDE MANICOTTI

6 manicotti shells
110 oz. package frozen chopped spinach
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 1/4 cups milk
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded process Swiss cheese
1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/4 teaspoon salt
16 ozs. fresh white fish cooked and flaked
Freshly grated nutmeg

Cook manicotti in boiling salted water 20 minutes or till tender; drain. Cook spinach according to package directions; drain well, pressing out liquid. Meanwhile, in saucepan cook onion and garlic in the 2 tablespoons butter or margarine till tender but not brown. Blend in flour. Add milk all at once. Cook and stir till thickened and bubbly. Stir in Swiss cheese till melted. In bowl, combine 1/2 cup of the sauce with the spinach fish mixture. Pour half the remaining sauce into a 1 1/2 quart oval au gratin pan or 10x6x2 inch baking dish. Place manicotti in pan atop sauce. Pour remaining sauce over manicotti. Cover and bake in 350° oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Grate a little fresh nutmeg over manicotti, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Trash Talk

Preparing materials for recycling

By Betsy Lewenberg

Recycling question of the week: Different people seem to have different ways of recycling. What is the proper way to prepare materials for recycling?

Paper, including newspapers and magazines, can be placed at curbside either tied in bundles no more than two feet high or placed in double grocery bags. If you choose to recycle your paper in grocery bags, please be sure to use brown grocery bags and not colored shopping bags. Also be sure to keep your recycled paper at least three or four feet from the trash. By following these simple directions, you minimize the possibility of having your papers mistaken for trash or missed by the recycling truck as it makes its rounds.

Clear glass must be kept separate from green and brown glass when recycling. Green and brown glass may be mixed; however, if all glass colors are mixed, they cannot be recycled and may cause the rejection of an entire shipment of several tons of glass and cans.

Present technology cannot separate clear from colored glass and therefore they must be separated at the household level. Another problem in glass recycling occurs when someone attempts to recycle ceramics. Tiny slivers of plates, cups, saucers, bricks, etc. can destroy thousands of new bottles produced from a shipment of glass contaminated by ceramics.

Cans may be placed in either container of glass. Steel cans are separated magnetically from the bottles and then aluminum is handpicked out.

Preparation of glass and cans for recycling is simple. All that is necessary is to remove the contents from the containers. Cans need not be flattened, nor rings removed from bottles, nor labels removed from bottles or cans. The only thing to remember is to be sure to keep clear separate from colored glass.

Glass and cans must be clearly marked and separate from the trash. Place clear glass and cans and colored glass and cans in separate plastic or metal trash containers marked with a white (or masking tape) horizontal wide stripe. This makes the recyclables readily visible to the recycling crew. Please do not place glass and cans in paper bags or cardboard boxes. These containers cannot be recycled and must be left at the curb where they will blow away and cause needless litter. Boxes and bags are often not easily spotted and can break if weakened by rain and snow.

Newspapers, glass and cans must be placed at curbside at least three to four feet to one side of the trash (not behind, please) to be easily spotted as recyclables. They should be outside by 7 a.m. on your regular trash day each week. The pickup begins early each morning, and if you wait until 7:30 or 8 a.m. to put your recyclables out, it may already be too late.

Finally, never use your white striped recycling barrel for trash. Chances are it will be assumed to be recyclables and left unemptied on your curb.

If you have any suggestions for recycling questions of the week, please send them to this newspaper.

Harry Zohn

Zohn elected

Harry Zohn of West Newton, professor of German and chairman of the School of Humanities Council at Brandeis University, has been elected an alumni representative on the Suffolk University Board of Trustees.

Zohn was chairman of the department of Germanic and Slavic languages at Brandeis for 11 years. He received an honorary doctor of letters degree from Suffolk University in 1976.

He received a B.A. degree from Suffolk University in 1946, a master of arts in education from Clark University in 1947, and received an M.A. and Ph. D. in Germanic languages and literatures from Harvard in 1949 and 1952 respectively.

Russell G. Gasdia

Gasdia appointed

Russell G. Gasdia of Newton has been named director of pharmacy services at the New England Baptist Hospital, Boston, according to Acting Administrator Raymond C. McAfoose.

Prior to his appointment, Gasdia was assistant director of the department he now heads. He earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

A 245-bed non-sectarian hospital, the Baptist has gained prominence for its treatment of complicated medical and surgical problems.

Gerstenfeld to advise

Arthur Gerstenfeld of Newton, head of the management department at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, has been appointed to a Presidential advisory committee charged with developing recommendations for federal policy on industrial innovations.

Gerstenfeld will work as a member of a subcommittee of scholars to develop specific recommendations for federal policies and programs aimed at increasing industrial innovation within the United States.

Before coming to WPI in 1976 as department head, Gerstenfeld was professor of management at Boston University for nine years.

In 1960, he joined the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as manager of plans and programs, leaving in 1964 to work for his doctorate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Carleton Merrill appointed to state employment council

Carleton P. Merrill, Newton veterans' agent and administrative director of the Board of License Commissioners, has been appointed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis as a member the State Employment and Training Council. Merrill presently serves as a member of the Massachusetts CETA Prime Sponsor Planning Council and is chairperson of that group.

The Massachusetts State Employment and Training Council members represent private industry, unions, nonprofit groups, local government and state agencies, and because of the mandate conferred upon it by the governor it is the only statewide employment and training organization within the Commonwealth.

The Employment and Training Council differs from other training programs in its authority to distribute the governor's discretionary CETA funds given to him by the U.S. Department of Labor to support vocational education and demonstration employment and training programs throughout the state.

Merrill, a former eight-year member of the Newton Board of Aldermen, has been veterans' agent since 1962 and administrative director of the Licensing Commission since 1975. He serves as chairperson of the Newton Salvation Army Service Unit, has been active in several civic organizations in Newton, serves as a member of the advisory board of the Human Rights Commission and recently was the municipal chairperson of the 1978 United Way fund campaign.

Ready for something besides complaints? This Wednesday, you can hear people give thanks for the good God is giving them. For healings, protection, needs met, and above all, a clearer understanding of His presence. It's inspiring to hear. And it could help you remember the good in your life, too.

Recreation Department Notes

INFORMATION PHONE 552-7120

JANUARY 2, 1979 SKATING SEASON OPENS:

The 1979 Recreation Department skating season opened last week at Bullough's Pond in Newtonville and at Ware's Cove on the Charles River in Auburn-dale.

The hours for both facilities will be 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily, weather permitting.

Recreation officials emphasize that Crystal Lake in Newton Center is not yet considered safe for skating.

Bullough's Pond is open for skating only, while Ware's Cove is open for both skating and hockey.

Current skating conditions may be determined by calling 552-7120 day or evening.

Recreation Commissioner Russell J. Halloran reminds all children and parents that they should skate on supervised areas only. Any natural ice surface not supervised should be considered out of bounds.

Halloran says that skating is an enjoyable and healthful sport when common sense safety rules are observed. He wants all skaters to have a good season. This can be accomplished by keeping safety in mind at all times.

ARCHERY CLASSES

Registration for the Newton Recreation Department's Archery Classes will be held at the Newton Centre Hut on Tyler Terrace on Wednesday, January 10th at 7:00 p.m. Classes are limited to 25 maximum and students will be accepted on a first come - first serve basis. The fee is $3.00 for students will be accepted on a first come - first serve basis. The fee is $3.00 for students and $5.00 for adults.

There will be two classes an evening for ten weeks. The first class for students will run from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. and a second for adults, from 8:30 to 10:00 p.m. All classes will be held on Wednesday evenings. There will be no classes on Wednesday, January 28th.

The series is directed by Bill Baker.

RECREATION I.D. CARDS:

Newton residents who wish to participate in Newton Recreation Department's programs conducted in after-school hours at Newton North High School, must obtain Recreation I.D. cards. The fee is $2.75.

This Recreation I.D. card may be obtained by going to the Hull Street entrance of Newton North High School in Newtonville with proof of Newton residency on the following dates: Wednesday, January 10th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, January 13th, 1 to 3 p.m.; Wednesday, January 24th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 3rd, 7 to 9 p.m.; Tuesday, Feb. 6th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesday, February 14th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesday, March 7th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, March 7th, 1 to 3 p.m.; Wednesday, March 28th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesday, April 11th, 7 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, April 21st 1 to 3 p.m. and Wednesday, May 2nd, 7 to 9 p.m.

HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL FOR GIRLS

Season's play in the Recreation Department's High School Girls' Volleyball League is scheduled to begin at Newton North High School on Thursday, January 11th, at 7:00 p.m. The organizational meeting will be followed by a scrimmage.

JUNIOR HIGH GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The Junior High School Girls Basketball League will get underway on Tuesday, January 16th. This League is for girls in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades. An organizational meeting and practice will be held at Day Junior High School on Tuesday, January 9th, from 7 to 9 p.m.

BADMINTON PROGRAM

Newton people who wish to participate in the Recreation Department's Badminton Program are invited to go to Warren Junior High School in West Newton any Thursday evening from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m. They should bring their own racquets and have appropriate clothing and footwear.

The program is directed by Joe Wright and Carol Phillips.

SATURDAY GYM PROGRAMS

Open gym programs are offered by the Recreation Department on Saturday afternoons at Warren, Weeks and Bigelow Junior High Schools from 1 to 4 o'clock, and at Newton South High School from 3 to 6 p.m.

These gyms will also be open during the February school vacation.

YOUTH SKATING LESSONS

On Wednesday, January 10th, registration will be held for the second session of Youth skating lessons. The lessons for children in Grades 1 through 6, will be held 1 the Daly MDC Rink on Tuesday's, beginning January 16th from 2:00/2:50 p.m. or 3:00/3:50 p.m. Cost for the lessons is $14.50.

Registration will be held from 7:00 to 7:45 p.m. at the Newton Center Hut on Tyler Terrace. Instruction will be by Carol Butterworth and Rosemary Cloran.

Garden City Marathon

The first annual Garden City Marathon will be held on Feb. 11 beginning at noon. The event is a N.E.A.A.U. certified race of 26.2 miles within the boundaries of the city of Newton featuring the infamous "Heartbreak Hill." The race will both start and finish at Newton North High School.

The marathon will benefit the Newton Kiwanis Foundation for child abuse prevention.

Entry blanks are available at the Garden City Marathon Committee at 1271 Washington St., West Newton, Mass. 02165. There is a $3, tax deductible fee to enter. All entry blanks must be postmarked no later than midnight Jan. 29, 1979.

Awards will include New England championship medals and trophies for top individual finishers, best teams. There will also be special awards presented. T-shirts and certificates will go to all finishers.

Newton Catholic winless

By CHRIS SWAN

A one-shot syndrome hit the Newton Catholic offense this past week and their winless streak continued with a 70-50 loss in Brookline against St. Mary's.

The lack of offensive caroms was evident in this reported. Paul MacNeil banked 16 first-half points and pulled down some key rebounds in the first 16 minutes, enabling Santa Maria to construct a ten point, 33 to 23 lead at intermission.

From there the Saints were able to build their lead to 20 points before closing. Timmy Hoban, despite a battered elbow, lead the Lancers in scoring.

Next the Lancers will have to face Mission. After that they will come back home and hopefully they can get it back together during a four-game home stand tonight against St. Joseph's.

My only New Year's resolution this year will be to cut out cliches, which won't do much for the quantity, but should uplift the quality, we hope.

South roundballers drop two

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

Led by 6-3 sophomore forward Craig Walker's 28 points and 12 rebounds, the Chelsea Red Devils totally shut down the Newton South Lion offense last Tuesday enroute to a 47-34 victory at Chelsea High.

Lion Coach Richard Walker again tried shuffling his starting lineup, going with Stu Bernstein at center, Pete Felopulous and Mark Hayden at forwards, and Mark Sullivan and Tim Hairston at guards. This combination did not produce as expected. The Lions were able to get off only six shots in the entire quarter as they scored four points. The Lions also had a season high ine turnovers in the quarter which hurt them.

Chelsea attempted 15 shots and if their shooting had been better they could have had much more than the nine points they got in the quarter.

In the second period, the Lions tripled their first period point total as Tim Hairston (6) and Stu Bernstein (4) combined for 10 of the Lions' 12 second-quarter points. However, Chelsea, behind Craig Walker's 10 points in the quarter, pumped in 14 to put them up by seven, 23-16 at the half.

The second half did not go much better for the Lions as they could manage to score only 18 points. Walker continued his domination. They scored 15 of Chelsea's 24 second half points making the final score 47-34 Chelsea.

This was the Lions worst offensive performance to date as they shot 11-34 from the field. The only real bright spot the Lions could look to was Peter Felopulous who played well while scoring 13 points (11 in the second half) and pulled down a game-high 14 rebounds.

The score could have been a lot worse if Craig Walker's Chelsea teammates accuracy had been better. Walker shot 11-18 from the floor and 6-10 from the line. Take away these stats and the Red Devils are left with 8-33 from the floor and 3-16 from the line, which just shows how much this sophomore dominated the play of the Chelsea team. The Lions committed a season high of 29 turnovers in the game.

Hayden Heroics Fall Short

Mark Hayden's two free throws with just 23 seconds left in the game tying the score at 47 were all for naught, as 10 seconds later Center Mike Collins made a 3 point play giving the Millis Mohawks a come from behind 50-47 victory over the Lions at Newton South last Thursday, Dec. 28. It marked the second time this season Newton South has lost to Millis.

The Lions held a 27-19 advantage at the end of the first half as Hayden came off the bench in the second quarter to score eight points and grab four rebounds. Peter Felopulous had six for the Lions at halftime.

Millis closed the gap to within 1, at 39-38, after the end of three quarters. They outscored the Lions 19-12 in the third stanza. Jim Monaghan had the hot hand for Millis in the quarter as he poured in 13 points. Mark Hayden continued his fine play, scoring six more points in the quarter.

Monaghan continued his torrid shooting for Millis as he hit the first two shots he took in the fourth quarter, and when Mike Collins hit a basket with 2:45 left in the game, the Mohawks had a 46-43 lead.

A turnover gave Millis the ball with 2:30 left, and from there they ent into a stall offense. However, South was able to break the stall as Mark Sullivan stole the ball, drove the length of the court and made a basket to put the Lions down by one one point, 46-45, with 1:30 left.

A minute later Collins converted on one of two free throws to give Millis a 2-point advantage, 47-45. Just three seconds later Mark Hayden was fouled after pulling down a rebound, and he went to the line with a chance to tie it. Hayden made both free throws tying the score, but it went for naught as Collins, 10 second later, converted on a 3-point play to account for the final tally of 50-47. A last-second shot by South was missed and Millis proceeded to run out the clock.

This loss dropped the Lions record to 2-4, while Millis upped their mark to 5-0. For South, Mark Hayden finished with 19 points and was the leading rebounder with eight. Peter Felopulous had six rebounds and Tim Hairston had six assists to take over the team lead with a total of 15.

South girls tracksters rolling

By GREG WALSH

The Newton South High School girls' indoor track team once again ran, hurdled, jumped, and "putted" their way to victory, defeating Marion High School, 58-28, in their second Dual County League meet.

Marion High School's Boys and Girls Indoor Track teams moved into the Dual County League this year, filling the space which Matignon High School once occupied. The NSHS Harriers are now 2-0.

Taking eight seconds off her last week's time, Veteran Indoor Trackster Ilene Tocci ran a 6:29 in the one-mile, taking second place.

Co-captain Penny Shockett, who is undefeated this season, stayed undefeated, placing first in the 1000 with 3:09.

In the 600, Carla Chiaravelotti was awarded first place, with a time of 1:46, after Cathy Seasholes-NSHS, who had a better time was disqualified. Seasholes was disqualified for repeatedly stepping on the track's inside boundary line.

Linda Price was again victorious in the 300 with 40.2. Kathy McLellan, also of NSHS, placed second with 44.1.

Robin Seidman, NSHS's only place in the 40, took second with a time of 5.7.

Dorothy Pickett ran a 6.8 in the hurdles, equaling the Dual County League record, set by Pickett last year. Also placing was Sharon Sussman, taking third with an 8.1.

Co-captain Linda Irvine, a veteran track and cross-country runner, placed first in the two-mile, running a 12:35.

South swept both of the field events. In the shot-putt Laura Sacks threw 26'10" for first place. Pickett and Price placed second and third respectively.

Sharon Sussman cleared 4'4" for first place in the high jump, Chiaravelotti cleared 4'2" for second place and Seasholes took third clearing 4'0".

Come and cheer on the NSHS Harriers to 3-0, Sat., Jan. 6, 1979, when South will face Wayland H.S. at Wayland Field House.

South skaters nipped at wire

By BRIAN J. KILEY

Last week, the Newton South hockey team played the same team (North Attleboro), at the same place (North Attleboro) with the same winner (North Attleboro) and found the difference was in themselves. In the first meeting between the two teams, North Attleboro won 8-0. The Red Rocketeers needed only 12 seconds to score the game-winner. This time it didn't come until less than a minute remained in the final period of the 3-2 game.

In the first period the Red Rocketeers took the lead with a shot in close and looked forward to another massacre. However, moments later they were forced to look back just in time to see junior Mike Wasserman tie the game at 1-1.

The second period had much the same plot only this time with different stars. North Attleboro again grabbed the lead this time with a slapshot. That play cued Captain Bob Weiss, whose beautiful breakaway goal stole the show.

For the Lions, looking ahead to the third period was very different from normal. This time they were in the game. They had a chance to win. Of course North Attleboro had a chance also. With the game being so close, the contest turned into a game of chance.

It was the Red Rocketeers who were fortunate enough to again, but this time they had lost as a team.

Overall it was an impressive game. At least as impressive as a loss can be. One left this game with a feeling of hope toward future games.

Offensively forwards Mike Fein, Mike Wasserman and Al Bupp teamed with defenseman Bob Weiss were able to stimulate a respectable attack. South was able to take 29 shots, more than they did in any game last season. If they continue to apply pressure like this they will certainly find the red light lit more often.

Defensively Goalties Nathan Berkovits and Paul Aries both played well and stopped many of North Attleboro's best chances.

The Lions no longer look like the same team as last year. If they continue to play as well as they can we may hear some surprising results by season's end.

South matmen stunned

By DON STEINBERG

For any Newton South wrestler who was having trouble thinking of resolutions for the New Year, the match of Dec. 28 against Catholic Memorial helped in getting a list started. Resolution #1 - Always make weight. Resolution #2 - Never underestimate an opponent.

South's general disregard of these unwritten laws of wrestling resulted in the Lions' shocking 30-28 loss to the Knights of C.M., a team which South battered 53-13 last season. With most of South's varsity wrestlers overweight, on vacation, or otherwise detained last Thursday, the best team coach Chuck Hurwitz could field consisted of four first-year grapplers and eight men wrestling one weight class higher than usual.

The dependables came through for the Lions performance out of their normal weight classes. Wayne Chou registered his third first-period pin in as many matches. Ron Krassin also picked up his third pin, and Paul Butters got six points at 140.

At 128, Don Steinberg grabbed his first varsity victory, and Rich Tarantino did the same at 187 with a clutch pin. But hard efforts by Ethan Shapiro, Ben Schwalb and Rich Shone against heavier rivals fell short, and the only other team point South received was from a C.M. misconduct penalty.

Meanwhile, back in 1978, South traveled to C.M. (of all places) on the 30th to compete in the annual Holiday Invitational Tournament. The list of invitees was longer and more fearsome than in the previous year, when South took first place. A few uninvited squads even showed up to make the guest list for the day-long affair number over a dozen.

South started well, putting five men in the semi-finals. Wayne Chou, Ron Krassin, Paul Butters and Rich Tarantino all received first round byes and then each won to get there. At 147, Junior Ben Schwalb forgot his robe, but still pinned two men to enter the semis. No Lion wrestler, however, reached the finals.

The former semi-finalists then joined Don Steinberg and Rich Shone, who had worked their way up through the consolation round. Chou, Krassin and first-year man Rich Tarantino moved into the consolation finals and all finished fourth. Steinberg, Butters, Schwalb and Shone each took fifth place. As a team, South finished in the middle of the standings.

This Friday, Jan. 5, South will host both Weston and Lincoln-Sudbury in a rare tri-meet. Against those two teams last season, the Orange and Blue won by scores of 57-6 and 59-6. No one is expecting a repeat performance this year, but with these resolutions in mind, who knows?

Rivers All-Stars

Senior linebacker and fullback Andy Toyias of Newton (far right), was among six Rivers School football players chosen to the Independent School League All-Star team this year. Three other Rivers All-Stars were, left to right Rob Abromson, Bob Morelli and Jay Bulkley.

The hoopla over who's No. 1

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — All this uproar over who's No. 1 and who isn't makes me laugh because now the fans and writers figure they know more about football than the coaches, which could be. But if it's so, an awful lot of players in this country sure are in the wrong hands.

Ever since the UPI Board of Coaches ratings hit the wire Tuesday evening showing the coaches had picked Southern California No. 1 and Alabama No. 2, the phones haven't quit.

By the strangest coincidence, practically all the calls are coming from the great state of Alabama, from places like Tuscaloosa, Montgomery, Huntsville and Birmingham, with half of the callers starting out "how dare you?" and the other half "How could you?" The curious thing about all this is, three times previously Alabama finished as UPI's No. 1 choice and I can't remember ever getting a single call congratulating us for our inspired wisdom.

You know the old football saying, though, when it rains, it rains on both sides of the field and that's what happened this time. In the AP poll, conducted among sportscasters and sportswriters, Alabama came out on top and Southern California second, and from what I hear, their phones were getting a good workout, too — from irate Californians. What an amazing coincidence!

One angry Alabamian fired in a wire to UPI accusing the coaches of prejudice. They couldn't even count up to two, he said. How, he wanted to know, in a pointed reference to last Monday's victory by Alabama over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl, could No. 2 beat No. 1 and then wind up No. 2? Overlooked completely by him, of course, was Southern California's victory over Alabama earlier in the season.

None of the coaches live or die with the ratings although, naturally, they're happier when their team winds up higher than lower. I know of one coach, no longer active, who was a member of our voting board and said he put little or no stock in the ratings at all. At the end of the season, though, who was out there leading the clamor that his team should be No. 1? That coach, of course.

In this regard, the one coach I've found to be the most consistent in his feeling about the ratings is Penn State's Joe Paterno. He has never served on our board although he has been invited to do so, and when I've spoken with him about it, he has told me he wouldn't mind voting — once at the end of the season — but didn't care to do so on a basis during the season itself. He felt that doing so served no practical purpose. Apart from the ratings serving primarily as an instrument for fan consumption, philosophically speaking, I have to agree completely with Joe Paterno.

I can understand the fans becoming so excited about the ratings. That's simply a means of identification where some of them in their 30s, 40s and 50s, are identifying personally with the players, reflecting some of their pride while trying to feel young at heart again. There's nothing wrong with that.

What amuses me most, though, is some of the pure blather I've listened to and read from all these self-styled analysts who pass themselves off as football experts. They go into all this fancy arithmetic and phraseology telling you why No. 1 has no business on the same field as No. 2.

They're all experts. I'm sorry I can't say the same for myself although I go back a long time following football. Back to the days when such players as Don Hutson, Dixie Howell and Fred Sington were starring for Alabama; Marchy Schwartz and Frank Carideo for Notre Dame; Pug Rentner and Eggs Manske for Northwestern; Sammy Baugh for Texas Christian; Monk Moscrip for Stanford and Jay Berwanger for the University of Chicago.

Those fellows were around before there was any such thing as ratings. They never concerned themselves with whether their team was No. 1 or No. 2. They just let the fans argue over something as intangible as that.

Today's Sports Parade

Woody Hayes is dying inside

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The last time Woody Hayes found himself in such a position was 44 years ago, which also was the last time he was without a team to coach, and what makes it such a personal crusher for him now is he knows this time it's the end and there will be no next time.

That doesn't only hurt a man like Hayes, to whom football is his whole life, it kills him.

No matter how brave a front he puts up to everyone on the outside, it takes everything out of him inside. In a few more weeks, Hayes will be 66, an age where no college in the country is going to come banging on his door and as for the professionals, forget about them, because no pro performer would ever stand for the way Hayes ran his players at Ohio State.

Woody Hayes without football is about as imaginable as Casey Stengel without baseball. Stengel died in the fall of 1975 just shy of 85 but the core and fiber really went out of him 10 years before, when he retired as Mets' manager. He left, he said, "of my own free will" — even though they were holding the door open for him.

For awhile, Hayes also tried to make it look as if he were leaving voluntarily as head coach of the Buckeyes. He felt that sounded more dignified than being fired. But in the end everybody became aware he had been sacked, let go in the aftermath of his angry slugging of a Clemson player near the end of last Friday night's 17-15 loss in the Gator Bowl.

Prophetically, Hayes revealed what the instrument of his firing would be a few years back while explaining how different he felt about those who come to watch a football game and those who come to play.

"Frankly, I don't give a damn what other people think of me — the alumni or the writers," he said. "They aren't the ones who fire coaches. The people who fire coaches are players."

Long known as a pressure cooker for coaches, Ohio State has been called by some a football madhouse. When Hayes was hired as coach Ohio State's trustees started him off at a modest $12,500.

For that, he brought the school's football team the kind of prestige it had never enjoyed before, along with a pair of national championships. As the most successful coach in Ohio State's history, he also was its most high-handed one, yet of all the players he coached, I never met one who didn't speak of him with respect and warm regard.

Nobody is all good and nobody all bad, and that includes Woody Hayes. From all evidence, in his case the good he did far outweighed the bad and maybe more people might've become aware of some of the kind and generous things he did had he not so often considered the media his personal adversary.

I doubt Hayes meant to do any real physical harm to Charlie Bauman, the Clemson middle guard he struck in Friday night's contest. Bauman had intercepted a pass by Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter, killing off what looked to be the Buckeyes' final threat, and then was said to have taunted Hayes by waving the football in his face.

Obviously frustrated and incensed, Hayes lashed out. But when you're a coach, you're supposed to be a model for all young men and you're not supposed to do that. How can you teach discipline to your players when you don't show any yourself?

Woody Hayes was wrong in doing what he did, the same way he was wrong when he struck out at a fan after a tough loss to Michigan State a few years ago and cussed out a Seattle photographer during another contest with the University of Washington.

Jim Owens, coaching Washington at the time, said he thought Hayes had "lost touch with some of the realities of playing football games." Jim Owens, I think, hit it right on the nose. Hayes did lose touch. With all the pressure around him, though, I can understand that.

Anytime someone talked to Hayes about retiring, he said he might consider it if he found something else he'd rather do. He could never imagine what that would be.

"Besides," he'd always add, "I have the best coaching job in the country."

That's all in the past tense now, and you can judge for yourself what that has to be doing to Woody Hayes.

Letters at Tufts

MEDFORD — Jon Raymond, a freshman defensive end from Newton, has earned his first varsity letter with the Tufts University football team, Coach Vic Gatto announced today.

Winning its last four games of the season, Tufts posted a 5-3 record in Gatto's first season on the Hillside. It marked only the second winning football season during the 1970's at Tufts.

Tufts highlighted the '78 season by upsetting Williams, 7-0; Amherst, 10-3; and Bates, 16-14.

With 34 lettermen, including 14 starters, returning next season, Gatto expects the Jumbos to be even stronger in 1979.

A 6-1, 195-pounder, Jon moved into the starting lineup for the final three games of the season. He was in on 10 tackles and had a fumble recovery which led to a touchdown in a 35-14 victory over Colby.

A former football and baseball letterman at Deerfield Academy, Jon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Raymond, of 322 Hartman Rd., Newton.

Murdoch returns

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Hockey League goaltenders will have one more dangerous shooter to worry about beginning Jan. 10.

Don Murdoch, the New York Rangers' hard-shooting right wing, suspended by NHL President John Ziegler last July 24 after a conviction in Canadian courts for cocaine possession, had his suspension commuted Wednesday by Ziegler after a closed-door session revealed a "new maturity."

"It took us about one half hour," said Ziegler. "I do not wish to reveal or discuss what the player and I said but we reviewed the period of his suspension and I looked into account the fact there were no adverse reports.

"His attitude and his degree of new maturity, which had taken place during the suspension, gave me the feeling that there was a reasonable assurance that the kind of conduct he had engaged on in the past would not be repeated."

When Murdoch was suspended, Ziegler indicted if the Rangers applied for a commutation of the suspension he might reduce it to 40 games. Murdoch will be able to resume play on Jan. 10.

The NHL security group did not monitor Murdoch at any time during his suspension, said Ziegler, who emphasized that his decision to commute Murdoch's suspension should not be misconstrued.

German divorce law gives wife pension

Germany (UPI) — A 57-year-old Bonn bureaucrat decided to divorce his wife of 30 years.

Even before he had paid lawyers' fees, divided the household possessions or thought about alimony, the decision had cost him $40,000, an impossibly high sum even on a generous civil service salary.

The man had to pay. West German divorce law requires all possessions, pensions and investments acquired during marriage be shared equally upon divorce. The $40,000 was a lump sum in 1950, 9 pi hii hihiphiv pi rules are the most hotly disputed among its many provisions that have aroused controversy. The law aims to force the "stronger" partner to support the "weaker," usually the wife.

The new measures value woman's work in the home as high as man's work at the office or factory. When a marriage ends in divorce, the housewife gets a pension for the work she did in the home — and the husband must finance it.

Feminists say this gives more meaning to the equal rights clause in the West German constitution that states simply, "Men and women are equal."

Generally, the ruling is less than popular.

Husbands pine for pre-reform days when wives who fled house and hearth because they were being mistreated lost the right to alimony because the divorce law made them the guilty party.

One magazine recently said Germans no longer had the "courage" to marry. "Gone are the dreams of wedding bells," it said. "Germans are running to the notary instead." There they sign contracts exempting them from the terms of the divorce law if the marriage doesn't work out.

Husbands see themselves as victimized and impoverished by a reform politicians intended to be liberalizing. Some have been forced to sell businesses to pay settlements. One divorce court judge says the average man now can barely afford to found a new family unless his second wife has a job.

"In short, the men are enraged," said Gisela Becker, a Bonn divorce court judge.

Some men are so angry they try to withhold details of their pension and other financial arrangements. Judges have no direct power to force husbands to reveal their assets. But under the new law, neither can they pronounce divorce final until all money matters are settled.

Judges and lawyers are angry, too. The Hamburg Lawyers' Association estimates the new law has doubled the workload of divorce judges. This delays divorce. In West Berlin, courts had granted only 2,000 divorces by late 1978, compared with 9,000 in the same period under the old law.

But not everget gscuuu vorce specialist Christof Boehmer calls the new law "very practical." There are some indications he is right.

Boehmer points to provisions often forgotten in the public furor over high costs and delays. He says around one-third of West German marriages end in divorce, after an average of seven years. Most divorced wives are in their 20s or 30s, still young enough to train for a job. The ex-husband, the "stronger" partner, must support he '4' 8010 5di3"38,"3, artner. The ex-husband is not ruined by alimony.

These provisions led one Bonn area lawyer to take a more optimistic view.

"The spirit of the new law is that each partner looks after him — or herself," says Olof Toennies.

Judge Becker, herself a working wife and mother, agrees. She sees the law as a chance for women to build careers.

That is not so easy. Thirty-nine percent of West German women are employed.

Police believe Gacy acted alone

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police say they do not believe John Wayne Gacy had an accomplice in the mass sex slayings he is accused of committing, but they suspect at least one other person knows in detail about his sexual activities.

Police are trying to learn the identity of that person as they search for more bodies and try to identify the bodies. Six of the 29 bodies linked to Gacy so have been identified.

"He may not have known at the time that Gacy was killing people, but he might still be able to help us identify some of the bodies," an investigator said Tuesday.

Information provided by Jeff Rignall, 27, who said Gacy kidnapped him and sexually attacked him, led police to start searching for the second person.

Rignall said Gacy chloroformed him and took him to his house northwest of the city. While they were in one room of the house, he saw a light go on in another room. That indicated someone else was present, Rignall said.

In addition, Rignall said, after he learned Gacy's identity, swore out a complaint, and personally stalked out the house, a stranger approached him and asked that the warrant not be served immediately because Gacy's mother was visiting him from Arkansas.

Gacy, 36, a twice-divorced convicted sodomist, has been charged with just one murder although 27 bodies were found beneath his house and garage. Gacy also has been linked to two other bodies recovered from the Des Plaines River.

Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey said digging at the house would probably continue today but Medical Examiner Robert J. Stein said he doubted it. Sub-zero temperatures Tuesday delayed excavation. The forecast in the area was for a high of 5 above today.

Workers also planned to search areas outside Gacy's house, including a paved driveway and barbecue pit Gacy installed.

Investigators said they might also check the basement of a building on the North Side.

A carpenter who did subcontracting work for Gacy, Joseph Tomaskovic, 33, Darien, told police Gacy and several young employees worked nights pouring concrete in the building's basement.

Tomaskovic said the basement gave off a foul stench. Gacy told him the smell was due to "dead rats," a phrase also used by one of Gacy's former wives to describe the odor emanating from the crawl space beneath Gacy's house.

Gacy, who reportedly suffers from heart trouble, did not appear Tuesday at a hearing on charges he chloroformed and attacked Rignall. He remained strapped into his bed at the Cook County Jail hospital to prevent escape attempts or a second suicide attempt.

Common Market's farm exports subsidy endangers trade talks with U.S.

BRUSSELS (UPI) — It's likely to cost $13 billion to keep 'em down on the farm in the European Common Market (EEC) next year. This is the figure proposed for agricultural subsidies as the community begins its annual budget review.

The massive handout — amounting to $1,500 for each of the community's 8.5 million farmers — has contributed to sour trade relations with the United States and increasing discontent among European taxpayers.

The scale and expansion of the EEC's Common Agricultural Policy (CAP), under which the subsidies are provided, has brought one member country, Britain, to the verge of revolt.

Farm subsidies represent a cost of $50 to every man, woman and child in the nine-nation economic bloc.

The bulk of them pay farmers to produce goods for which there is no market, fuelling vast surpluses including about 290,000 tons of beef, 820,000 tons of powdered milk, 420,000 tons of butter and 150 million gallons of wine.

The community last year spent more on storing surplus butter than on aid to depressed industrial regions which account for many of the community's six million unemployed.

It cost the EEC $3.7 billion in 1977 to store, destroy or give away its surpluses, or to sell them with the help of hefty export subsidies which bring their prices down to the lower world level.

New typing method catching on in Oregon

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Chalk up another Oregon first: This time it's showing state employees an easier, faster way to get that quick brown fox to jump over the lazy dog's back.

Since September, the state has trained some 45 typists to use the Dvorak typing method, a system that gives "higher productivity and leaves people less tired at the end of the day," says Chris Christensen with the Executive Department.

The Dvorak system employs a rearranged keyboard that allows typists to reach the more commonly used letters more easily, cutting down on finger movement and errors.

"About 23 percent of all typing now is done on the home row," said Christensen, "whereas on the Dvorak keyboard, 70 percent is done on the home row."

"It's the positioning of the keys that does it," he added. Most any typist who's been at it awhile has thought about arranging the typewriter keyboard a better way. August Dvorak, University of Washington education professor, was not the first to work at keyboard changes, but his method appears to be the best improvement on the "qwerty" system.

The haphazard setting of the qwerty keyboard — called "qwerty" because of the first six letters on the upper row of keys — is not aimed at setting typing speed records. In fact, the opposite is true.

Keys in old typewriters fell back into place through the pull of gravity, often jamming. To offset the problem, inventor Christopher L. Sholes arranged the keys in 1873 to slow the typist down, avoiding the key jamming problem.

With the Dvorak method the keyboard changes considerably. The left hand of the home, or middle, row of keys, sits on the letters A, O, E, and U; I is next, followed by D, H, T, N, S and —. Reading across from left to right, the top row of letters is: P, Y, F, G, C, R, L and ;

The bottom row consists of ", Q, J, K, X, B, M, W, V, and Z. Numbers run across the top most row from 1 through 0, as usual, with various symbols rearranged on the same keys.

Dvorak invented his technique in 1932 but, for the most part, it's been ignored. Christensen estimates there are only 500 Dvorak typewriters in use in the world today.

Christensen became involved in the system for the state after meeting Bradley Lessley, who took his doctorate at Oregon State University on the Dvorak training.

"Brad talked with a number of us state supervisors and I called a meeting of those who were interested," Christensen said. The meeting generated a lot of enthusiasm and volunteers began enrolling at Dvorak classes at Chemeketa Community College near Salem.

Eventually, said Christensen, "we're reaching for 100 people" to use the Dvorak system, the first time any government or business organization has used the method on a fairly large scale, he believes.

For $65 each, the state converts conventional typewriters to the Dvorak keyboard, Christensen said. So far some 40 typewriters have been switched over and he expects the financial and production benefits to far outweigh the costs.

"Higher productivity is the only reason we went into it," he said. It's too early to tell how well all the employees are doing, but production was up 18 percent with employees in a pilot project Lessley started in the state Public Employees Retirement System.

Already the fledgling group has had inquiries from Australia, England and firms such as Readers' Digest, which are interested in the Dvorak system.

Self-serve electronic pumps will dispense $1 a gallon gas

By LEROY ADAMS
FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — The way America fills its gas tank is changing and so is the service station pump.

"Before long, many service stations will become just gasoline pumping depots," said J. J. Guidrey, president and chairman of Tokheim Corp., one of the nation's largest pump manufacturers.

"There won't be as many places that have mechanics or other auto services won't have gas."

One indication of the trend is the "computerized" pump that shows gallons and price on digital displays — the electronic numbers found on calculators and watches. They are now found in stations from coast-to-coast, Guidrey said, although more are concentrated in the western states.

The new pumps can be programmed to dispense gas and even collect money — as coin-operated vendors or minicomputers which accept a credit card and print out a receipt. Guidrey said the devices are almost tamperproof.

"One attendant can supervise more than a dozen pumps from a control booth and never have to get out to wipe a window or take out an oil dipstick."

Guidrey's Fort Wayne-based corporation got into the pumping business at the turn of the century with the development of the automobile. The company turned to the latest electronic developments when changes in the availability and marketing of petroleum products created a need for new methods for handling gasoline and oil.

"From information at our disposal, it is our considered opinion that electronic dispensing and computing devices will completely replace mechanical gasoline computing pumps in new installations by the early 1980s," Guidrey said. "From our standpoint the market for our self-serve electronic equipment would appear to have almost unlimited potential."

"Another reason is the very real possibility of a rise in the price of gasoline to more than $1 per gallon in the near future. I believe that possibility should be considered a probability with the only question remaining being when."

When the price hits $1, Guidrey believes, the U.S. motorist will finally be forced by necessity to conserve.

Guidrey said the company's primary business line likely will continue to be fuel pumps although there is room to move into such areas as meters for oil tankers or pipelines. He would like to see American gasoline sold by the liter — the metric equivalent of a quart.

"We think the better solution to this dilemma would be a system which is so common in the rest of the world. However, the Federal Energy Agency, for psychological reasons, might insist that the unit of measurement remain in gallons since $1 a gallon sounds a lot higher than its equivalent of 26 cents a liter."

Guidrey said the company also is involved in development of intake fuel pumps for passenger cars.

"In order to meet the fuel emissions requirements of the EPA and the improvement in fuel economy," he said, "the major automobile manufacturers are looking to new electronic fueling systems."

He said most would need high pressure fuel pumps similar to those his company developed previously. He said the firm was under contract to supply test units for one automaker late this year.

The market for such devices, he said, could amount to $100 million to $200 million early in the 1980s.

Reynolds: king of the box office

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The king of the box office for 1978 is Burt Reynolds, whose performances in "Semi-Tough," "The End" and "Hooper" made him the most popular movie star in America this year.

Reynolds, who played Sylvester Stallone, last year's box-office monarch, and Robert Redford, who headed the bucks brigade in 1976.

The box-office champions are determined annually by the Quigly Publications poll of theater owners, gimlet-eyed and gentle. Reynolds' 33rd year was a triumph for his thespian excellence.

His only measure of excellence is the tinkle of the cash register. And Reynolds, playing a raffish good old boy, made more millions for the guys who operate theaters than any other star.

In addition to Reynolds' trio of hits, there was also the greenback fallout from "Smoky and the Bandit" which is still playing in scores of theaters. "Smoky" is a low budget chase thriller that ranks among the top 10 box-office films of all time.

Following Reynolds in the 1978 box-office parade is newcomer John Travolta, thanks to "Saturday Night Fever" and "Grease." No. 3 in the poll was Richard Dreyfuss, Warren Beatty ("Heaven Can Wait") was fourth.

Clint Eastwood, a perennial, was fifth. Rounding out the top 10 of this year's box-office champs, in order, are Woody Allen, Diane Keaton, Jane Fonda, Peter Sellers and Barbra Streisand. Stallone, it should be noted, plummeted off the list altogether. Redford, too, was missing, along with Mel Brooks, who was seventh last year, Al Pacino, eighth in 1977, and Robert De Niro, 10th.

For the first time since 1966 three female stars made the top 10 winners. Last year Streisand and Keaton were the only actresses represented.

Reynolds demonstrated his staying power and rising popularity with filmgoers by attaining the top spot. In the 1977 poll he was ranked fourth. In 1976 he was sixth and in 1975 and 1974 he was seventh.

In all, Reynolds has scored in the top 10 for six consecutive years.

This accomplishment doesn't rank him among the all-time leaders in the 47 years the poll has been conducted, however.

Eastwood has been a regular on the poll for the past 10 years, including No. 1 in 1973 and 1974.

Charles Bronson, a long-time poll favorite, failed to make the grade for the second year. Previously he had racked up four straight appearances.

The poll, of course, doesn't necessarily deal with public popularity of a particular star. Box-office winners generally are those fortunate few who wind up in a hit picture.

Curiously, Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher and Harrison Ford, the stars of the greatest box-office picture of all time, "Star Wars" ($250 million), never made the poll.

Although Jack Nicholson has a large following, few of his pictures ever shake the box office, excepting "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" which placed him eighth in the 1974 poll.

John Wayne leads all other performers for number of appearances on the list of boxoffice champions. He also covers 87 Duke appearances in the winners 25 times from 1949 through 1974. He was No. 1 on four separate occasions.

Doris Day, with 10 appearances on the poll, is the most popular box-office actress on record. She was No. 1 for four years from 1960-1964.

Shirley Temple enjoyed a four-year stay at the top of the poll from 1935-1938. She dropped down to No. 5 in 1939 and disappeared from the poll forever in 1940.

Some stars made solo appearances in the poll after enjoying a single hit picture and then were never seen on the boxoffice lists again.

All the same, the public is extraordinarily loyal to its film favorites. Such stars as Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson, Humphrey Bogart, Martin and Lewis, James Stewart and Paul Newman appeared in the poll year after year.

'Dorian Gray' artist has special exhibit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Flanked by two attractive girls, Ivan Albright posed for a souvenir snapshot for an admirer in front of his famed painting, "A Picture of Dorian Gray."

The sprightly gnome of a man wore a big smile. His voice cackled with delight. On the wall behind the artist was his portrait of Dorian Gray, the face wrinkled like a prune, the eyes sunken and staring, the sins of a lifetime reflected in the wrinkled skin.

It is hard to imagine that the cheerful, bubbly Albright, 81, painted the grotesque portrait used in the 1940s movie based on Oscar Wilde's story about an evil man who remains youthful while his portrait ages.

Albright, who has been called one of the most distinguished artists of this century, seems to specialize in what most consider the macabre.

His paintings often depict somber women with huge, fatlayered legs and sagging breasts and chiseled men, who seem sad at how life has treated them.

"Some people have called them ugly," Albright said in an interview at the opening of a special exhibit of his works at the Chicago Art Institute.

"But I don't like to use the word beautiful and ugly — everything is nature, pieces of nature. You make people the way they are — human. Decay is just as beautiful as the thing they call beautiful." Albright said his goal is to capture nature on canvas as realistically as possible — the motion of things and their interplay caused by light and varying perspectives.

"When you walk around the room you see things from different angles," he said, running around a chair to illustrate his point. "You see how it looks different from different angles. Well, that's what I'm trying to do. I try and get at a painting from all positions — that's more life-like. Otherwise it's just a photograph."

"People are used to the old-fashioned paintings, static things. But that isn't the way nature really is — it's not a vacuum. The only thing normal in life is change. Everything is in motion, down to the atoms."

Albright labors over his paintings, compiling pages of notes and sketches.

He spent 20 years on one, including whole days to draw half-inch square sections of the canvas. His paintings are minutely detailed — in the light, every whisker on a face, sag in the flesh, or detail of an object can be seen.

"Light bares all," he said. "Many people think it can even be cruel."

Albright developed a "machinegun" easel that swivels around to a variety of directions on the canvas. In some works, he tantalizes the viewer by showing only a portion of an object.

"It is more mystifying often not to show a whole object, to leave it to the imagination; it's the same with a girl," he said, with a wink. "Sometimes you'd rather have clothes on a girl and leave what's under to the imagination."

Albright, son of an artist, was raised in Illinois. Many of his works were done in the Chicago area. He now lives in Woodstock, Vt.

His works have shocked some viewers. Protesters at one exhibit in the 1920s called for his paintings to be taken down. But his popularity grew, his works now hang in museums across the country and a new book has been written about him.

In the 1940s he was called to Hollywood to paint "The Picture of Dorian Gray" for MGM for $75,000.

"I worked on it for a year," he said. "I had a studio and each morning I saw Elizabeth Taylor. I think she was filming 'National Velvet' then. It was hard using actors as models. They like to talk and look at themselves and they're always fidgeting."

Albright painted under a spotlight because, when filmed, the painting was to be under spotlights.

"You see how it looks more colorful under a light," he said, shifting a small book reproduction of the painting under a lamp and smiling as the colors seemed to dance off the page.

Albright used both Hurd Hatfield, the film's star, and a stand-in as models. Two dummies were burned to get models of an aged torso.

Hollywood magic — fake blood and rubber cobwebs supplied by the studio — weren't adequate for him, Albright said.

"I wanted real cobwebs and asked for chicken blood, and you see 141 x on the model," he said. "In Hollywood they can make anything imitation, you know. But I don't want to paint anything false unless I have to."

Albright said many persons think his work grotesque, but added people "come — and come again to look at the paintings."

"They try and catalog it," he laughed. "but I've never been in a particular style. If you paint 'modern' it will go out of style. I just try to paint what I want."

For 14 months recently Albright was virtually blind from cataracts. Yet, he painted two 15 c u

"I couldn't see anything a few feet away from me. I was legally blind and when you're an artist and blind you're dead."

"Now I'm going to continue to work till I drop. I feel like 35."

"You know how Picasso had his Blue Period? I'm going to call this my (Norman) Jaffe period. He's the doctor that restored my eyesight."

The obvious question for such a man, seemingly so happy-golucky despite his recent flirtation with blindness, is why has he made paintings considered gloomy by so many? Why no pictures of smiling people; why is his self-portrait unsmiling, the face set rock-hard, especially since he seems to smile so much?

"I don't want to paint smiling people," he said. "It's what I want to paint. I don't see the gloominess." Engigmatically, he added, "There are no answers to some things."

At the end of the interview, he jovially escorted a reporter from his hotel room and handed him photocopied pages of his art notebooks.

One passage reads: "Art is a book exposing only the artist himself — who he is, what he thinks. Art is his psychoanalysis and he is his own psychiatrist — his life experience — the theme he works with."

Platform tennis Racquet game for winter

These days Clark Graebner is more the 7 a.m. commuter from Connecticut than the terror of the international tennis set. But the 34-year-old sales vice president of a paper company refuses to relinquish the sport. He utilizes his excess energy in strengthening the prestige of the Passport Platform Tennis Grand Prix circuit.

"I'm still learning the nuances of the game," Graebner admits, "but it's a racquet and a ball and it's fairly similar to regular tennis."

Platform tennis has three basic characteristics which distinguish it from regular tennis: a smaller playing area, a 12-foot high wire screen surrounding the court and a single serve. The small court size makes it easy to cover, while the screened walls give the players a second chance to hit the ball, meaning that if a ball is hit through a doubles team, they can play the shot after it rebounds off the back or side screen.

The one serve places a premium on accuracy and not power. The racquet is a wooden paddle as opposed to a strung racquet. The ball, hard and spongy, is the same size as a regulation tennis ball.

Graebner stresses that much more patience is involved in platform tennis because of the nature of the game.

"You must learn to hit down on the ball and play much more aggressively because of the shorter distance between connecting point and the baseline on the opposite side. Getting used to handling a woodenfaced paddle was not difficult."

"Deftness of touch is necessary for control, but brute force must also be used when the occasion warrants. Plus the consistency of lobbing, which is always a strong point, whether it's platform or regular tennis."

Although it does not have the general popularity of tennis, platform tennis does offer Graebner benefits he appreciates.

"Platform is a fun sport that keeps me in a competitive atmosphere. We get to meet and play with enjoyable people, both during tournaments and practice, and that's a real plus. Of course, there's money to be won on the tour, and my visibility playing platform tennis helps me 3 e 3es7, npihpphp i more popular for a number of reasons," Graebner says. "First of all, you can get outdoors in the winter and play a racquet game. It's a very nice social activity that can be played quickly — and by people of different abilities."

Graebner, who helped the United States beat Australia in the 1968 Davis Cup Challenge Round by winning two singles matches — an 8-10, 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1 marathon victory over Bill Bowrey and a 3-6, 8-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over n9as$ a 2 e 5ddoug fic world champion, Russell invited Graebner to play a tournament with him in Boston two seasons ago. Although the team lost in the semi-finals, Russell asked the far-less experienced Graebner to be his permanent partner at the beginning of the 1977-78 campaign. The partnership improved as the season progressed, and Graebner-Russell capped off the year with a victory in the prestigious Passport Scotch Classic.

"Doug is a very artistic and creative player," Graebner points out. "What he may lack in power he more than makes up for in finesse. His knowledge of the game is exceptional, and he is particularly adept at hitting the ball off the screen."

Never an admirer of mediocrity, Graebner claims there is satisfaction playing platform tennis. He can't get used to playing outdoors in sub-freezing weather but believes this is sometimes necessary because of the game's value as a social vehicle.

What type of person with tennis background is attracted to the platform variety?

"People like myself, Herb Fitz Gibbon, Butch Seewagen," Graebner answers. "We're slightly over the hill for regular tennis, but just right for this game."

Graebner manages to sneak in some tournament tennis in the 35-and-over bracket, or perhaps play in the U.S. Open doubles, but there's almost no room for him in the big money singles at Wimbledon or Flushing Meadows, N.Y., where computerized rankings of regular players make it difficult for others to get into the draw.

"Besides, you can't have two masters," Graebner says. "It's either tennis or the business world for me. I chose to retire from the tennis world as a day-to-day player two or three years ago to support my wife and four children."

Graebner calls tennis a cruel taskmaster that takes its toll on a person physically and ment 3 3 u, 3185 9840 885 9825 3538'er ranking pro, Carole Graebner.

What's important for Graebner is that once he gets involved there's no shortcut to success. Platform tennis may be a fun venture but still he's taking it seriously enough to think in terms of championship playoffs.

ACT study shows TV ads conflict with US dietary goals

According to a study commissioned by Action for Children's Television (ACT), nearly 60 percent of all commercials directed to children are for food products that conflict with one or more of the "Dietary Goals for the United States" established by the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

The two-part report, prepared by Earle Barcus and Lucille McLaughlin of Boston University, was submitted to the Federal Trade Commission last month as part of ACT's formal comments on the agency's proposed restrictions of children's television advertising.

"Food Advertising on Children's Television: An Analysis of Appeals and Nutritional Content" consists of an analysis of food advertising shown during 33 hours of children's programming broadcast on six Boston Stations in June 1978 (Barcus), as well as a breakdown of the nutritional values of the products (McLaughlin).

Traveling Meals brightens holidays

Traveling Meals of Newton's volunteer drivers made Christmas a special day for many of the city's sick and elderly. With each of the 21 holiday dinners they brought a gift prepared by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Most important, the volunteers gave up part of their own holiday to show love and friendship to those they visited. For many, the Traveling Meals driver was their only caller of the day.

Each house already bore one sign of community caring. On Friday, the usual delivery of a hot dinner and cold supper was accompanied by a package from the Newton Highlands Garden Club. Inside each package was a plant, an original decoration, and a card with warm greetings for the holiday season.

Meals of regular recipients who were away for the holiday were offered to other sick, elderly, or handicapped Newton residents who otherwise would have had no holiday dinner.

Traveling Meals, a nonprofit organization sponsored by the churches and temples of Newton Centre, has made over 9000 deliveries this year. Since each delivery contains both dinner and supper, that accounts for over 18,000 meals. Drivers volunteered over 3000 hours of their time to achieve this goal.

They are enthusiastic and devoted as evidenced by the number who asked for the Dec. 25 assignment. Thomas Brehm, coordinator for Traveling Meals, said.

Mrs. Kae Bowes, president of Traveling Meals, added that the United Overton Corp. on Needham Street, Newton Highlands, made a donation to Traveling Meals instead of having a Christmas party.

Among Barcus's findings were that:

— Sugared cereals, candy bars, packaged candies, cakes and cookies accounted for more than one-half of all food product ads;

— Although sugared foods are less likely to promote tooth decay if they are consumed as dessert rather than between meals, candies and other sweets are never shown being consumed at mealtime, but are eaten as between-meal snacks;

— Commercially rarely provide specific product information. Ingredients are revealed rather obliquely through "names and claims" and by references to "flavors, sweet compounds, frostings, caramel, honey, and chocolate."

— Fruits, fruit juices, vegetables, meats, breads, and dairy products were rarely advertised during a sample viewing period and never comprised more than 3 percent of all food.

The second half of the report contains a nutritional analysis of TV-advertised foods, conducted by Lucille McLaughlin of Boston University's Sargent College of Allied Health Professions, who compared product claims and nutrient content with the dietary goals recommended by the Senate committee.

Ms. McLaughlin found that while the dietary goals suggest that Americans should "decrease consumption of refined and other processed sugars and foods high in such sugars," all but 10 percent of the food commercials directed to children "promote the use of sugary products."

An analysis of product ingredient data revealed that "45 to 50 percent of

Ink Washes on display at Free Library

Artist Renee Rubin of Newton is exhibiting Ink Washes at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Jan. 8-Feb. 4. A reception for the artist will be held Tuesday, Jan. 9, 7:30-9 p.m.

Marshes are a frequent theme in Rubin's work. She paints marshes in all seasons, at different times of day, simplifying what she sees into basic shapes and patterns.

Using Japanese papers and various inks, including three different shades of brown, and some black, Rubin manipulates the warm and cool colors, to achieve different effects. She also utilizes the effects of the absorbency of the paper. Quick, obvious brushstrokes, sometimes narrow, often bold, are this artist's mark and indicate her ability to capture the scene with spontaneity.

Rubin, who was born in New York City, attended Mt. Holyoke College and was graduated from Jackson College in 1961. She has also participated in several Radcliffe seminars. She is presently co-coordinator at the Boston Visual Artists Union Gallery.

Main Library hours are Mon.-Fri. 9-5; Sat. 9-5; Sun. 1-5 p.m. The Library will be closed Mon., Jan. 15, Martin Luther King Day. For more information call 552-7145.

One of the basic terms to become familiar with in home decor is the term "scale." Scale refers both to the total form and mass of the object, and its relationship to the size of the room. Scale is also the relationship of each piece as compared to the sizes of other furniture in the same room. If you are one of the newlywed set living in a small apartment, stop considering (for the moment, at least) the purchase of an enormous overstuffed sofa. Instead look for a piece with slim lines. On the other hand, if your home is of heroic proportions, think several times before purchasing dainty little gift chairs.

Travel See Europe the way Europeans do

Travel The Convenient Route
There is no better way to travel the length and breadth of Europe than by train.

The entire continent is criss-crossed by train tracks. Locals, expresses and everything in-between run regularly to just about every place you can imagine.

Trains are prompt, comfortable, clean, convenient, and the most economical way to travel about Europe. Terminals are centrally located as a rule, so that in most cities a five or ten-minute ride suffices to carry the passenger to and from his or her hotel.

See the country
Best of all, train travel provides the tourist with a terrific opportunity to see long stretches of European countryside, and to meet and get to know Europeans.

A train station in a European city is a marvel, an immense beehive of activity, that is a social center as well as a point of departure.

Under one roof, the typical train station will incorporate every imaginable sort of establishment. Shops offering a wide selection of merchandise line long arcades.

There are chapels in many stations, plus post offices, tourist and hotel information desks, police stations, barber shops and beauty salons, even places where the tired traveler can stop for a refreshing bath or a shower between trains.

The hungry traveler can choose from a variety of eateries which range from cafes and cafeterias offering quick drinks and snacks, to excellent restaurants where a leisurely dinner, accompanied by an excellent bottle of wine, would be in order.

Picnic en route
Most long distance trains offer restaurant cars, though many Europeans prefer to pack a picnic, or to buy sandwiches, drinks, and even hot meals from vendors in the stations they pass through en route.

The best and most economical way to make use of this excellent system of train travel on a wide scale is to purchase a Eurailpass or Eurail Youthpass before leaving home. (They cannot be purchased abroad.)

Freewheeling travel
These passes allow their holders unlimited travel on the trains of 15 countries: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and, for the first time, Greece and Finland.

The Eurailpass is good for first-class travel (including TEE at no extra charge, though sleeping accommodations are always extra), for as short a period as 15 days or as long as three months, depending on the pass you shop for.

The Youthpass is good for second class travel only, and is available only on a two-month basis, to people under the age of 26.

Bargain bonuses
In addition, the possession of either of these passes entitles the holder to certain bonuses. A number of steamship and bus lines offer free passage or passage at a reduced rate to the holders of these passes.

For instance, steamers on many Swiss and Austrian lakes carry pass holders for free, as do many ferries plying the sea between Germany and Scandinavia, and those which shuttle between Greece and Italy (Brindisi-Corfu-Patras or vice-versa on the Adriatic and Hellenic Mediterranean Lines), though cabin space, if desired, is charged at full fare.

VACATION TRAVEL GUIDE

Joggers and cyclists should be easy to see

Chief William F. Quinn has issued a winter advisory to runners, joggers and cyclists.
 Too many are out in the dark without any identifiable clothing and are using the roadways, the chief said.

Motorists complain that they come very close to both runners and cyclists before they can be seen.

Some complaints indicate that runners are running with the flow of traffic and are extremely vulnerable.

Chief Quinn said, "We encourage our runners to use sidewalks when possible, or where sidewalks are unsuitable, to run facing traffic in order to step off the roadway at the approach of oncoming cars.

"Cyclists should remain with the flow of traffic. Both cyclists and joggers should wear some form of reflectorized material for their own protection.

The chief added, "Both cyclists and runners should exercise greater caution due to the snow and ice that we normally experience during the winter months. Prudence and physical health should go hand in hand when runners and cyclists are using roadways."

Scouting News

Cub Scouting is alive and doing well despite the loss of enrollment in the schools. While other organizations are feeling the drop in enrollment, the Cub Scout program in the Norumbega Council is going stronger than ever before. Norumbega Council, serving Newton, Wellesley and Weston, has all of its volunteers to thank for the success of the Cub program. There are 24 Cub Packs in Newton. Every elementary school has a pack connected with it, and a few more are sponsored by churches or temples. Boys in grades 3 through 5 or who are 8, 9, and 10 years old are eligible to join.

The program is especially designed for boys in that age group, and with the help of their parents and leaders they can develop self-confidence, self-reliance and the ability to get along with other boys their age and also achieve strong moral values.

Listed below are the packs, their sponsors and leaders:

Pack 205, Bowen School, Bruce Parker
 Pack 208, Union Church in Waban, Howard Wishnie
 Pack 210, Beethoven School, Dr. Robert L. Trelstad
 Pack 217, Temple Emanuel, Dr. Steven E. Anapolle

OBITUARIES

Paul Geary

A funeral mass was celebrated Tuesday (Jan. 2) in Our Lady's Church for Paul L. Geary.

Mr. Geary, 73, of Newton, died Friday (Dec. 29, 1978) in a Brighton nursing home after a short illness.

A lifelong resident of Newton, Mr. Geary worked for the Homer Wool Co. before retiring.

Joseph Hospod

Joseph A. Hospod, 80, of West Newton, died Monday (Jan. 1) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

A funeral mass was said for him Thursday (Jan. 4) in St. Bernard's Church. Burial is in St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

Mr. Hospod worked as a laborer for the City of Newton and retired in 1968. He had lived in Newton for the last 48 years.

He is survived by his son, Stanley of Poland; two daughters, Helen Labaza of New Jersey and Amelia Pieszcchala of Jamaica, N.Y., and several grandchildren.

Emanuel Civetti

A funeral mass was said Wednesday (Jan. 3) in Our Lady's Church for Emanuel "Manny" Civetti.

Mr. Civetti, 57, of Newton, died Saturday (Dec. 30, 1978) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

He was a native of Newton and lifelong resident. Mr. Civetti had been employed for the past 24 years with the City of Newton in the auto repair department as a mechanic and working foreman.

During World War II, he served three years with the 69th Naval Construction Battalion.

Mr. Civetti was a member of American Legion Post 440 and an executive board member of Local No. 800 of the State, County and Municipal Employees Union.

Mr. Civetti is survived by his mother, Mrs. Anna Maria Civetti; his wife, Mrs. Lorraine Civetti; four brothers, Ferdinand of Wellesley, Michael of Bedford, Dante of New Mexico and Richard of Newton; and his sister, Mrs. Yolanda Boucher of Newton.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Albert Beatrice

The funeral of Albert J. Beatrice was held Wednesday (Jan. 3) in Our Lady's Church.

Mr. Beatrice, 69, of Newton, died Sunday (Dec. 31, 1978) at the Sidney Farber Research Institute after a long illness.

For 35 years Mr. Beatrice was employed by the James H. Boyle Plastering Co. of Everett.

He was a member of Our Lady's Holy Name Society, the Knights of Columbus of Brighton and the Sons of Italy of Watertown. He was also an associate member of American Legion Post 440.

Mr. Beatrice is survived by his wife, Mrs. Angelina Beatrice; two sons, Albert Jr. and Richard F. of Newton; four daughters, Mrs. Emily Manning, Mrs. Jo Ann Boudreau and Rita Kelly, all of Newton; three brothers, Anthony Beatrice and Elmer DiCicco, both of Brighton, and Theodore DiCicco of Watertown; 22 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He was also the father of the late Theodore Beatrice.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Wheaton Kittredge

Services were held Tuesday (Jan. 2) in Pittman Chapel, Forest Hills Cemetery, for Wheaton Kittredge Jr.

Mr. Kittredge, 69, formerly of Chestnut Hill, died Saturday (Dec. 30, 1978) in Massachusetts General Hospital after a long illness.

A graduate of Noble &amp; Greenough School in Dedham, Mr. Kittredge received his degree at Williams College in 1933. He was prominent for many years in the Boston wool trade and worked for the Arlington Mills in Lawrence and as vice president of the Francis Willey Co. in Boston.

After retiring, Mr. Kittredge moved to Pinehurst, N.C., to pursue his enthusiasm for golf. He became an active participant in the U.S. Men's Seniors Golfing Association and was active in the Tin Whistle Club of Pinehurst.

Mr. Kittredge is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Kittredge; four children, Wheaton III of Santa Barbara, Calif.; Mrs. Kenneth Peterson of Brooklyn, N.Y.; William of Franklin and Mrs. David Parrott of North Falmouth; three stepchildren, the Rev. Frank Potter, Kentfield, Calif.; Martha Freebairn-Smith of Muir Beach, Calif.; and Mrs. Walter B. Saxe of Newton; and 20 grandchildren and step-grandchildren.

Charles S. Grover

A memorial service was to be held Friday (Jan. 5) in Auburndale Congregational Church for Charles S. Grover.

Mr. Grover, 90, of Auburndale, died Saturday (Dec. 30, 1978) at home after a short illness.

A patent attorney for more than 50 years, Mr. Grover was with the Boston firm of Roberts, Cushman and Grover for 55 years and had obtained many patents during his career, including one for technicolor film and others on the Thompson submachine gun and Johnson automatic rifle.

He later became a director of Technicolor Corp. and obtained subsequent patents for the company until his retirement in 1971.

Mr. Grover had served as a member of the Newton Board of Appeals. He was a trustee of the Johnson Patent Trust and of Garland Junior College. He was also an original member of the Brae Burn Country Club.

Husband of the late Mary Louise Grover, Mr. Grover is survived by two sons, James of Sharon and Stuart of Lincoln; and six grandchildren.

Margaret Spera

A memorial mass will be held Saturday, Jan. 13, for Margaret (Burley) Spera.

The mass will be at 11 a.m. in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church, Newton Upper Falls.

Mrs. Spera, 53, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., died Dec. 18, 1978, there.

A native of Newton, she was a longtime resident of Newton and Needham and a graduate of Newton High School.

Mrs. Spera is survived by her husband, Jildo J.; a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Wiley; a sister, Mrs. Katherine Walker of Newton Upper Falls; and two grandchildren.

Refuge for battered wives

The home is a quiet rural area south of Ann Arbor is the biggest domestic assault shelter in Michigan. It is one of about 30 such permanent shelters in the United States, says Kathy Fotjik, director of the Ann Arbor-based National Technical Assistance Program on Family Violence.

Residents call the mansion Safe House. Its address is kept secret as a strictly enforced security measure designed to protect the residents — battered wives and children — from further physical harm.

At any one time as many as 32 women and children may be living there. Women learn about the center from cryptic newspaper advertisements or are referred by social service agencies.

Safe House provides its residents with counseling and referral for emotional, medical, legal and financial problems.

Each woman, when she checks in, signs a contract promising never to reveal the mansion's address.

House rules say: no alcohol, no drugs, no violence.

Cindy and her four children — the oldest 10, the youngest 3 months — sought refuge at Safe House after occasional slaps from her husband escalated into vicious beatings.

"He hit me when I was pregnant," said the fitgdy 28-year-old redhead. "I went for a checkup once with my arm just one giant bruise. In TV referring to a crisis center. Then someone at the state fair handed my son a packet with a phone number on it — but my husband ripped it up."

Cindy's children and their playmates at the shelter hike through the apple orchard on the 10-acre property. They hang drawings on the dining room walls. They attend a nearby public school.

Youngsters generally find it more difficult than their mothers to settle into the alien surroundings so briefly.

"The schools in the area don't like it. They find it's disruptive, bringing kids in and out. And the children aren't allowed to tell anyone where they live."

Safe House will be one year old in March. Local, state and private funding pay the $1,100-a-month rent and other expenses for the property. Women residents with jobs pay per diem fees based on their income, but most residents are welfare recipients.

Most of Michigan's facilities for battered wives and children provide only temporary refuge at hotels, motels or homes of volunteers. Only Ann Arbor and Muskegon have permanent shelters.

When women ask about Safe House, they are told to bring their children's school and medical records, checkbooks, insurance documents and — if possible — a photograph of the husband or boy friend they are seeking protection from.

The photo is hung on a board in the office so women know whom to be on the lookout for.

"At least most women choose to start divorce action," said coordinator Lorraine Lafata. "We've never had a woman who's chosen to prosecute — not that we'd discourage it."

"Our ultimate goal is to provide options for women, not to force them to make a particula eecce 5"nn homes. We just want to help them make a decision."

Most battered wives bring two or three children, but some arrive with as many as seven.

"That's a big factor in why women stay with their husbands," Ms. Lafata said. "They don't want to leave their children."

She said w;her children along if they hope to win permanent custody.

With only two days left at Safe House, Cindy had the rest of her life more or less mapped out.

"I want the children," she said. "And, after six years of marriage, I want a divorce."

"I'm going on ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) for a while, then I'm getting work. I want to wait until the baby's a little bigger."

ATT's Charles L. Brown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Under his earnings rose to $6.97 a share from $4.34, revenues soared to more than $37 billion from around $21 billion and the quarterly dividend was increased five times.

DeButts is big, broad-shouldered, ebullient, somewhat overpowering. Brown is a private person who displays a reserve bordering almost on shyness, and is lean and softspoken.

But Brown — and this may be a clue to his choice — is as fiercely competitive as his predecessor. De Butts' competitiveness translated into a near-pugilistic stance which made enemies in Washington. Associates of Brown suggest he is more of a compromiser, willing to give a little if he can achieve a lot.

The company faces a stern future. In a few years a Justice Department action is expected to come to trial, determining whether the Bell system must give up the manufacturing end of its business.

Andrew McGlinchey

A funeral mass was celebrated Tuesday (Jan. 2) in Our Lady's Church for Andrew A. McGlinchey.

Mr. McGlinchey, 65, a resident of Newton for more than 40 years, died Saturday (Dec. 30, 1978) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. McGlinchey had been with Raytheon as a business agent for 32 years and was a member of Local No. 1505, IBEW, Waltham.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Fannie McGlinchey of Newton; his wife, Anna M. McGlinchey; two sons, Harold of Waban and Hugh of Framingham; a daughter, Mrs. Cheryl Richardson of Stoughton; a brother, Edward J. of Warwick, R.I.; and seven grandchildren.

Thomas H. Brooks

A funeral mass was celebrated Tuesday (Jan. 2) in Our Lady's Church for Thomas H. Brooks.

Mr. Brooks, 88, of Newton, died Friday (Dec. 29, 1978) in Framingham Union Hospital after a long illness.

Until he retired in 1955, Mr. Brooks was an assembler at the Ford Motor Co. plant in Natick for 35 years.

Husband of the late

Virginia Brooks and the late Signe Brooks, he is survived by three sons, Thomas H. of Framingham, Joseph F. of Waltham, and John W. of Billerica; three daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Anderson of Chelmsford, Mrs. Helen Porter of Lunenburg and Signe of Framingham; 22 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Agnes Korthy

A memorial service will be held Sunday (Jan. 7) at 3 p.m. at the First Unitarian Society of Newton, West Newton, for Agnes (Klein) Korthy.

Mrs. Korthy, 58, of Auburndale, died Tuesday (Jan. 2) in University Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

Born in Hungary, Mrs. Korthy received a master of science degree from the University of Budapest and taught there until 1956.

After the 1956 uprising in Hungary, Mrs. Korthy came to the United States.

She joined the Veterans Administration as a research biologist in 1959 and was stationed at the VA Center in Wood, Wis., from 1959 to 1968. She worked at the Boston VA Medical Center from 1968 until she retired in May 1978. In Boston, she did research in the field of lung diseases.

Mrs. Korthy was a member and elder of the Unitarian Church in West Newton.

She is survived by a son, Gabor of Roslindale; and a daughter, Mrs. Andrea Burnett of Chicago.

Donations in her memory can be made to the Cancer Research Fund and sent in care of: Dr. P. Mozen, University Hospital, 75 East Newton St., Boston, Mass. 02118.

Margaret Spera

TECHNICIANS, ASSEMBLERS: SATURDAY, JANUARY 6, 1979 COULD BE YOUR BEST NEW YEAR'S FOR YEARS TO COME.

That's when Analog Devices is holding a special New Year's Open House for Electronic Technicians and Assemblers at our Group Headquarters in Norwood.

Come celebrate the new year with a new career.

On Saturday, January 6, beginning promptly at 8:30 in the morning, our Human Resources Staff and Supervisors from Test, Test Equipment, Quality and Engineering areas will be here to tell you about immediate openings in their departments. You can meet these people, talk with them privately, review our facilities and equipment and enjoy the coffee and pastry.

While you're here you can pick up some literature on Analog Devices. The opportunities we have. The benefits we offer—insurance, retirement, profit sharing and liberal tuition assistance.

And if you're interested, you can get an interview right then and there. No waiting. Analog Devices is looking well into the 1980's. To meet the demands of an expanding future market we're looking for skilled individuals to work with state-of-the-art components, instruments and microprocessor interfacing circuitry—right now.

TEST TECHNICIANS

Must be able to use a wide assortment of test equipment, understand sophisticated analog circuitry and know modern digital techniques. You should have a minimum of one year related experience. Technical or trade school training preferred.

ASSEMBLERS

If you can use a soldering tool, if you are familiar with hand soldering techniques and can work with others, there's opportunity for you at Analog Devices. We will train.

Analog Devices is the Number One company in electronics for precision measurement and control. Our products include many high technology devices used for amplification, isolation and signal conditioning of analog signals; data conversion and data acquisition modules; computer-based instrumentation for process measurement and control. If what you did last year looks like what you'll be doing for years to come, better come to our Open House on Saturday, January 6.

Directions: Route 128 to Route 1 South, one mile to first traffic light (Everett Street). U-Turn, proceed 200 yards North on Route 1 for first street (Walpole Street). Turn right. You're there.

If you can't make our Open House on Saturday, January 6, call: 329-4700 or write Marsha Price to discuss your qualifications for Analog Devices, Inc., Route 1 Industrial Park, Norwood, MA 02062.

Students can audition to sing with choral group

Auditions for the Wellesley Choral Society's Youth Talent Concert will be held Saturday, Jan. 20, at 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Wellesley Junior High School.

Applicants considered for the tryouts include not only Wellesley residents, but also students from the Greater Boston area. Students who participate in the auditions will be judged by a panel of judges, and the winners will be invited to perform at the Youth Talent Concert on Feb. 10 at 3 p.m.

During the 13th Talent Competition Concert, the performers will be judged by another panel of professional judges, and the winner or winners will be again invited to perform at the Wellesley Choral Society's Pops Concert, June 1 and 2.

The Wellesley Choral Society sponsors this concert, in addition to their own four choral performances during each year, to encourage young people who have high levels of ability, talent and interest in music to pursue their musical goals and aspirations.

Applicants interested in auditions should contact Mrs. Charles B. Wallace, 15 Trowbridge Ave., Newtonville, 02160, 332-1819.

What 'Art Week' meant

By VONI WEAVER

As the dust kicked up by Art Week settled to earth, I solicited comments from artists and other interested persons in order to make my contribution to the necessary process of finding out what Art Week, Oct. 14-22 meant, and whether it was worth the effort.

Most artists prefer working to responding surveys, so my sample is brief. Here, then, is some of what's being said in, and around, town.

Thelma Bristle, (Painter): I've talked to friends who had five visitors and friends who had 30 and I had a 112. Never worked harder in my life, except for that time in Toledo. You remember that time in Toledo. You don't? Who is this, anyway?

Bianca Trendy (Multi-media): Art Week? Triffic.

Sotto Walleye (Conceptualist): There was a week?

Derek Galloot (Walleye's partner, or Co-Conceptualist): No kidding, did they say 'week'? We thought it was Art Wok, so we did woks. Big woks, little woks, self-heating woks, shiny woks, thoroughly oxidized woks. Woks on rings and ringless woks and upturned woks and stacked woks. Fun woks. We're through with bricks. No more bricks, you'll want to note that. No sir, it's all woks now. Hanging woks you hit with a stick, woks in maple groves, buried-treasure woks...

Elsmere Chaud (Sculptor): Who dreams up these things?

Riki Famous (Painter-manipulator): Did you see the map? Love that map. I'm keeping it, going to do it as an environment, life size. Get it? Force us all to see where we're at? What we're up for? Down on? Into?

Ira Honeywelle (ceramist): How did I do? (Takes quick inventory) Fine. Sure, I'd be in favor of having one next year. But it wasn't a week. It was 12 days.

Reedy Cryptic (Print-maker): Remember Winterfest? Springfest? Where are the fests of yesteryear? In those days, we had poems from Robert Lowell, Marianne Moore. We had culture. We had brouhaha. What have we got now? Inflation. Violence. Makes you stop and think.

Percival and Priscilla Forty (Gallery owners): What's good for art is good for all of us, but he hasn't called since he won the Sweepstakes.

Roger Frimly (Friend of Artists): Let's see what everybody else said. Tell Thelma I remember that time in Toledo. (Reads on through notes) Nobody said it? So I will. Listen, the best thing about Art Week was the catalogue. Ask anybody.

Anybody? The best thing about Art Week was the catalogue.

Boston Rep offers acting classes

Applications for the Boston Repertory Theatre's professional acting classes will be accepted through Jan. 21. The eight-week courses offer beginning, intermediate and advanced acting classes, with specialized study in voice, mime, dance, and makeup.

The conservatory is also including courses in arts administration, theater history, directing and auditioning.

Classes meet at the Boston Repertory Theatre on Boylston Place in Boston's theater district. Introductory classes are open to anyone, however the advanced subjects require an audition or an interview.

Applications and additional information may be obtained by calling or writing to Nancie Stier, registrar, B.R.T. Conservatory, 1 Boylston Pl., Boston, 02116, 423-6598.

School bus firm folding

The Metropolitan Coach Company, the parent company for Garden City Bus Company that operates school buses in Newton, has announced that it will be going out of business.

The School Department has not been notified of when the company will stop running the buses, but arrangements have been made so no elementary students normally bused will have to walk to and from school.

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius said this week that Benjamin Goodman, manager of the parent company, contacted him about three weeks ago to ask if he could assign his contract to another company.

Goodman could not be reached Tuesday or Wednesday morning for comment.

Cornelius said he has made arrangements to get from seven to 11 buses for the elementary students within a day, and all junior and senior high bus service could be restored within 24 to 48 hours of when Metropolitan Coach goes out of business. About 3000 Newton students are bused.

Contingency plans also call for distributing to secondary schools and private schools route maps of MBTA service. If more buses than are needed for elementary students are available immediately, school buses may be used to beef up service on MBTA routes during school hours.

School bus service was "absolutely horrendous" Monday, Cornelius said, but it was due to buses not starting in the rain, not from a lack of drivers or equipment. Twenty-two of the 45 buses needed for regular service were on the road that day.

The elementary students on Dudley Road and Lagrange Street who are bused to Memorial-Spaulding School were not picked up for three out of the four school days last week, Cornelius said, but that problem has been corrected.

Aldermen end meeting in disarray

By ELIZABETH McKINNON of the Graphic staff

The Board of Aldermen ran wild for three hours in a raucous, disorderly meeting Monday night before putting itself out of its misery by adjourning abruptly with work still to be done.

The night was one long series of challenges of rulings of Board President Matthew Jefferson and bickering among aldermen about fine parliamentary points.

Television cameramen and a newscaster wandering at will among the aldermen's desks while deliberations were going on added to the generally chaotic scene.

The breakdown of decorum began when Ald. Mark White moved to bring up the ordinance to control nuclear shipments through Newton. Board President Jefferson ruled that since the aldermen did not have a copy of the proposed ordinance, there could be no discussion, and White challenged the ruling. The challenge failed overwhelmingly.

The second challenge came from Ald. Richard McGrath on the right of committee chairmen to poll their committees on the floor during a meeting. The subject this time was a decision by two committees not to report favorable votes on the appointment of Treasurer Theodore Scafidi to the vacant position of director of finance until the need for the position is reconsidered.

Jefferson's ruling that the chairmen were within their rights to hold the matter was unsuccessfully challenged by McGrath, himself a committee chairman who has often polled his committee during a full Board meeting.

Ald. Paul Coletti next challenged Jefferson's appointment of a committee to find a new comptroller. Coletti was not made a member of that committee.

Jefferson tried to gavel Coletti into silence as he ruled his challenge and his comments "frivolous" and out of order.

The last straw was a third attempt by Mark White to get the nuclear cargo ordinance discussed. A motion to adjourn, made by Ald. Wendell Bauckman, was quickly approved.

Veteran alderman Robert Tennant commented that never in his memory had a Board adjourned with work still to be done.

The whole Board system seems to be on the verge of a breakdown.

Planners start on development budget

Faced with requests totalling over $4.5 million, the Planning & Development Board began Tuesday night its first phase of whittling down next year's community development budget in the hopes of eventually reaching the $2.3 million level earmarked for the city by the federal government.

The requests include $254,100 from the Human Service Committee for the human service assistance program, $200,000 for neighborhood improvements in Newton Corner, $220,000 for the concentrated block improvement program in Nonantum, $285,000 for neighborhood improvements in West Newton, and $35,000 for an historic district funding program in Upper Falls.

In making its first draft of its cuts, the board waded through the budget figures line by line. It considered how far along in planning each neighborhood is and whether or not each village would be able to use the amount it requested in the next fiscal year.

Other factors considered were the priorities of the neighborhood advisory committees and the board's own priority of emphasizing housing improvements and housing development. For example in examining the figures for the concentrated block improvement program in Newton Corner, the board was most interested in having one block completely improved in the next fiscal year. Newton Corner has chosen Charlesbank Road as first target street for this program. The board feels it is perfect street for beginning the project, but it wants to be sure the idea can work before it undertakes any others. For this reason it tentatively cut the village's allocation for the program from $225,000 to $75,000.

Turning to Nonantum, the board supported the $330,000 for the building fund for the permanent multiservice center. Concern was raised once again that each village may one day request a multiservice center. Perhaps the service center should be made larger than the projected 10,000 square feet to accommodate people from other villages if a bus system ever develops, said board member Ellen Lipson.

With the huge requests equalling about double the amount to be funded, the board was under pressure to make all the cuts it could in its first draft. It is hoping that when the all the figures are added up, the budget will be below the $2.3 target so that at least some of the cuts can be restored.

Such preliminary work on the community development budget is a new activity for the board. Last year this phase was done by the Planning Department.

This year the board also made an effort to speak to members of the Human Service Committee before the budget was completed. Last year, the board was left with many requests to increase the human service allocations, but lacked information from the committee to make any rational changes possible.

The committee requested $43,500 for children services that is for day care scholarships. For youth or adolescent services such as drop-in teen centers and street workers, it asked for $83,500. For elderly services, the committee wants $63,100 and $54,000 for mental health and social services.

One of the big surprises was a $10,000 request to study various possible transportation modes. The committee hopes it will be the beginning of a joint effort between the community development program and the city.

The ultimate $10,000 may be seed money for what may ultimately become a minibus system within the city. Previously, the community development planners in the city have shied away from committing funds to any transportation even though it has been requested at public hearings.

One reason for the reluctance was the restrictions by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the funding agency for the community development program. Specifically, HUD does not allow money to be used in purchasing "rolling stock". Now HUD may be easing up on its regulations concerning transportation said City Planner Stephen Andrews.

Crucial move on South field comes tonight

The Newton South High School football field and track, delayed for more than a year by environmental investigations, got final approval from the School Committee Monday, but faces what may be a fatal delay in the aldermanic chamber.

The School Committee unanimously approved spending $344,000 for the field, track, and fence, more than $90,000 over the $250,000 limit the prior School Committee agreed to for the project.

Mayor Theodore Mann, who voted "present" at the School Committee meeting, has called an emergency meeting of the Board of Aldermen Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to approve the expenditure. Haste is necessary, the mayor feels, because the city has to sign a contract with the low bidder by Jan. 16 unless the bidder agrees to a delay.

Ald. Richard McGrath, chairman of the Public Facilities Committee, said Tuesday afternoon he will "charter" the matter at the special meeting and delay further action until the next meeting of the aldermen.

Ald. McGrath said, "It's a total political move by the mayor to get him off the hook of a political statement he made," referring to the promise to bring in the project at $250,000.

Legally, McGrath said, the $339,000 in an account once established for grounds work at Newton North High School was approved by the aldermen in its entirety to be used for Newton South improvements.

School Committee member Alvin Mandell said Monday night that the $339,000 in the account was all earmarked "for the completion of Newton South High School," and added that it had been drawing 9 percent interest for the city coffers.

Mayor Mann agreed with Mandell that he doesn't have to go back to the Board, but if he and the School Committee don't, "It would be the last time we're going to be able to deal with them with any kind of integrity."

McGrath, who said his committee has never seen the plan being considered, said the mayor "has the dough. Let him go ahead and sign it (the contract)."

The chairman said the mayor wants the Board's approval to "wash his hands" of the commitment he made to the $250,000 limit during an election year.

McGrath also has questions about the need of the facility, why it needs the loan and sod called for in the contract, and who will maintain it.

King appointee cares about environment

By LINDA FRITZ Graphic Correspondent

Contrary to the opinion of many conservationists across the state, the new Massachusetts Secretary of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, John A. Bewick, a Newtonville resident, does have both a background in and a deep concern for environmental affairs.

His critics note that he worked for the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). What they miss is that he supervised a review of the commission's practices to make the AEC more responsive to environmental issues. His report was subsequently endorsed as a model by the Council of Environmental Quality Agencies.

While also at the AEC, he did some work on the Rasmussen study. Although he left before the study was completed, Bewick's critics point to the report as evidence of his support of nuclear energy at the expense of the environment.

They would probably be further concerned to learn that Bewick does agree with the relative findings of the reports. Specifically, the Rasmussen study found nuclear energy as safe as any other danger in modern society. What sort of dangers?

"It is as safe as transporting chlorine or constructing a dam," Bewick said. Nevertheless the tall, spectacled Bewick does not expect nuclear power plants to become a common site throughout the state in the next four years. He knows presently of only one potential plant that will come up for consideration: Plymouth II.

Massachusetts' role in allowing nuclear reactors in an area is relatively minor, Bewick noted. While the state must certify the need, it is the federal government that bears the burden of regulating them, he said. In determining need, Bewick expects the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) to examine the question intensely.

Intense examination of critical issues is a major part of Bewick's background. While he does have a bachelor's in physics and a master's in nuclear science, he has both a master's of business administration and a doctor's of business administration from Harvard Business School in decision theory. This education in decision theory, Bewick said, makes him especially well suited for his new position. It along with his experience in both private industry and in public service in the area of environmental affairs are the reasons, Bewick believes he was selected by Governor Edward King.

Bewick's public service work includes a year with the New York City Environmental Policy Act (EPA) and a stint with the Peace Corps teaching physics in Nigeria. It was while he was in Nigeria that Bewick developed his interest in environmental problems. He did a survey sponsored by his African host nation and Niger on the encroaching desert in northern Nigeria. The impact of the ever expanding desert with its drastic need for water was devastating, Bewick said with a slow but precise speech pattern that typified the entire interview.

Controlling the environment rather than allowing it to waste away was of special concern to Bewick while he worked at the New York City EPA. It was on this job, he said, that he developed his interest in pedestrian malls and urban parks.

A strong state park system is a critical ingredient in the quality of urban life, the secretary said. For this reason, Bewick supports the state "Self Help" programs, which give financial assistance to cities and towns to purchase open space.

As the DEQE secretary, Bewick will have the responsibility of drawing up future budgets for "Self Help" programs. It is his department that will then determine which cities and towns are to win funding.

Newton in the past has used the state "Self Help" programs to purchase conservation lands. It is presently hoping to use it to help pay for a portion of the Noviate property, two lots currently owned by WHDH, and the Suffolk Road lot adjacent to the Houghton Gardens.

In the past "Self Help" money has been used in part to purchase wetlands. Does the Secretary support this practice?

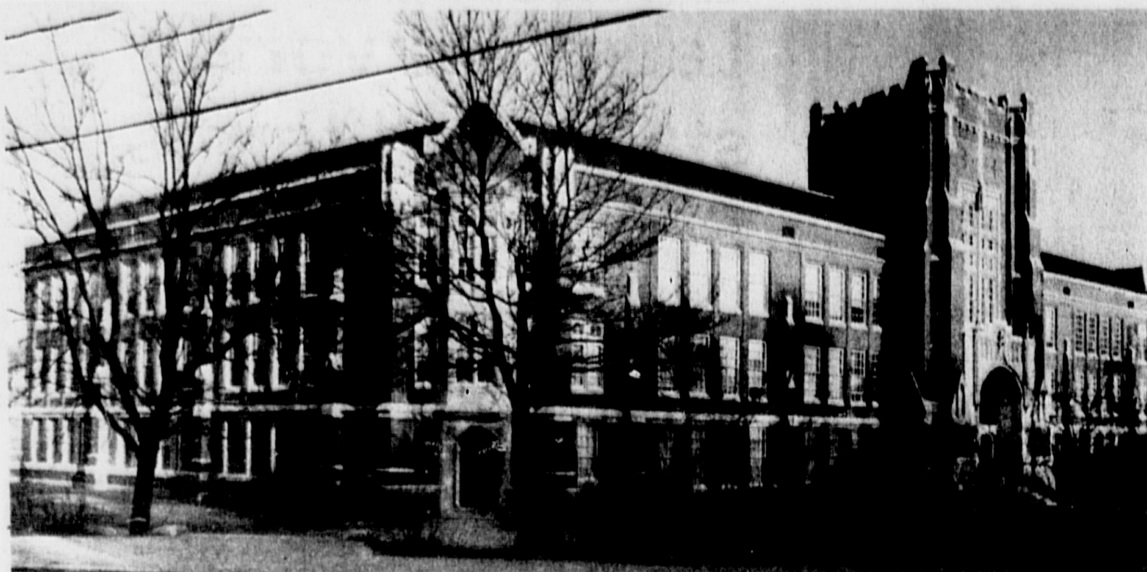

"I feel some wetland areas need to be protected, but I don't know which at this point," he said after several moments of deliberation. Protecting wetlands as opposed to developing them is an area of conflict in this state, Bewick noted. This issue will come under the scrutiny of a special

Weeks Junior High School

Committee discusses future use of Weeks and Emerson schools

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The School Committee voted 8-1 to close Weeks Junior High School in 1981 as it had decided over a year ago, and planning for the reuse of the building has already begun.

Reports of speedier enrollment decline in the junior high school population this fall prompted the Committee to investigate whether the closing of Weeks should be moved up to 1980.

The principals of Weeks, Meadowbrook Junior High, and Newton South High School, all of which will be affected by the closing, spoke out against the earlier closing because of the crowding that would result and the time needed to plan new programs. Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, parents, and students supported the principals.

The Mayor's Committee to Study the Reuse of Weeks had its second meeting in City Hall Tuesday night to begin outlining what the community wants and what is appropriate for the site.

The residents seem strongly opposed to commercial use, including offices and private recreation firms, and any use that would attract teenagers after school.

Robert Cohen, chairman of the committee, said Mayor Theodore Mann has made it very clear that he does not want any municipal use of the building that would add to the city budget. However Ald. Rodney Barker wants to know if the Recreation Department would like to move there from its quarters in Auburndale.

Barker also wants the Human Services Department to survey state and local agencies of their needs, possibly including residences or day care centers for various population groups.

Maureen Bonazoli of Oxford Road, an abutter to the school on Hereward Road, Newton Centre, said she would want to see the property make money for the city.

Jack Simmons from the Planning Department said the city has two to three months to finalize plans for 43 units of elderly housing on Paul Street, across from the Weeks playing fields. If that project falls through, possibly elderly housing could be planned for in the Weeks building or on the site.

Architect Dennis Rieske, a member of the committee, estimated that about 48 units of housing at 1000 square feet each could be accommodated inside the existing building. If the building is razed and the land rezoned for single-family housing, about 14 homes could be built.

One problem yet to be ironed out is how much of the property on the site is designated recreation land and what part is designated for school use. There are state restrictions governing use of recreation land.

Answers from a questionnaire sent to neighbors indicated a need for garden apartments or condominiums in Newton for older residents who want to stay in Newton but do not want to maintain large homes.

The most frequent suggestion for reuse of the building by residents was a library, but the library director and trustees have already decided the building is too big and in the wrong location.

Two committee members will compile the responses to the surveys.

Once the committee has a better feel for what the residents want, it will begin to ask developers to make suggestions about what could be done with the site in keeping with the residents' desires.

Rieske suggested paying a developer to make a detailed survey of the building, copies of which could be sent to other developers who might submit plans for the reuse.

Chairman Cohen wants to talk with developers later to get a general idea of what could be done with the site and what is currently marketable.

The committee will meet again on Tuesday, Jan. 23 at City Hall.

Emerson School

A similar committee to study the reuse of Emerson School has decided that 25 percent of the building is wanted for community use, and the rest should be leased out or converted into housing.

According to architect Dennis Rieske, a member of the Emerson committee, the community wants the gym, the multipurpose room, the library, and space for a day-care center.

Rieske said the building costs about $25,000 a year to operate. Up to 10 condominium units could be built in the space the community doesn't want, and the interest from the sale of the condominiums would be two or three times the cost of running the building.

A representative from Newton-Wellesley Hospital sat in on the Emerson reuse discussions, Rieske said, but declined to make a formal offer to lease the building for its accounting department.

Libraries face cut back in hours

There is bad news in the offing for library users and employees.

Library Director Virginia Tashjian told branch librarians Tuesday morning that because of no-increase '79-'80 budgets required by the mayor's office from all department heads, a general cutback in branch library hours will have to be considered starting in July.

Other bad news is that the library has used a large proportion of its fuel money for the current fiscal year. Mrs. Tashjian has asked the mayor's office for an additional appropriation. If it is not granted, Mrs. Tashjian said, the branches will have to close next month.

Mrs. Tashjian broke the double bad news at a meeting of the Library Trustees last week. The meeting, not a regularly scheduled one, was not posted and was therefore in violation of the state's open meeting law, which requires a notice of meetings of all boards, committees, commissions, and so on to be posted at City Hall at least 48 hours before the meeting.

The fiscal 1980 budget for the library must, by order of the mayor's office, not exceed the amount allowed for fiscal 1979 — $979,365.

Out of this amount must come increases in supplies, utilities and salaries. The FY80 budget must include a negotiated 5 percent increase in salaries.

Besides a general cutback in hours of operation of the branch libraries, elimination of many of the permanent part-time jobs is being considered.

The Library Trustees meet tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. at the Nonantum Branch Library.

City's fuel budgets low

The Library Department is not the only department to feel the pinch of not enough money for fuel.

All departments that use fuel had their fuel allowances cut last year in anticipation of energy savings to be achieved by the Building Department's energy program.

But during those same budget deliberations, the Board of Aldermen cut one of the two positions requested to implement the energy program. Building Commissioner Allan Fraser had promised a $100,000 saving if he were allowed the two positions, which would have cost about $32,000.

Mayor Theodore Mann's chief administrative assistant, Jane Pitt, said this week that departments in need of supplementary appropriations for fuel will get them.

The energy program has concentrated so far mainly on locating and identifying sources of energy waste and loss, but there have been savings realized from it, Ms. Pitt said. The savings will be shown in an "interim report," to be submitted to the Board of Aldermen next week.

The city has also applied to the federal government for energy grants that are available, Ms. Pitt said.

A major problem is that there is no money budgeted for correcting conditions that lead to waste of energy, such as the absence of storm windows in libraries, repairing cracks that admit cold air, lowering chandeliers, and changing heating systems.

The energy inspector, Michael Kuklinski, recently spent the night in City Hall to find out what effect turning the heat down very low at night would have on the daytime temperature of the building.

The School Department, which has its own budget, has projected a $40,000-$50,000 deficit for the year in its fuel account because of a price increase in oil in December.

Sale of key properties off in Newton Corner

The almost certain sale of two Newton Corner properties — the so-called post office block on the east side of Centre Street north of Washington and the Gorin-Leeder building across Centre Street — has fallen through, according to the prospective buyer's lawyer.

Howard Levine, attorney for Jack Marshall, confirmed this week that the sale is not going forward. Marshall was out of town and not available for comment.

The Newton Corner community organizations were pleased at Marshall's apparent purchase of the properties, which many Newton Corner residents have regarded as neglected and eyesores. Marshall had indicated his willingness to work with the community to improve the properties.

The Newton Corner Community Development Corporation had expected to work with Marshall in developing the post office block into housing for the elderly and other community-approved ventures.

School maintenance fund needs increased allocation

The School Department has again found that the city charter limitation on what it can spend on plant maintenance is not enough to do the job.

For the next fiscal year, the School Committee has requested $292,090 be appropriated by the aldermen to perform maintenance work in the schools.

This is in addition to the $694,000 the charter allows the Committee to spend on painting, masonry, glass and other items. That figure amounts to 2 percent of the previous year's total budget.

About $288,000 of the School Department's regular maintenance funds goes to pay 75 percent of the salaries and benefits of Building Department craftsmen and supervisors, who perform work in the schools.

There is $248,000 in regular account for "normal" service contracts, which include $65,000 for glass replacement, $110,000 for heating, ventilating, and air conditioning work, $15,000 for roofing, and $10,000 for graffiti removal.

The supplemental request covers $40,000 worth of painting in eight schools, $8200 for carpet replacement in three schools' and refinishing gym floors in two schools for $8000. Some of the schools involved in these projects are elementary schools north of Washington Street, one or two of which may be closed soon by the Committee.

One project is the rehabilitation of Dickinson Stadium at Newton North High School for $25,000. There will probably be some debate by the aldermen about supplemental funds for this account, since funds for this work are planned to be spent on the Newton South High School athletic facility.

Included in the supplemental request is $5000 to replace the domestic hot water heater at Carr School, where there is hot water only in the winter when the main boiler is on.

Other money is for toilet rehabilitation, masonry, a new locker room floor at Newton North High School for $12,000 because the current one doesn't drain correctly, and $16,000 for locker replacements at Newton North and Newton South high schools.

In addition to the $292,000 for the supplemental maintenance request, the Committee asked the aldermen to note that 10 school parking lots need repair, money for which should be added to the Street Department budget.

38 condos passed for Upper Falls

One of the few major items handled by the Board of Aldermen without acrimony Monday night was the approval of the Antaramian project in Upper Falls, which passed unanimously.

In a departure from the usual application of the 10 percent ordinance, which requires developers to lease 10 percent of their new units to the city's Housing Services Department for low-income housing or provide cash or housing elsewhere, the Board agreed to have the city's Community Development Authority buy four condominiums for low-income housing.

Whether this will be possible has not been determined, but the city has three months in which to find out.

If for any reason — either Antaramian's inability to sell the 38 units as condominiums or the city's inability to buy the units — the sale does not go through, Antaramian will pay the Community Development Authority 10 percent of the market value of four units or $10,000, whichever is greater.

Antaramian originally was going to build 32 units of housing as two-family houses attached in groups on the Saco-Butts-Sweet Street site in Upper Falls.

A proposal was made to him to build 38 units so that he could provide low-income housing. Until now, the 10 percent ordinance has applied only to builders of rental and condominium apartments where the density of the project would exceed that allowed by right.

The houses were once projected to sell in the mid-$40,000 range, but in discussions over the months the price mentioned by Antaramian seems to have been creeping toward $50,000 per unit.

A dispute with an abutter over rights of access over unpaved Saco Street may make Antaramian have to change the access to his property, formerly owned by radio station WHDH, and may reduce the number of houses he can build to the original 32.

More intracity bus service next task for committee

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

When the School Committee's transportation subcommittee finishes its work on pupil transportation, it may be asked to expand its purview to the supplementing of MBTA bus service in the city for the general public.

Recent developments and energy costs have made another look at public transportation more urgent than in the previous few years, since the last of the mayor's transportation committees finished its report.

The Metropolitan Coach Company, whose Garden City Bus Co. subsidiary transports Newton schoolchildren, is reportedly going out of business. A Weeks Junior High School group has proposed a city-funded figure-eight bus system to run on weekends and at night to supplement MBTA service. And the Newton Highlands Area Council is working with the state and the MBTA on an experimental Highlands-Harvard Square bus service that will be self-supporting.

Newton transportation and traffic planner David Tannoizzi, and a member of the School Committee transportation subcommittee, said the new committee, if and when formed, will look into the feasibility of minibuses, among other alternatives, to fill out the gaps in the MBTA service.

The demand-response system, in which buses go to the passenger's door when requested, has more or less been found unfeasible because of cost, Tannoizzi said. Newton has never had this system but has considered it from time to time.

A fixed-route system is best, Tannoizzi said. But to expect the MBTA to provide either new fixed routes or to greatly increase frequency of existing service is unrealistic, he said. He believes the MBTA is through expanding; more local service will be up to cities and towns to provide.

One advantage of a municipally funded service, Tannoizzi said, is that a private service can run twice as many miles for the same money as the MBTA because of the exorbitant costs of the latter.

The Weeks Junior High School proposal has been presented to the aldermanic Public Safety & Transportation Committee and will be discussed further at its Jan. 24 meeting.

In essence the proposal calls for two buses running on the main arteries on the north and south sides of the city at a cost to the city of $37,440 a year.

The young people pointed out there is no way to get from one part of the city to another now after about 7 p.m. and on Sunday.

The Newton Highlands bus, which has been approved in concept by the state agencies involved, was proposed by the Newton Highlands Neighborhood Service Area Council, a semigovernmental body formed under the city charter to undertake neighborhood projects and to serve as a liaison between Newton Highlands and the city government.

Fears that the project may go down because of the business failure of Metropolitan Coach Company appeared unfounded this week. An affiliated corporation, Hub Bus Lines, which had been negotiating for the Highlands-Harvard contract, is unaffected by the Metropolitan collapse, a Hub spokesman said this week.

There has been no move yet to appoint the members of the School Committee subcommittee to another transportation committee. Tannoizzi said the subcommittee is nearly through its work to provide after-school buses for students, especially those whose neighborhood schools have been closed because of declining enrollment.

The committee is presently made up of School Department staff members, a bus company representative, a transportation engineer, two parents, a member of the Human Services Department, David Tannoizzi, and transportation critic and writer Ernest Lowenstein.

Lowenstein commented that before serving on another "mayor's transportation committee" (there have been two before), "I'd have some questions to ask the mayor."

League favoring staggered terms for School Committee

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The nearly complete turnover of the School Committee in the last two municipal elections has apparently prompted the League of Women Voters and other persons to work toward changing the way the School Committee is elected.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, said this week he has three or four inquiries from people who would like to either change the size of or means of electing the School Committee.

League of Women Voters Vice President Bonnie Carter said Tuesday the League wants the Committee elected in staggered terms of four years each. Under this plan, four Committee members from odd-numbered wards would be elected in one municipal election, and members from the even-numbered wards would be elected two years later.

Licarie said there have also been proposals of having some members elected by ward and some elected at large, with either eight, 12, or 16 School Committee members.

In all of these plans the mayor would remain a member of the Committee.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell, who was a member of the Charter Commission which agreed upon the current system of eight ward representatives elected at large every two years, said he has not heard of any groups attempting to change the system.

Mandell said he had proposed a compromise between ward and at-large representation by having members elected by just voters in their ward in one election, and then elected at-large in the next election.

For any of these changes to take effect, they must be approved by the voters in November.

Secretary Licarie said any proposed changes in the charter effecting the School Committee or anything else should be presented publicly by February.

Proposed charter changes must either be introduced by an alderman or be filed with the city clerk with signatures of 100 or more registered voters' Licarie said.

The mayor and two-thirds of the Board of Aldermen must approve any charter changes before they are scheduled for public hearing and eventually put on the ballot' according to Licarie.

Daydreamers discussed by LD association

The Newton Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will present two guest speakers on the subject of "The Daydreamer and Learning Disabilities: Fact or Fiction" at its meeting Wednesday, Jan. 17.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Bigelow Junior High School, 42 Vernon St., Newton Corner, Eugene R. Tompkins Jr., M.D., will discuss his experience in pediatrics with the neurological evaluation of children with learning disabilities.

Mary Burres, Sc.D., is a private consultant in learning disabilities and will share in presenting an overview of the programs at the Scholl Learning Disabilities Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital' where both speakers have held positions.

In case of snow, the meeting will be Jan. 24. For more information call 965-0686.

Scafidi election delayed

The appointment of City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi as director of finance has been delayed by a motion by Ald. Terry Morris to delete the position. Ald. Edward Richmond has filed an amendment to the ordinance establishing a director of finance that would limit the director of finance's control over the city comptroller so as not to interfere with the comptroller's duties as prescribed by state law.

Last week the Finance and Administration & Planning committees approved the appointment of Scafidi to the post that has been vacant for five years. Comptroller Lawrence Marino has been named state budget director and will leave Jan. 19.

Under the city charter, the director of finance must be either the comptroller or the treasurer.

When Scafidi and Marino were equal department heads, the Board could not face having to make the choice between them for the director of finance position, which carries with it a minor supervisory function over the treasurer and comptroller positions.

The vote to hold the matter for consideration of the two new proposals by the Finance and A&P committees was 16-6, with the "Italian bloc" — Ald. Paul Coletti, Joseph DePasquale, Elaine Gentile, and Dominic Taglienti — and Ald. Richard McGrath and Joseph McDonnell opposed.

Australia extends over nearly three million miles and has a population of eleven million, less than four people to each square mile. New Zealand, with its much smaller area averages about 24 people to the square mile. In both countries, all the big cities are on the sea, and in Australia all six state capitals are, too. The only important exceptions in Australia are the federal capital, Canberra, which was created for political reasons, and some picturesque mining towns.

Editorial

South's field

The seemingly Sisyphean task of improving and building a football field with bleachers and a track at Newton South High School is threatened again with another delay.

Delays do not change the fact that we are condoning unequal treatment of high school students. We allow one group of students to enjoy a swimming pool, home football field, track, field, etc., while students on the opposite side of the city remain second-class citizens.

We look at a blossoming school spirit at one of our high schools, and then withhold the one thing that might help students there develop a greater interest, enthusiasm and pride in their school.

While our city officials delayed and delayed the implementation of the plans at South High School, the price went up.

Why does that surprise us? And what will our solution be? Penalization of the students at South High School again?

School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith recalled at Monday night's School Committee meeting that when South High was built, the swimming pool and athletic facilities were cut out of the plans because they were not available at the old North High School.

What irony!

Tonight there is a strong possibility this last effort will be delayed again, perhaps beyond repair, by the one-person, aldermanic tabling device, "the charter objection."

Bids expire next Tuesday, and if the alderman does table the matter, the mayor will either have to call another special meeting of the Board of Aldermen to deal with the matter before the bids expire (mercifully, the "charter objection" can only be used once), or will have to ask the contractor if he will agree to an extension on the bids.

If the bids expire, it takes nothing more than common sense to realize the price will be higher if the project is re-bid.

South High School will be a four-year school soon. Another 400 students would automatically increase the need for whatever facilities are provided at South.

We'd like to see the aldermen give the kids at South a break. Fair's fair. Let's put an end tonight to their second-class citizenship.

900 million Chinese ready for 'Big Macs'

Commentary by Virginia Payette, national columnist

Although I've dined in the world's greatest restaurants (well, maybe five or six), the current crisis is forcing me out of the closet. I am, and I don't care who knows it, a Big Mac freak.

Lutece, L'Etoile, Galatoire's, Tour d'Argent or Flier Jahrseiten notwithstanding, every time I spot those golden arches on the horizon my stomach starts humming "two all-beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles and onions on a sesame-seed bun."

I realize this confession means I will never make anybody's list of 10 best gourmets, but I feel I owe it to McDonalds in their time of trial.

You haven't heard? Where've you been? Poor Ronald is getting it from all sides these days, from tiny Martha's Vineyard to the mammoth Soviet Union. The gist of it, according to reports, is that the Big Mac is a "big mess."

All in all, it hasn't exactly been a hotsy-totsy year for poor old McDonalds. They're still trying to recover from the rumor that they put earthworms in their meat patties.

Headquarters sent Ronald all over the country denying it, but the consternation it created did tend to have a negative influence on the old sales curve. Some folks just have no loyalty.

Then Martha's Vineyard (a resort island off Cape Cod) fought off a McDonalds franchise because the natives see it as a "peril to our island's unspoiled, natural image...a symbol of the asphalt-and-chrome culture that we don't want here."

The local board of health nixed the idea of any arches harborside because it was afraid the restaurant facilities would pollute the waterfront.

But it was really 20th-century pollution - fast-food spots, neon lights, shopping centers, etc. - that it was resisting.

What set the Soviet press off is anybody's guess (they're supposed to be worrying about SALT this week). But it blasted the McDonalds empire as "the epitome of a U.S. capitalistic nightmare that exploits workers with low pay...supports paramilitary organizations...manipulates politicians...and bends the minds of American youth." Etc., etc., etc.

All typical communist blather that need not distract us from our daily task of trying to support the capitalist U.S. government and feed the family, too.

But then they went too far. They attacked the Big Mac as lousy food.

Well, now. It may be true that the buns are pumped up with air (isn't all commercial bread these days?) and that the tomatoes are chemically treated to look fresh (try to find one in any market that isn't).

It's what McDonalds does with its "poor quality" ingredients that gets to me. Maybe the secret's in their special sauce, or the way they have with their French fries, which even world-class gourmets have admitted (grudgingly, to be sure) are "superb."

Whatever it is, it's enough to pull me off at the nearest exit for a moment of madness in which I abandon all Weight Watchers training and fling myself into a mini-orgy of Big-Mac-fries-and-Coke.

Burping contentedly down the highway after this terrifying fall from grace, I may dwell guiltily on why there's no other meal quite so satisfying. Boiled lobster, Dover sole bonne femme and fettuccini Alfredo come close, but to a confirmed junkie, a Big Mac's better.

This weakness of character has been the subject of considerable family scorn and a few tense moments when it comes to picking a spot for lunch. But I'm very big with the little granddaughters, who are as hooked as I am, and in a democratic ballot we outvote 'em every time.

I have a certain amount of sympathy for the folks on Martha's Vineyard who fear, not without good reason, that when McDonalds comes, can Dunkin' Donuts, Wendy's and Burger King be far behind? But what prompted the Russians to put the Big Mac on their red-hot griddle?

It's just possible, of course, that they're jealous. Their spies have probably tipped them off that McDonalds of Japan is engaging in hamburger diplomacy with Communist China to extend the territory and the Moscow housemothers are trying to head off any gastronomic revisionism.

The truth is, there've been a few snickers in other circles over the idea of 900 million Chinese munching Big Macs along the Great Wall.

But I'm here to tell you that any country that considers fried fish lips a great delicacy is more than ready for Big Macs.

Fighting the federal 'grade creep'

Commentary by John D. Lofton

WASHINGTON — When President Carter's chief speech writer, James Fallows, resigned not long ago, he said that he was struck by the "virtual impossibility" of changing much in government. He declared: "I'm inclined to doubt that this government can be changed by Carter or any other president. You can predict a bureaucrat's reaction to almost any issue by the way it will affect their job or fiefdom. That's what comes first."

An example of the kind of bureaucratic mindset about which Fallows is so despondent is the reaction of certain federal employee union bosses to Carter's pending plan to ask Congress to make significant changes in federal pay policies which would substantially reduce the $62 billion annual payroll for civilian government employees.

Among other things, the president is expected to call for an end to the twice-a-year cost-of-living adjustment in federal pensions, the cost of which reached $10 billion in 1978. According to the New York-based Tax Foundation, a private research group, federal pensions rose 102 percent from 1966 to March of 1977, compared to a 72 percent rise in the consumer price index. Carter is also said to be planning to propose legislation to deal with a phenomenon called "grade creep." Officials estimate that 154,000 federal jobs are overgraded because of a tendency among bureaucrats to grant automatic raises and promotions from one grade level to the next regardless of merit or the experience of the employees.

Reacting to the possibility of these sweeping changes, Kenneth Blaylock, president of the AFL-CIO's 750,000-member American Federation of Government Employees, has fired off an angry letter to Carter predicting a government-wide worker slowdown as a result of "a total disregard and a lack of concern for their welfare and morale by the top employer." Noting that most federal workers had supported Carter's candidacy in 1976 and were "elated" when he won, Blaylock says that they thought the president would "end the disparity in treatment between federal employees and employees of the private sector." Instead, says Blaylock, federal employees have now found themselves "under the most severe attack of their careers by you and your appointed leaders" who spread the word that federal workers are "lazy, incompetent, overpaid."

Well, now. Lazy? Incompetent? Many federal bureaucrats are and many aren't. But one thing is certain: the present federal pay system is a mess and, generally speaking, most federal workers are overpaid. What Blaylock wants is not an end to the disparity between federal jobholders and those in the private sector, but rather a maintenance of the status quo, which would mean a continued privileged position for federal employees.

First, a word about the internal inequities within the federal salary system. A report in the Washington Post shows that under the current system, in high-wage areas of the country, federal blue-collar pay has risen above the pay of more highly trained federal white-collar workers. In Detroit, San Francisco and Seattle, Wash., in 1978, a beginning janitor in these cities made $1.20, 78 cents and $1.07 more per hour, respectively, than did a beginning chemist.

Frederick Kistler of the Bureau of Policies and Standards at the Civil Service Commission is quoted as saying that traditional pay relationships have been upset "because of the wackiness of the system and not because of any logical evaluation of what the work is worth."

From 1955 to 1973, employment in private industry grew 35.8 percent whereas federal general civilian employment grew only 17.1 percent. However, during this same time period, private wage gains grew by 129.3 percent, whereas federal general civilian employment grew 182.9 percent.

In a study done for the Industrial Relations Section of Princeton's University Economics Department—"Equal Pay in the Public Sector: Fact or Fantasy"—Dr. Sharon Smith found consistent and positive evidence of substantially higher pay in the federal government. Smith says that while the estimates of wage advantage enjoyed by the average federal worker over a private-sector worker of comparable characteristics vary greatly by race, sex, and point in time, this advantage is estimated to be at least 13 percent, and possibly as much as 20 percent.

The reason this disparity exists, says Smith, is:

"Because the government employer is removed from the influence of market forces, he faces no strong, inherent check on the wages he pays his workers short of a taxpayer revolt."

To remedy this situation, Smith suggests that the present federal-private pay comparability system be restructured in a major way. She says:

"The basic goal ought to be to establish an efficient system of wage determination that will enable government to attract sufficient qualified workers at a minimum cost while allocating resources to their highest valued use. This goal has been confused with normative considerations of what is 'fair' to government workers, which implies some form of welfare goal. A welfare goal should be achieved directly through income redistribution, not superimposed on government pay policies. As long as this confusion of efficiency and welfare goals persists, there will be a continued misallocation of resources between public and private sectors and a resulting level of production inside the nation's production-possibility frontier."

If this is what President Carter has in mind, such a move is long overdue, Blaylock's wailing and gnashing of the teeth to the contrary notwithstanding.

Temptronics clarifies points

To the Editor:

In response to a letter written by the Krasinskis concerning the petition by Oldco Realty Corp. (Greenfield's Sweeterville) for an extension of its non-conforming use of the premises at 40 Glen Ave., we would like to avail ourselves of the opportunity to clarify some points.

I am writing on behalf of Temptronics Corporation who moved into a portion of this facility six years ago, conducting a light assembly operation which, if anything, is less detrimental to the neighborhood than the sweater manufacturing that is and has been conducted here for the past 30 years.

This leads to the first point, and that is, this industrial site has existed here, next to the MBTA tracks, for about 75 years. It is ideal for light manufacturing, within walking distance of the MBTA, within 100 yards of the much trafficked Beacon Street and occupying land which is within 50 feet of the MBTA tracks with their accompanying noises and unsightliness.

Contrary to the statement made by the Krasinskis, most of the trucks that enter these premises are associated with the sweater operations and not Temptronics' business. The fact that some large trucks occasionally enter is more a function of the evolution of the trucking industry than of the presence of Temptronics Corp. and indeed are permitted because of their involvement with the sweater operation. Furthermore, although the area has a number of homes, Glen Avenue is a heavily trafficked roadway, carrying an average of about three vehicles every two minutes over the 12-hour period from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. This traffic is primarily due to its proximity to Newton Centre and because it affords a short-cut between Route 9 and Beacon Street, by-passing the Centre.

Less than 20 percent of this traffic can be traced to these premises and about one-half of the traffic entering here is associated with the sweater operations, including the store. If anything, Temptronics Corporation uses its portion less intensively in proportion to its employees than does the sweater operation.

Also, contrary to the statement of the Krasinskis, the parking lot has not been enlarged. It has been paved, which should be considered a neighborhood improvement from the elimination of dust that rose prior to this paving. The parking lot can accommodate 70 cars, and at no time are all of these spaces filled. Again, because of the nature of Temptronics' business, our people tend to stay put during the course of the day, and the 45 or so cars associated with our employees do not generate any more traffic than the 15 or so cars of Greenfield's employees plus their store customers.

There is no noise associated with Temptronics' operations and indeed our area is almost wholly air conditioned so that our windows are mostly closed. This is contrary to the sweater operations which operate in un-airconditioned space, utilize steam presses, sewing machines and formerly, knitting machines. Snow removal and night-time loitering have been associated with these premises for 75 years and have nothing to do with the petition. Indeed, we did install floodlights to help discourage the loitering and believe that that has been beneficial in reducing this use.

Further, we have had a history of employing local people, including one neighboring housewife who took a part-time secretarial position and worked with us for over four years before moving out of the area.

Also, we have employed local high school youths on both part-time and permanent bases. Over 60 percent of all Temptronics employees live within 10 miles of this site and several are Newton residents. Temptronics' employees are all good neighbors as evidenced by our efforts to dig this neighborhood out from the Blizzard of '78.

There is more that can be done, and we would like to approach the problems of Glen Avenue traffic and other issues together. We believe there are better ways than: ruining an investment that was made years before the houses in this neighborhood were built, increasing the real estate taxes of all Newton if this structure is deemed untenable and diminishing the local income to the area through the elimination of jobs of Newton residents (including the sweater makers if rental income is disallowed) and the spendable income in the Newton area associated with the million-dollar payroll that Temptronics pays on an annual basis.

We would appreciate very much the neighbor's and, indeed, all of Newton's support for this petition because we feel that, if anything, our presence is less detrimental than that of the preexisting use of these premises.

Henry Lyden
treasurer,
Temptronics Inc.

Revaluation story

To the Editor:

The article "Revaluation put off again" (Dec. 26) includes a statement that requires clarification if not correction.

The classification amendment does not allow "taxation of different classes of real estate ... at different rates."

The tax rate (the amount per $1000 valuation) will be the same for all classes of property, but the assessment ratio to 100 percent value is what the classification amendment alters, although different ratios have been in effect for some time.

The enabling legislation, enacted in anticipation of approval of the amendment by the voters, specifies what those ratios will be — residential, 40 percent; business, 50 percent; industrial, 55 percent; and open space, 25 percent. The General Court can revise those percentages at will.

Pennsylvania is the only state that permits different tax rates. The Graduated Tax Law of 1913 for cities of the second class has been in full operation since 1925 when Pittsburgh, after gradual steps, began to levy half the tax rate on buildings as on land, which, with smoke control, was credited with the renewal of the Golden Triangle there with little or no state or federal aid.

The law was extended to cities of the third class, and since 1973 Harrisburg also levies separate tax rates on land and improvements.

School and county taxes are not affected, and in both cities sites are assessed low and buildings high as elsewhere which minimizes the beneficial effect that the differential tax rate might otherwise have, though it is conceded that homeowners have benefited over the years.

Recently, the mayor of Pittsburgh, having proposed a $26 million budget increase, wanted to increase the local income tax from 1 percent to 2 1/2 percent, while the city council called for an increase of the land tax rate and no other increase in taxes.

Raising the tax rate on land seems fair enough, for, as Will Rogers said, "They are not making any more land."

In addition, the land is not going to hide or move away, and for other obvious reasons land differs from other kinds of private property.

The cash value of one's land, due to the expenditure of other people's money, is a fair enough indication of ability to pay, and the tax on it cannot be passed on in rents and prices (see Samuelson and others) while increasing the income and/or other taxes only brings on higher rents, prices, and wage-increase demands.

South field

To the Editor:

We would like to compliment all of the members of the School Committee for the judicious action taken at your meeting on Monday, Jan. 8, in regard to the Newton South High School outdoor athletic facility.

In its wisdom, it unanimously voted (with the mayor voting 'present') to recommend construction of a football field and track, according to Plan, C, at the low bid price of $328,000. Although the original estimate of $250,000 two years ago was exceeded, you recognized that not only has inflation played a role, but more importantly, $340,000 was transferred to the South High Athletic Field Fund by the Board nearly two years ago, and still remains there, with interest accruing to the city. We agree with the School Committee that the completion of an athletic facility is sorely needed and long overdue.

Knowing full well that South High will be a four-year school in 1981, the community thanks the School Committee for what we consider to be a necessary and worthwhile appropriation. Since the time is short, and imminent action is needed due to time constraints set by the low bidder, we hope that the Board of Aldermen, at the Mayor's request, will follow its lead, and release this money so that construction can begin without any further delays.

'Early Retirement' plan approved by School Committee

Four teachers and Bigelow Junior High School Principal Robert Frost acted quickly to take advantage of the recently ratified early retirement incentive plan and notified the School Department that they would leave at the end of this school year.

Robert Frost was science teacher at Bigelow for eight years and has been principal for 21 years. Before coming to Newton, he taught 11 years in Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said at Monday's School Committee meeting at Bigelow where the retirements were announced, "Bob Frost has been a stabilizing influence to everyone. He is kind, affable, unflappable, and has contributed much to secondary education in Newton."

Frost and the four teachers will receive a bonus of $1500 for retiring this year in accordance with the early retirement plan ratified by the teachers in December and by the School Committee this week. Teachers between ages 59 and 63 who retire in June will receive a $1500 bonus if they announce their retirement before Jan. 24.

The others who gave notice they will retire are Virginia Chadwick, who has taught English and social studies for nine years at Bigelow and 32 years outside of Newton; John Eldert, who has been a physical education teacher for 32 years at F.A. Day Junior High School; Linwood Gatley, who has taught physical education for 32 years in Newton, most recently at Newton North High School; and Jack Shapiro, who has taught math for 23 years at Newton North High School and taught 12 years outside of Newton.

School Committee members formally ratified the early retirement plan by an 8-1 vote, with Alvin Mandell against. The plan was the last offer by the School Committee to the teachers, who approved of it 130-5. Committeeman Manuel Beckwith moved to have the plan, which gives up to $6000 to teachers who give three years' notice before retiring, extended to include the top 10 administrators not covered by collective bargaining.

Committee members agreed that there was a sense of the meeting in favor of extending similar benefits to the top administrators. Chairwoman Honora Kaplan appointed members Nancy Mann and Katherine Jones, who worked on the plan, to present the same or an amended plan for the administrators.

SERVICE Is The Name Of The Game

At Freedom Federal Savings service has always been given top priority. We have presented many "firsts" in banking service. SUPERMARKET BANKING is one example. This innovative service was introduced recently in two Stop and Shop markets, one in Watertown and the other in Somerville. No other institution in New England offers this completely customer-oriented service.

Good management blended with team-work makes it possible for Freedom Federal to offer new services as fast as they are available.

We are proud that we have a Board of Directors that is responsive to the needs of the various Massachusetts communities in which we operate. Freedom Federal directors come from the mainstream of American life. They are leaders in business, industry and construction, as well as in law and medicine.

Freedom Federal is fortunate to have this type of leadership.

GROWING To Serve You Better

A year ago Freedom Federal's assets totalled $684 million. Currently our assets are more than $730 million, an increase of nearly $46 million.

This is sound and meaningful growth. It is the kind of growth that makes it possible for Freedom Federal to better serve our customers.

Sound management and safety have long been a winning combination at Freedom Federal. No one has ever lost a penny at Freedom Federal. Savings are insured by an agency of the Federal government. And our mortgage portfolio and loans are 75 per cent insured or guaranteed by agencies of the Federal government.

All this adds up to POSITIVE SAFETY.

House rules reform fails, reps return to business

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Coming down from an eleventh hour vote Monday night rejecting the controversial rule reforms and then swinging into an all-out tribute to former Bruin Bobby Orr the next morning, Newton's state anxious to get to their real representatives are business as usual.

The final vote on the unprecedented move to change the rules governing the House of Representatives came at 11:30 with a vote of 125-22. The high point when the reformers came on the first ballot 58 House members rallied in support of the changes. But, it was downhill from there.

Rep. David Cohen, serving his first term heartily backed the Coalition's reforms in the House, —, and said he was "disappointed" at the outcome. Cohen remained loyal to the reforms and was one of the 22 representatives who still voted against the Democratic leadership's rules on the final ballot. REPS, Newton 33333.

"Unfortunately, the rules without those reforms were something I couldn't vote for," Cohen explained in a telephone interview Tuesday. "I still want democracy in the House. I just voted my conscience. But, those are the rules and the next thing to do is get on with my committee business."

He will, however, continue to support all efforts to reform the rules next year.

"Anticlimactic" and "fairly dull" was Rep. David Mofenson's (D-Newton) description of the reform debate and vote. Mofenson, who earlier last month said he would join the reform movement, but would judge each said he was surprised that there proposal on its own merit weren't nearly as many roll call votes as expected. "But, the battle is over so we can get down to business now."

A staunch supporter of the Democratic leadership and their own proposed changes in the rules, Rep. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton) was "pleased and encouraged" over the vote.

"I think the rules package (proposed by the leadership and accepted by the House) was very fair and well conceived. It will make for a more efficient House," said DeNucci. "The most important action was the flat rejection of government by secret caucus." (DeNucci was speaking of the Coalition's proposed change in the election of the Speaker of the House from open vote to secret ballot. The reform movement's position was that an open vote for the powerful Speaker intimidated the representatives.)

One of the Democratic leadership's changes that DeNucci voted in favor of was an anti-filibuster rule limiting debate to 30 minutes per member, additional time granted by the Speaker. The Democratic leadership's rules package sought to make the House more efficient while not endorsing the more fundamental changes proposed by the Coalition on Legislative Reform.

Things lightened up for the representatives in the next day's session, however. Tuesday's tribute to hockey player Bobby Orr by the House and Senate, brought a packed press gallery and television cameras to Beacon Hill.

"I felt like I was in Boston Garden," Rep. Mofenson said.

Orr was presented a gavel engraved with "To Boston's No. 4, hockey's No. 1," at the ceremony.

Police report

Wellesley man hurt in car accident

A Wellesley man was injured Saturday morning after being involved in a collision at Washington and Walnut Streets in Newton.

John W. Pope, 58, of 11 Bayview Rd., Wellesley, was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a car, driven by Paul J. Frucci, 28, of 1794 Great Plain Ave., Needham, swirled into Pope's car while trying to avoid a third car speeding up the ramp from Rte. 128.

Newton Police Officers arrested a Waltham man Saturday night for being a disorderly person after he allegedly threw a punch at one of them.

Stephen B. Hart, 19, of 23 School St., Waltham, was placed under arrest in the parking lot of the Purity Supreme at Boylston and Eliot Streets. Hart, part of a group of about 15 ordered to disperse by the officers, turned to face Boylston Street, urinated, and when approached by Officer Vincent Dennis, allegedly tried to hit him, police said.

An unknown amount of jewelry and silver and $300 in cash were taken from a home at Withington Rd., Newtonville, sometime between 12:55 a.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday.

The lock on the outer door was smashed, police said, and so was the hall door. A neighbor found a small leather case with some jewelry and credit cards outside the house.

While one employee ran out to tell another employee that a strange man was searching through the office desk drawers, the suspect escaped with about $80 from Peter's Towing Service at 1087 Beacon St., Newton, Sunday.

Residents of Newton and especially the Highlands should be aware of keeping their cellar doors securely locked. In the past two weeks, two reported break-ins have occurred in the Highlands, both with the burglar entering the house by forcing open the cellar door.

A house on Wade Street, was entered that way Sunday between 11:45 and 3 p.m. and a sterling silver service for eight, a stereo set and a Hummel figurine were taken. A house on Lincoln Street, was entered the same way two weeks ago and a radar range, stereo, jewelry, clothing, and camera equipment, all valued at over $4000, were taken.

Two women had their wallets stolen out of their purses Monday night at the Backside Disco, 107 Union St., Newton Centre. Approximately $15 was taken, police reported.

Handing the customer courtesy booth employee a note saying, "This is a hold-up. I have a gun. Give me the money now," a man in his late twenties robbed the Stop and Shop at 200 Sunday at 6:30, Boylston St., getting away with $1000 in cash. The man, described by three witnesses, scaled the guard rail at the west end of the parking lot and fled on foot.

Over $8500 in antiques and Persian rugs were taken from a house on Beacon St., Sunday afternoon. The suspect entered the home through an open rear porch window said police.

Glee Club needs singers

The Highland Glee Club will begin its winter schedule of activities with open rehearsals on Mon., Jan. 15 and Mon., Jan. 22 at 7:45 p.m. at the United Methodist Church, 1210 Centre St., Newton Centre.

Men with singing experience and ability to read music are invited to come and enjoy music and fellowship. The group needs more singers. This 40-voice chorus, in existence since 1908, is one of the few men's glee clubs in this area. Recent concerts have included all forms of music - sacred, ballads, Broadway, operatic choruses, folk and popular.

Mofenson wants intent part of bills

When the legislature passes a law, does the bill really mean what it says? Does it reflect what its authors intended?

State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, believes the Legislature should spell out its intent along with the legislation itself. He has filed a bill for the 1979 session to permit just that.

"When there is a legal battle over the meaning of a particular bill, the courts and administrative agencies are usually free to draw their own interpretations," Mofenson said. "This in turn can result in decisions which are at odds with the original intent. It also means that the Legislature becomes less than a coequal branch of government."

Rep. Mofenson explained that if a bill specifically identified its purpose, both the executive and judiciary branches would have a clear guide for interpreting statutes. "They couldn't just go off on their own," the Newton lawmaker said, pointing out "They would have to be more careful if they did not want to violate legislative intent. As a result, regulations and judicial opinions would be more harmonious and the Legislature could reassert its lost prerogatives and authority."

Mofenson's bill would authorize the General Court to attach to any enacted law a statement of legislative intent whenever such enactment explicitly or implicitly requires the adoption or amendment of any rules and regulations. If the bill were amended during legislative debate and its final form reflected a different goal, that too could be reflected in a legislative intent statement.

Backman applauds mini-bonds

Many severely handicapped persons may now be able to keep their jobs and still receive financial help from the state for necessary home care assistance.

In the past, a handicapped person could count on Medicaid reimbursements for only one year to cover the cost of a personal attendant. At the end of that year, many handicapped persons were forced to quit their jobs as they couldn't afford to work and pay an attendant.

But now, under the new Personal Care Assistance program (PCA) these handicapped persons can turn to the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission (MRC) for further reimbursements. Each person eligible for the program is allowed to hire and supervise a personal care attendant, with maximum financial support given to clients earning $10,000 per year or less.

State Rep. David Mofenson (D-Newton) explained that eligible persons are referred for PCA services through a counselor located at each of the 34 MRC area offices. The area office then contracts with three private agency vendors to evaluate referrals for the PCA program. Each vendor is certified by Medicaid and sends an evaluation team, comprised of a registered nurse and occupational therapist, to a client's home to determine eligibility and need.

Handicapped helped under new program

By SARAH CLARKSON

After three years of filing related legislation, Newton State Sen. Jack Backman had nothing but praise for Gov. King and Treasurer state Crane's new minibond investment program unveiled last week.

"This innovative program is a perfect way for working families to participate in the economic development of the Commonwealth while getting a high and safe return on their savings," said Backman.

As a tax-exempt investment, the minibond, offered in $100, $500 and $1000 denominations, is especially attractive to the small investor. The 5.7 percent interest rate, compounded semi-annually, means the equivalent of as much as 12 percent in after tax income depending on the individual's tax bracket.

State and local bonds, traditionally with minimum values of $5000 and terms of twenty years, were once attractive to only rich investors and large financial institutions. The state State officials hope these new, low-cost bonds will bring new investors to the state's economy.

Sen. Backman wants to take this trend one step further. He filed legislation this year to require the state and its municipalities to issue bonds and notes in small denominations also making them accessible to every citizen.

A $100 state minibond will sell at $75.50 and will reach maturity five years from the date of issue. The bonds will be non-transferable and non-negotiable. The first state minibonds went on sale Wednesday, Jan. 10, at the cashiers' windows on the twelfth floor of the McCormack Office Building, One Ashburton Pl., Boston. For further information, call 727-1157.

Backman applauds mini-bonds

Many severely handicapped persons may now be able to keep their jobs and still receive financial help from the state for necessary home care assistance.

In the past, a handicapped person could count on Medicaid reimbursements for only one year to cover the cost of a personal attendant. At the end of that year, many handicapped persons were forced to quit their jobs as they couldn't afford to work and pay an attendant.

But now, under the new Personal Care Assistance program (PCA) these handicapped persons can turn to the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission (MRC) for further reimbursements. Each person eligible for the program is allowed to hire and supervise a personal care attendant, with maximum financial support given to clients earning $10,000 per year or less.

State Rep. David Mofenson (D-Newton) explained that eligible persons are referred for PCA services through a counselor located at each of the 34 MRC area offices. The area office then contracts with three private agency vendors to evaluate referrals for the PCA program. Each vendor is certified by Medicaid and sends an evaluation team, comprised of a registered nurse and occupational therapist, to a client's home to determine eligibility and need.

Novitiate negotiations exclude Conservators

Negotiations among Mayor Theodore Mann, Combined Jewish Philanthropies and the real estate agent for the Novitiate property are heading toward guaranteeing public access to the controversial four-acre playfields and the riverbanks, the mayor said this week.

CJP is buying a large part of the Novitiate land.

Joan Lerner, chairman of the open space committee of the Newton Conservators, a private group which advocated city purchase of the entire Novitiate property off Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, repeated the organization's disappointment at not being included in the discussions.

At a news conference this week, the mayor said he had been negotiating with CJP, which is buying 34 acres of the 60-acre property, to assure the organization special permission to use a portion of the river frontage, while making sure that the entire frontage will be public.

Another point being negotiated, the mayor said, is public access to a four-acre playfield in the center of what would be city-owned land.

The mayor has not committed himself to the exact acreage the city will buy, but more and more it seems as if the city will acquire the remaining 26 acres.

The Conservators feel as if the city is getting what's left after CJP acquires the choice parts. The organization has asked the mayor more than once to arrange a meeting that would allow the Conservators to participate in discussions with CJP.

CJP has plans for using the old buildings on the land for offices for some of its social service agencies and to build some new structures. It will operate a recreation center open to community membership at a fee.

The mayor said in his consideration of the property he has asked city officials to regard the Charles River as a source of drinking water some time in the future.

Bewick

task force that the secretary plans to assemble.

Another area for the task force to study is the protection of marine life in the wake of the impending off shore oil leases. While it is the federal government that issues these leases, they will not escape the study of DEQE, Bewick said.

In the first round of leasing, the Massachusetts Attorney General and the Conservation Law Foundation filed a suit to prohibit them until regulation could be developed to guarantee the protection of the fisheries. The joint suit temporarily stalled oil exploration Georges Bank.

When the U.S. Department of Interior issues these regulations, Bewick said, it will make the law suit moot and allow future leasing of oil rights to go forward. "As the secretary of the DEQE, I hope to exert the maximum effort to bring parties together," he said.

Another effort that Bewick intends to focus his attention on is the elimination of unnecessary delays in the appeals process of the Wetlands Protection Act. These appeals are thrown into the DEQE's hands when parties are dissatisfied with the findings of local conservation commissions regarding the building in areas less than 100 feet from a body of water.

Some have complained to Bewick of appeals taking as long as three years. In Newton at least two decisions on the development of single-family homes are currently stalled at the DEQE level.

Agriculture also comes under the DEQE secretary's domain. Noting that 85 per cent of Massachusetts food must be imported across state lines, Bewick sees the maintenance of farmland as desirable.

"Massachusetts has unique and valuable farmland," he said. "It must be protected."

Over the years, much farmland in the state has been abandoned and left to develop as woodland. A recent study by Yale researchers suggested this land should be harvested for wood. While Bewick realizes that developing these forests as a source of wood is fraught with problems, he is in favor of using wood as an alternative fuel.

Finding alternative resources is essential, for the cost of oil is becoming prohibitive, Bewick said. "It is having a devastating impact on our economy," he added.

One expensive alternative that the state is currently using in liquid nitrogen gas (LNG). Bewick came to the public's attention with his work in transporting LNG. Cabot Corp., his former employer, imports huge quantities of LNG for distribution in the U.S.

But transporting LNG was just one of Bewick's projects in his four years at Cabot. Another was research in the resource recovery of scrap.

This project along with his other work in environmental issues makes Bewick believe he has been incorrectly evaluated by his critics. He considers himself a friend of environmentalists. "I have even been throughout the years a sporadic member of the Massachusetts Audubon Society, he said pointing to binoculars on a dining room chair in his home.

South field

In the end, McGrath said he would probably vote for the facility. In any event, he predicts it will pass.

Bid extension

If McGrath uses the provision in the city charter to delay the measure, the Jan. 16 expiration date for the low contract may expire before approval.

Mayor Mann said he is working to get a two-week extension from contractor J.J. O'Brien & Sons on the low bid, which McGrath said would probably be granted, since land grading work cannot begin in the winter.

Prior to the School Committee's vote, member Manuel Beckwith said he was appointed to a subcommittee in 1956 to find a site for Newton South, and plans then included a swimming pool and athletic facility.

The Board of Aldermen felt then that Newton South should not be built with a pool and athletic facility since the old Newton High had neither.

"I think enough time has gone by so the School Committee should fulfill its obligation. It's time to give South High School what it should have," he said.

Newton South High School parents and students, about 80 in a crowd of 100 people, cheered at Beckwith's remark and similar ones made by other members.

Mayor Mann said after the meeting he voted "present" on the matter because the request was being made to ask him to send the matter to the Board. Mann said he "needed more time to look at it."

Board

Increasingly, matters are put on "second call" by aldermen who have either a small question that could have been answered by a chairman or other alderman earlier or have fundamental opposition to an item before them and hope to turn around a whole Board's thinking, regardless of the apparent number of favorable votes lined up.

"Second call," the portion of the meeting that comes after the routine matters are disposed of and there has been a short recess, used to be reserved for difficult and controversial items.

Monday night Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris was dismayed to find that every matter on his report had been put on second call by one alderman or another, even the abandonment by New England Telephone Co. of three poles on Needham Street.

The growing habit of putting items on second call is another indication of both failure of aldermen to familiarize themselves with the matters before them and the unwillingness of many to trust the work and opinions of the various committees.

Personal decorum, on the downside for some time, reached an all-time low Monday night, when aldermen shouted at each other, interrupted each other, and disregarded rulings by Jefferson that they were out of order.

Right before the vote to adjourn, Jefferson commented, "It is inconsiderate of the aldermen to persist after a ruling of the chair," and noted that he can't "evict" an alderman from the chamber.

(Board rules of procedure do not provide for ejection of unruly aldermen, but "Robert's Rules of Order," which takes over when no procedure is specified in Board rules, does provide for the physical removal of a disorderly member, preferably by other members of the group.)

Several aldermen who went immediately after adjournment to a nearby restaurant agreed that they had never seen such a bad night, but offered no suggestions to prevent a repetition of the embarrassing meeting.

Bus firm

rected. There have also been "occasional problems" with the late buses at junior and senior high schools, he said.

Cornelius could not speculate on why Goodman wants to reassign his contract, but said he had asked for a check for bus service already performed earlier than when it is usually sent out.

The payment involved transportation before Christmas vacation. Goodman is usually paid twice a month, Cornelius said, but he asked that payment be sped up for that week's service.

The three-year contract Newton has with Metropolitan Coach, which expires at the end of the next school year, includes a clause to compensate the company for fuel price increases, but the company has not filed "properly" yet for such compensation, Cornelius said.

Goodman's company had filed in August for retroactive compensation to cover previous years, but Cornelius said that request was rejected.

Newton Centre association memorabilia reveals Olmsted designed playground

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

What could Central Park, Stanford University, the Biltmore Estate in North Carolina and the Newton Centre Playground possibly have in common?

Frederick Law Olmsted. Olmsted, the world renowned American landscape architect, designed these buildings and parks during the late 19th century. And he's brought a slice of landscaping fame to the City of Newton.

Discovered last summer in a corner of the Mutual Bank for Savings in Newton Centre, were plans, letters and records verifying that Olmsted did indeed design the Playground's plans for the Newton Centre Improvement Association back in March of 1891.

the firm found it necessary to remind the City that they still owed money for the plans.

"Realizing the fact that all expenses in connection with the Playground were largely met by private contributions," the letter read, "we made our charges much lower than usual.... Under the circumstances, it seems to us that the delay of over a year and a half in the payment of our bill ($200) is hardly reasonable."

Ms. Scott still hasn't figured out when or how the land ownership was transferred, but the fact remains that Olmsted did design it and it did all start with the Improvement Association.

The Playground, taken for granted by Newton residents, wasn't always so beautiful. On his plans, Olmsted and the current Newton Centre Improvement Association.

Along with these papers, were scrapbooks including programs and invitations from Improvement Association parties and Fourth of July celebrations at the turn-of-the-century.

Mrs. Scott, together with her associates at the Jackson Homestead, plan a presentation this spring which will incorporate their new finds.

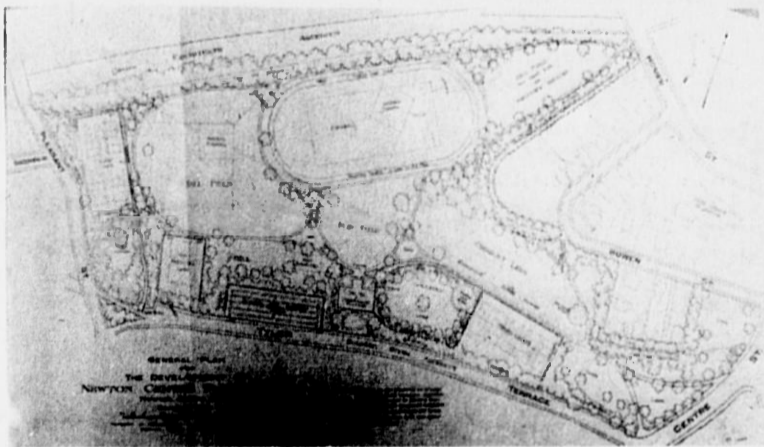

"All these papers and memorabilia are yielding invaluable information," said Mrs. Scott. "It's all terribly exciting."

The public is invited to read through all these scrapbooks and records. Mrs. Scott suggests making an appointment first, however, so one of the staff can help with questions.

4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION NEWTON CENTRE PROGRAMME

Fourth of July program from 1888

A later set of plans, done by Herbert J. Kellaway in 1911, showed ideas for some changes in the Playground.

The Playground idea, first conceived by the Association in the late 1880's, became an integral part of the group's plan which would, "by beautifying our surroundings, add to the dignity and comfort of our homes. We would create a public sentiment intolerant of all ugliness."

Much like the workings of city government today, the Improvement Association and the then Board of Selectmen, played their own tug-of-war for money to purchase the 15 acres of privately owned land bordered by Centre Street, Tyler Terrace, Pleasant Street and the Cochituate Aqueduct. Newton citizens rallied and soon the City agreed that it would match the approximately $7,500 raised in private subscription by the Improvement Association.

In 1891, the Newton Centre Improvement Association hired Olmsted to draw up the plans. Some confusion still exists, however, even to Dusha Scott at the Jackson Homestead who has been studying the papers, as to who actually owned the land. Apparently, Olmsted, Olmsted and Eliot City was under the impression that the was responsible for their payment. In a letter dated Nov. 9, 1893, described the land as follows: "the ground is depressed area, water-soaked, unsuitable to be built on... In private hands it is liable to become an eyesore and a menace to the health of the community."

Olmsted designed an elaborate system of underground the pipe-drainage drainage keeping as much like a natural brook as possible. In true Olmsted fashion, he left a large area of "unbroken turf" for ball games, kept an unobstructed view of the ball ground from the aqueduct side, and designed walks for "rambling."

The presentation of the Olmsted plans, along with record books from the Newton Centre Improvement Association, dating back to 1879, and records from its predecessor, the Newton Centre Tree Club and correspondence from both organizations, was shown by George Levy

Poll shows junior high students admire 'mom and dad' the most

Continuing a conservative trend which began two years ago, junior high school students polled in all 50 states claimed that their parents were the biggest single influence on their lives.

Three years ago, a similar youth survey revealed TV as the single greatest influence. This year TV polled less than 20 percent as a factor.

Nearly half (46.5 percent) of 2,000 polled believe World War III will occur before the end of this century when they're likely to have children as old as they are now.

The survey, conducted by Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation, also asked: "What living person do you admire above all others?" Nearly 60 percent said that they admired mom and dad more than any other living person. Among the few celebrities mentioned were John Travolta, Kristy McNichol, Muhammad Ali and Steve Martin. President Carter got two votes. Several mentioned God (He's still living") as the person they most admired.

Asked whether confidence in our government had increased in the past year, 60 percent said "no."

Inflation was listed as America's biggest problem (47 percent), with crime (24 percent), and unemployment (10 percent) next.

One said: "Inflation has to be stopped, yet like the experts, I have no solution." Most were concerned over the rising prices of "just about everything." The death penalty for some crimes was favored by 74.4 percent.

More than three students in five said they thought their parents would be willing to pay higher taxes for better education despite the growing tax revolt.

"It isn't really surprising to find 8th and 9th graders aware of this year's so-called taxpayers' revolt against paying more taxes ... even for better education," Ralph C. Wagner, president, Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation, stated.

"The answers to this survey I believe reflect not only a conservative trend which began just a short time ago, but a serious concern and opinion about current problems."

Relative to teachers' strikes, only 18 percent thought there was no justification for strikes; 53 percent felt teachers were justified to strike for higher pay, and 27 percent felt teachers should strike for better educational materials.

Several weeks ago the Gallup Poll revealed a majority of teenage children cheated on tests. The Britannica survey revealed that nearly 83 percent reported cheating. Of this majority 12 percent said "but only once."

More than half thought there should be laws restricting abortions and they were equally divided among boys and girls. Seventy-one percent believe that marijuana should not be legalized. "Nearly everyone I know smokes pot anyway," one boy said. "So why not make it legal? No one has to do it, but most do." A girl commented, "I think it's stupid for the police wasting their time on arresting people for smoking marijuana when it doesn't hurt them. They should spend their time and the taxpayers' money to apprehend criminals."

The favorite motion picture of those questioned was "Grease." There was no clearcut choice of a favorite book, and they haven't abandoned television by any means. Their favorite TV program is "Mork and Mindy" by a wide margin.

Babson College in Wellesley

Babson emphasizes management careers

An institution which specializes in management education, Babson College is dedicated to seeking excellence in selected areas rather than adequacy in many. Babson is currently working under a master plan which serves as a guidelines for achieving its objectives.

Babson places primary emphasis on educating for management careers in the private sector of business and in public and nonprofit institutions. Emphasis is also placed on the development of professional and applied skills, balanced with theoretical and conceptual knowledge.

The mission of the college goes further than that. An attempt is made to help students develop a strong sense of social responsibility toward their communities, organizations, and toward other individuals. Furthermore, Babson believes in maintaining a close relationship with the business community, and with the public and nonprofit sectors. A special effort is made to insure a feeling of sensitivity for the needs and desires of the surrounding communities.

Babson's undergraduate program is designed to educate broadly for life in a complex and rapidly changing society with special emphasis on providing instruction to educate for managerial responsibility in that society. With this goal in mind, Babson has become one of the leading undergraduate management education colleges in the country.

The graduate program provides a high-quality management education for college graduates through a combined academic and experiential curriculum designed primarily to meet the educational needs of the non-business baccalaureate, but which also recognizes the further management education needs of the business degree holder.

Babson College President Ralph Z. Sorenson has stated that, "One of the single most powerful educational developments in the last part of this century will be the increasing recognition that education is not something to be relegated to one's youth, but rather can and should be a continuous process throughout one's life."

In keeping with the convictions stated by President Sorenson, Babson is constantly increasing its activities in the area of Continuing Management Education; programs which provide an ongoing service to the management community to facilitate the professional development of management personnel.

Other educational programs include ongoing special series which bring renowned business and public figures to the Babson campus. As a demonstration of its concern for surrounding communities, Babson offers many special series, such as its Founder's Day program and its Carpenter and Goldston Lecture Series, which are open to the public.

Babson is receiving much recognition for what it is accomplishing in the field of management education. Success comes from the excellence of its particular programs, but stems from its overall commitment to management education in all areas.

Howard Haywood to be ordained at Myrtle Baptist Church Sunday

Brother Howard Haywood, associate minister of Myrtle Baptist Church of West Newton for five years, will be ordained Sunday, Jan. 14, at 3 p.m.

Haywood was licensed to preach at Myrtle Baptist Church under the pastorate of the Rev. Harold A. Pulley. He is presently serving as Sunday School superintendent and was leader of the Baptist Youth Fellowship until recently. He has been a member of Myrtle Baptist for 23 years and was awarded the Outstanding Layman Award in 1975.

A native of Newton, he attended Newton Schools and graduated from Newton North High School. Brother Haywood is attending the Church Training Center which is sponsored by the United Baptist Convention of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and the American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts and affiliated with Andover Newton Theological School and Boston University School of Theology. The school is located at Boston University's Martin Luther King Center.

A member of Bricklayer's Local No. 32-Newton for 14 years, he is presently an inspector in the construction division of the MBTA.

Haywood was the community coordinator for the ACT Committee (Africans Coordinating Together), a prison and community based program. He is a director of NCDP (Newton Community Development Foundation).

Haywood is married to Karen (Evans) and they have a daughter, Kristen and a son, Howard Jr. His grandfather, Deacon George Haywood, served Myrtle Baptist Church as deacon for many years.

Participating in the service will be the combined choirs of Myrtle Baptist Church. Those taking part in the service of ordination are: the Rev. Rafe Taylor, pastor, Ebenezer Baptist Church, Roxbury; the Rev. Paul A. Fullilove, pastor, Third Baptist Church, Springfield; the Rev. Melvin Brown, pastor, Union Baptist Church, Cambridge; the Rev. William L. Cooper, pastor, Metropolitan Baptist Church, Dorchester; the Rev. Robert L. Carter, pastor, Congdon Street Baptist Church, Providence, R.I. and President of the United Baptist Convention of Mass. & R.I.; Dr. Roscoe C. Robison, executive minister, the American Baptist Churches of Mass.; Dr. Eddie S. O'Neal, professor of Pastoral Theology, Andover Newton Theology School; the Rev. Louis E. Ford, pastor emeritus Myrtle Baptist Church.

The Rev. Robert L. Littlejohn, Pastor of Myrtle Baptist Church, will deliver the message.

Pastor Littlejohn and the membership invite all pastors and congregations and the public to attend the ordination service. A reception will follow in the fellowship hall of the church.

Howard Haywood

Rev. Warren Russell

Rev. Russell named

The Rev. Warren Russell of Newton, executive director of the Baptist Homes of Massachusetts, has been appointed cochairman of the annual Awards Committee of the Massachusetts Chapter of the American College of Nursing Home Administrators.

Rev. Russell will serve with a large committee to select long-term care administrators who have excelled in community patient care, professional development, and industry advancement.

Rev. Russell is also chairman of the Chapter's committee on ethics. He heads the 67-year-old Baptist Home on Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, one of the oldest and largest of its kind in the state.

Seniors—reach out to Outreach

The Department of Human Services Senior Citizen Outreach Worker Program, originally funded as a demonstration project under CETA in the fall of 1977, continues to locate and help isolated elders with problems and to expand and strengthen the network of senior citizen services in Newton's neighborhoods.

Funded by the West Suburban Elder Service Home Care Corp., the Outreach Worker program has helped 700 senior citizens and their families with problems concerning finances, housing, health, transportation, alcoholism, legal issues, nursing home placements, emotional distress, and loneliness.

Howard Lipton, director of the Department of Human Services, said that the Outreach Worker program has proved its value to the community, particularly to senior citizens. Mr. Lipton added, "In terms of costs for each $1.00 spent on the project, close to $2.00 were obtained for clients from such sources as social security, tax abatements, Medicare-Medicaid, rent subsidies, food stamps and homemaker assistance."

Steve Holmes, chairman of the Council on Aging, noted that, "Many senior citizens would not have known how to obtain their full entitlement if they had not been helped by the outreach workers."

Any senior citizens or their families seeking more information or assistance should contact the Department of Human Services at 552-7170.

Myrtle Baptist Church marks Dr. King's birthday

A two day commemoration of the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be held by the Myrtle Baptist Church of West Newton.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann will speak and present a proclamation for the City of Newton at a noon service on Jan. 15 at Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St. Rev. Robert L. Littlejohn, Jr., pastor of the church will deliver the message, and there will be proclamations from BCON (Black Citizens of Newton) by the president, Joseph Warren; NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) by Matthew Jefferson, president; and Myrtle Baptist Church, by Lillie B. Jefferson, clerk.

Music will be presented by the combined choirs of the church under the direction of James Prout, organist. A trio of faculty members of the All Newton Music School will perform under a grant of the Massachusetts Council of the Arts and Humanities. They are: Constance Boykan, flute; Elizabeth Morse, harp; and David Fink, cello.

Pastor Littlejohn and the Social Concerns Committee of the church invite all churches, temples, government bodies and citizens to participate in this hour of commemoration.

On Sunday, Jan. 14, Rev. Littlejohn will participate in a pulpit exchange with the First Baptist Church, Bedford, at the 11 a.m. worship service. Rev. James Unger, Bedford pastor and D. Min. candidate at Andover Newton Theological School, will speak at Myrtle Baptist Church on "The Pilgrimage of Faith." Rev. Littlejohn will be guest preacher at First Baptist Bedford and the senior choir

It's a Matter of Choice

Let's get right to the meat of the subject. Pewter Pot's new Branding Iron Steak, served with Pilgrim Fries and salad now comes in two portion sizes.

Our always popular 6-ounce steak, only $3.50. And now, for a heartier appetite, a full half pound steak at $4.25. Same great steak, only now more of it.

Of course, Pewter Pot still offers lots of other great meals at terrific prices. Not to mention delicious desserts.

Come on in to Pewter Pot, where the menu's been beefed up, the prices are still low, and the choice is yours for the asking.

NEWTONVILLE 825 Washington St.

Newton residents were honored recently for their years of service to St. Elizabeth's Hospital during the hospital's annual awards dinner. Accepting congratulations from Hospital Executive Director William J. Skerry (left) of Newton Centre are (from left): Ann Cammarata of Newton Corner, 25-year award recipient; and Stephen Donegan and Rose Walsh, R.N., both of Newton Corner, 5-year award recipients.

19 students earn honors at St. Sebastian's School

Nineteen Newton residents were among the 69 students meriting placement on St. Sebastian's Country Day School's Honor Roll for the first trimester.

To qualify, a student must maintain an 80 or better average in six or more subjects. Students with an 80 or better average in all subjects but one receive honorable mention.

The students, by village, name, and grade, are as follows:
Auburndale, Stephen Holmes, grade 10.

Chestnut Hill, Thomas O'Connor, grade 9; Timothy O'Brien, grade 7 (honorable mention).

Newton, Kurt Landfors, grade 8; and John Farese, grade 9.

Newton Centre, Francis Riotti, grade 8; Thomas McCallum, grade 9; William grade 11; Paul Murphy, grade 12; Mark O'Friel, grade 12; Michael Mulowney, grade 7 (honorable mention).

Newton Highlands, Thomas Finucane, grade 12 (honorable mention).

Newtonville, Timothy Greeley, grade 8 (honorable mention); Joseph Vaneas, grade 10 (honorable mention).

Waban, T. Kern Fitzgerald, grade 12; Alan Maloney, grade 12; Daniel Moore, grade 12.

West Newton, Anthony Lembo, grade 10; Robert Pozzi, grade 10.

These students are among the 256 young men from more than 30 different communities in the Greater Boston area currently participating in St. Sebastian's six-year college preparatory program.

The school is located on Nonantum Hill, at the Boston-Newton city line.

Any area residents interested in learning more about St. Sebastian's are encouraged to call the school at 244-1456 or attend its open house on Saturday, Feb. 3, at 12:30 p.m.

Guest speakers at Second Baptist

Second Baptist Church, Newton Upper Falls, has announced two guest speakers for its services Sunday, Jan. 14.

At the 11 a.m. service, the Rev. Ralph Rudolph will speak. He is a former pastor, and now works for the Evangelistic Association in its Elderly Ministries program. He will discuss his work in the association.

At the 7 p.m. service, the Rev. Hector Newman will speak. He is a native of Spanish Honduras and will discuss his country. He and his wife wish to return to Honduras as missionaries.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Catholic Memorial has 16 on honor roll

Brother William Dobbins, headmaster of Catholic Memorial High School, West Roxbury, announced that 16 Newton students made the honor roll for the first marking period.

They are as follows, according to grade and honors:

Grade 9, first honors, Charles Doherty, Richard Mullen, and Christopher Smith; second honors, Stephen Nuzzi.

Grade 10, second honors, Verne Porter Jr.

Grade 11, first honors, Michael Broderick, Gregg Ford; second honors, Joseph Corsi, Lawrence Crovo, Peter McAvinn, Gregory McCourt, and Paul Meinhardt.

Grade 12, first honors, Walter McGauley, Jr.; second honors, Ernest Berry III, Michael Kinchla, and Stephen Lombardi.

Travel

Islands, antiquities make Greece a holiday land

The Greek word "Xenos" means both stranger and guest, because in Greece, a stranger is treated as a guest. Greek hospitality is more than manners, it's an ancient tradition.

And it's this warmth that makes a trip to Greece a special holiday.

Timeless beauty from the classic age, a dry sunny climate where the sun shines 300 days a year, 1425 islands, mountains and secluded coves, this is Greece.

It's in Athens where the old meets the new. Athens, the world's oldest surviving capital city, covers over 500 square miles at the southeastern tip of continental Greece in the province of Attica.

Athens was called the "violet-crowned city" because colors are reflected at sunset from the slopes of surrounding mountains.

The heart of the city rests between the rock of the Acropolis with its fantastic remains from the "Golden Age," and Lycabettus Hill, which rises steeply from a sea of houses and topped by a small white church. The rest of the city spreads across a plain and is bordered by Mount Parnes, a resort area, Mount Pentelicon, where the marble for the Parthenon came from, Mount Hymettus, renowned for its honey, Byzantine churches and monasteries. To the south is the Apollo Coast, a breathtaking coastline dotted with hotels and seashore complexes.

The Plaka quarter is the ancient part of Athens. Here is the flea market of Monastiraki, bustling with open-air markets, coppersmiths, cobblers and antique shops. At night it becomes the entertainment center of Athens with its numerous restaurants and nightclubs. Eating out at night is such a popular habit that there are more restaurants in Athens than in the rest of Greece combined. When buying food in Greece, it is interesting to note that it is cheaper in this country than in the rest of Europe. Almost everyone speaks English in Athens but once outside the tourist areas, Greek is the word. Therefore, it is highly recommended to have a guide with you even when striking out on your own.

It is certainly worthwhile to head inland, to see the sites at Olympia for example. Quaint small towns connect Patras, the capital of the province of Peloponnese and third largest city of Greece to ancient Olympia. Olympia developed into the center of the Hellenic world, and became filled with masterpieces of Greek art. It survived for over ten centuries, from the Heroic period to A.D. 393, the last year of the Olympic games of antiquity.

Every island has its own character. Rhodes is considered one of the most beautiful. It has become an immensely popular holiday area and has the added advantage of a mild and sunny winter climate. Gorgeous bathing beaches and ruins in fine archaeological condition are among its attractions. The islanders are very Greek and traditional.

One of the more fashionable islands is Mykonos. Brilliant white houses, colorful narrow-twisting streets, 360 churches and chapels, golden beaches, active night life and inexpensive and spotlessly clean rooms await the vacationer. It is also a happy hunting ground for artists. The island of Delos, the birthplace of Apollo and Artemis lies nearby. It was the most sacred island of ancient Greece—no mortal could be born or die there.

Greece's climate is generally warm and sunny, although it is cool enough for a jacket in the winter months. The rain comes in March and April. Prime time for taking cruises and generally going to Greece is June through September. The temperature rises to the 90's and 100's but it is a dry heat and cooled by the sea breezes. Cruises end in October because the waters become too rough. Flying from Boston during the off season may cost as low as $468, but climbs to $618 during the height of the season.

Deluxe hotels in Athens will cost $40 to $50 a day, while tourist hotels will run $20 to $25. The prices drop further away from the city.

Ginny Olsen and Genevieve Reagan of Mitchell Real Estate in Medfield have recently been awarded membership in the prestigious Massachusetts Association of Realtors Two and One Half Million Club. Mrs. Olsen and Mrs. Reagan, left and center respectively, each sold more than that amount in residential sales and listings. They are two of only 13 realtors in the state who received the honor during the past year. At right Lee Howell, also of Mitchell Real Estate, who was awarded membership in the One Million Club. All three realtors, residents of Medfield, were members of the One Million Club last year.

Adult education: It's never too late

"What are you doing with the rest of your life?" is the question students at Continuum resolve through a nine month career internship program. Continuum, at 785 Centre St. in Newton was established in 1974 to assist women over 30 change career and employment directions. It was the first program in the area to combine direct work experience, or internships, with continuous career counseling and workshops which develop employment skills for women.

Betsy Riviere of Newton, entered the program in September with 23 other women from the Greater Boston area including the Cape and North Shore. Mrs. Riviere completed orientation period in October and is currently working in her first internship in the placement office of a Boston Law School. Her internship involves learning the mechanics of the office and the tasks involved in recruitment. "I am enjoying being part of a large educational setting without being a student. I have an opportunity to understand the administrative side of education," Mrs. Eiviere explains. Her work in raising four children and in extensive volunteer activities with her church have developed skills in management and organizing which she is utilizing in her internship placement at the Law School. She and her co-interns will be involved in 3 separate internships throughout the year which ends in June.

The internships are matched to the needs, interests, educational background, and paid or volunteer work histories of each student. Staff counselors develop the internships with sponsoring organizations representing business, education, legal, medical, government, and a variety of other fields. The counselors also provide private and group career counseling on a regular basis. Weekly seminars develop the students' skills in the selection, entry, and advancement of new careers.

For information about the school, admissions, open houses, short-term counseling, and career programs for women, call 964-3322 or write Continuum, 785 Centre St., Newton, MA 02458.

Afternoon child care available at Bowen

The Bowen After School Day Care Program is now accepting applications for both full and part time children who were four and a half by Sept 6, 1978.

The program, a non-profit parent run, child oriented center, encourages group and individual play. It has the use of playground and gym facilities at Bowen School.

Enrollment is now open to children outside the Bowen district. For further information call Tasha Bonafanti at 332-3923.

January programs of Centre clubwomen

A program presented by Firestone and Parson, jewelers and silversmiths of the Ritz Carlton Hotel, will be featured at the January meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club on Friday, Jan. 12.

Miss Mary Brennan, program 1:45 chairman, announces that the program will start at p.m. following dessert and coffee at 12:30 p.m. and a business meeting conducted by Mrs. William L. Bruce, president, at 1:30.

The meeting will be held in the Berkeley Room at Andover Newton Theological School. Hostesses of the day will be Mrs. Jerome Bertolino, Mrs. Leo T. McCallum and Mrs. John C. Mileikis.

A tour of the Isabella Stewart Gardner Palace will be conducted on Thursday, Jan. 18, by Miss Anne Garland, professor of art and member of the Newton Centre Woman's Club. A bus will leave from the parking lot at the rear of the Sacred Heart Parish Center at 12:45 p.m. and will return between 3:30 and 4 p.m. For reservations, call Mrs. Rene J. Marcou, activities chairman, before Jan. 12.

Marrie T. Kenney directs meeting of School Secretaries

The Massachusetts Association of School Secretaries, state organization for educational office personnel, will hold its winter meeting and luncheon on Jan. 13 at the 57 Restaurant, Park Square, Boston.

A social hour will start at noon and luncheon will be served at 1 p.m., followed by entertainment and a demonstration by A. B. Dick.

Mrs. Marrie T. Kenney of Newton is meeting chairman. Other Newton women participating are Mrs. Ruth Morse, MASS president, and Mrs. Betty LaTona and Mrs. Marjory Harting, executive board members. Reservations may be made by calling any of them at the Newton Public Schools.

Nursing students Claire Schmid, left, and Wendy Ireland receive a $5000 check from officers of the Hospital Aid Association that will go into the scholarship fund of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital

School of Nursing. Presenting the check is Mrs. Jack Parker of Wellesley Hills, treasurer, and at the far right is Mrs. Edward Uehlein of Waban, assistant treasurer of the aid association.

Simmons Clubwomen to hear talk on architecture

Marie Diamond will discuss "American Architecture" in her slide-illustrated talk at the next meeting of the Charles River Valley Simmons Club Thursday, Jan. 18, at the Josiah Smith Tavern in Weston Center at 8 p.m.

"From Grecian farmhouses to towers of glass, American architecture demonstrates the vitality of the nation," says Ms. Diamond. "In this program, we shall see some of the results."

Marie Diamond, a Reading resident, has an A.B. in Fine Arts from Wellesley College, received in 1948, and has done graduate work at Harvard University and Radcliff College. Primarily a lecturer at the Museum of Fine Arts, she is also a visiting lecturer in American painting and architecture at Boston College.

There will be refreshments and a social hour from 7:30 to 8 p.m. The president, Mrs. Robert Freiburghouse of Newtonville, will preside over a short business meeting at 8 p.m. Mrs. Rudolph Helgeson and Mrs. Thomas Stantial, both of Weston, will be co-hostesses.

All Simmons alumnae living in the area and their guests are invited to attend. There will be a small fee for guests.

Marjorie Cohen, Newton, weds Jeffrey Jon Cohen

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Cohen

Marjorie Ilene Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Cohen of Newton Centre, was married on Dec. 17 to Jeffrey Jon Cohen of Brookline. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Cohen of Brookline.

The noon wedding took place at Temple Emeth, Brookline, and a reception followed at Mill Falls. The bride was attended by her sister, Susan Sherman, and Joanie Pokross. Howard Wynn was best man for Mr. Cohen.

Both bride and groom are graduates of Boston University. She is a teacher at Little People's School and he is in the real estate business.

After a trip to Acapulco, Mexico, they will live in Brookline.

Mt. Alvernia wins regional accreditation

At the 93rd annual meeting of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Mount Alvernia High School, 790 Centre St., Newton, was recognized for regional accreditation during 1978.

Formal presentation of the accreditation certificate was made by Association President John W. Chandler, president of Williams College in Williamstown.

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges is an independent, voluntary, non-governmental organization of educational institutions. The Association is recognized by the United States Commissioner of Education as the sole regional agency to award accreditation to educational institutions in New England.

The Association is dedicated to the establishment of cooperative relations among the colleges and schools of New England, to the development, maintenance and improvement of sound educational standards, and to the promotion of interest common to both colleges and schools.

Institutional members of the New England Association represent public junior-high middle schools and high schools, vocational secondary schools, independent schools, postsecondary technical and career institutions, junior colleges, and four-year colleges and universities. Over 1200 educational institutions have complied with membership requirements of extensive evaluation and peer group review by a visiting committee.

Accreditation by the New England Association followed a year of in-depth self-study by the school staff led by Sister Mary Damon Nolan, OSF. The self-evaluation report covering all aspects of the school was prepared prior to the visit of a team of educators appointed by the New England Association whose job it was to take a close and unbiased look at the institution and develop a written report identifying standards of the school along with a series of recommendations to improve further the quality of educational opportunities on the students enrolled.

In earning accreditation, the school can assure local citizens that it has submitted all its programs, procedures and facilities to the scrutiny of outside professional educators, and its offerings have been deemed worthwhile.

Mary-Louise Kiley marries Norman Swanberg at BC

Mary-Louise Kiley of Newton Centre and Norman Eric Swanberg of Stoughton were married recently at The Most Holy Trinity Chapel of Boston College. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Kiley.

She was graduated cum laude from Smith College and studied for a year at the University of Geneva. In 1977 she earned a master's degree in social work at Boston College, and is a social worker for Catholic Social Service in Los Angeles.

Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Norman Swanberg of Stoughton, graduated from Brown University.

He holds a master's degree in electrical engineering from Northeastern and is now an engineer for Hughes Aircraft in Torrance, Cal.

Volunteers interviewed at Museum of Science

Interviews for volunteer assignments at Boston's Museum of Science are now underway.

Both men and women are needed for a variety of assignments, ranging from the annual Giant Garage Sale to visitor guides who represent the Museum in contact with visitors of all ages.

Those whose only opportunity for volunteering is weekends are urged to become Gift Shop assistants. The shop welcomes people who work quickly and enjoy a busy pace. It stocks jewelry, hobby materials, books, and other science-related items.

Many different talents are used in preparing for the garage sale in May.

Collecting, sorting, pricing, and publicizing are among the tasks required for the sale, a major benefit for the Museum.

Visitor guides talk informally to Museum visitors to help them understand exhibits; they do not conduct tours. A science background is desirable.

Volunteers are also needed for Project Eye-Opener, which introduces seven-year-old, inner-city youngsters to exhibits and live animals. Each volunteer conducts three or four children around the Museum every Monday morning. Volunteers take turns maintaining a baby-sitting service so that young mothers may participate as guides.

Training classes beginning at the end of this month are offered for all volunteers.

To arrange for an interview, prospective volunteers should call the Volunteer Office at 723-2500, ext. 259.

Elinore Trowbridge lectures on gardens

Elinore Trowbridge of Newton Highlands will lead a slide tour of the gardens of Scandinavia on Jan. 10 as part of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's winter series on Gardens of the World.

Her lecture will be given in the library of Horticultural Hall, 300 Massachusetts Ave., across from Symphony Hall, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Admission will be $2 for Horticultural Society members and $2.50 for non members.

Mrs. Trowbridge is active at the Arnold Arboretum and gives a tour of its greenhouse every Wednesday. She does demonstrations on the "Noon News" and the "Good Day Show" on WCVB-TV, Ch. 5, and has written many articles for Horticulture magazine, which is published monthly by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

LWV meetings on snow removal, safety

Three meetings on snow removal from sidewalks and pedestrian safety will be held next week by the League of Women Voters. They will be open to the public.

Questions for discussion will be: should sidewalks be cleared of snow? Which ones? By whom?

The meetings will be: Wednesday, Jan. 17, 9:15 a.m. at First Baptist Church, Newton Centre; Thursday, Jan. 18, at 7:45 p.m. at 119 Windemere Rd., Auburndale; and Friday, Jan. 19, 9:15 a.m. at Auburndale Congregational Church, Hancock Street.

Babysitting will be available for $1 at morning meetings. For further information call 964-5956.

With all their heart

"I shall pass through this world but once—
If therefore there be any kindness I can show—or any good I can do—let me do it now.
Let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

Etienne de Grellet 1773-11 1855

No matter how much is written on the subject of heart surgery, the person facing that surgery feels they "are the only one—the first one," says Mrs. Martha Finn of Brookline who belongs to the international group of Mended Hearts.

Many of the members are volunteer visitors to patients either before or after heart surgery. Anyone facing heart surgery "feels alone and apprehensive," explained Mrs. Jan Gropman of Needham. Thus, the volunteer is a living example to the person that heart surgery can be successful.

Mrs. Finn and Mrs. Gropman have both had heart surgery. Mrs. Finn's surgery was an unexpected event 25 years ago. A congenital heart defect was aggravated by dental work done without antibiotics. Mrs. Gropman had a valve replaced.

Because these volunteers have shared the experience and are now leading healthy lives, "they make the other person realize they will become normal people again," said Mrs. Dorothy Sobol, an associate member of Mended Hearts. Mrs. Sobol's husband, Robert, is an "active" member.

Active members are those who have had heart surgery. Sobol, who had a triple bypass two years ago, leads a busy life and conducts his visits by phone. "After he talks with a person for about an hour, they feel as if they were given a whole new attitude," commented his wife.

Throughout the world, there are 10,000 members of Mended Heart dedicated to helping others. Their volunteer efforts extend not only to heart surgery patients, but often to the families of these patients.

They feel they have been given a second chance at life. So deep is this feeling that most "take two birthdays, a anniversary and a regular birthday," says Mrs. Gropman. Mrs. Gropman recently received a pin for 100 hours of volunteer service.

Like many other volunteers in this area, she was trained by Mrs. Sonia Terk of Dorchester. Mrs. Terk, who had a mitral valve repaired 10 years ago, is a diminutive dynamo who has 1,000 volunteer hours to her credit. She is presently training a 10-year-old youngster as a volunteer.

Before Mrs. Terk's surgery, she was visited by a friend who reassured her. Today, Mrs. Terk, who says she has "gotten a second lease on life," visits patients three times a week.

Mended Hearts was founded in 1951 by four patients who met after their surgery. When they realized how much encouragement and support they were receiving by talking with each other, they founded the outreach program.

The group is not only made up of active members, but also includes associate members, often spouses. Robert Finn, for example, has been an associate member for 25 years and during that time has provided the group with free legal service.

Just as the spouses help, they are also helped by volunteers who will many times sit with them while they are waiting for a member of their family to undergo surgery.

During training, the volunteers are taught to cultivate "serenity," yet one admitted there are moments when, privately, they have shed tears over stories they hear.

However, they don't avoid the situations because they want to help. At times, having climbed the stairs to a patient's room, their energy and their common bond transmit hope. They also help the patient "realize how fortunate they are to be considered a candidate" for the surgery.

Often they are the ones the patient will turn to asking questions like "how long did it take you to have sex?" Doctors and nurses avoid talk discussing the subject of sex and the patient is too embarrassed to ask, said the volunteers.

Other times the patients ask questions that they have already asked a doctor or nurse. When they hear the same answer again, "they will believe it," says Mrs. Finn.

All stressed that they do not present the patient with medical information nor do they pretend to be doctors or nurses. They are simply human beings reaching out to each other. They are linked by virtue of the fact they have shared the same struggle.

Many wear a lapel pin or charm on a chain bearing the Mended Hearts logo. Mrs. Beverly Weiss of Newton, national executive secretary for the group, says that calls come in from all over the world to their office located at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

The members hold a national convention once a year both for education and for the election of officers. They also have a volunteer who attends American Heart Association meetings. Mrs. Finn is the liaison between the national Mended Hearts group and the national American Heart Association.

Recently, the chapter held a dinner dance where Mrs. Irene Caplan of Newton said it was amazing to see all those people who have had heart surgery out on the floor disco dancing. Mrs. Caplan is an active member who had her surgery when she was 12 years old.

There is no way to measure their impact. For themselves they feel as Mrs. Finn when she recalled a conversation between herself and her doctor as he was discharging her for one year. "I foresee a long and useful life for you," he said. She asked why he didn't include the word happy. "If you are useful, you will be happy," he replied.

Moments when they are tempted to give up, are countered when they hear people say, after discovering Mended Hearts, "where were you when I needed you?"

(For information about Mended Hearts, call 732-5609 Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.)

THE READERS WRITE... Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Dear Diane: I would like some recipes for some meatless main dishes.

Mrs. H.B. Wallace, Newton

Dear Mrs. Wallace: The basic approach, of course, in using meatless main courses is to use ingredients like cheese, eggs, fish and protein-rich vegetables to supply adequate nutrition and satisfaction. Flavor is important too.

The Tuna Egg Croquettes below double up on needed protein, adding bread crumbs and onion with a seasoning of Worcestershire. Fried until golden and crispy, they can be served with a creamy sauce.

The Chick Pea Loaf is surprising. You take the first bite and it's good, the second is even better and the third is terrific.

TUNA EGG CROQUETTES

1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
1 1/2 cups fine dry bread crumbs, divided
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1/2 teaspoon salt
5 teaspoons original Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs
3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/2 cup flour

Oil for deep frying or 1/2 cup salad oil

In a medium bowl mix tuna, 1/2 cup of the bread crumbs, onion, parsley flakes, salt, Worcestershire sauce and 1 egg, lightly beaten. Fold in hard-cooked eggs. For each croquette use a generous third-cup of the mixture; form into pyramids, cones or balls; repeat, making 8 croquettes. In 3 separate shallow dishes place flour, remaining 1 egg, lightly beaten and 1 cup bread crumbs. Dip each croquette in flour and then in egg; coat with bread crumbs. Refrigerate 1/2 hour. Fry a few at a time in deep fat heated to 350 F. until golden, about 2 minutes. Or, in a large skillet heat 1/2 cup oil until hot. Fry croquettes, a few at a time until brown on all sides, about 3 minutes. Serve with cream sauce, if desired. YIELD: 4 portions

Tuna egg croquettes

CHICK PEA LOAF

2 cans (20 oz. each) chick peas, drained
1 cup soft whole wheat bread crumbs (about 3 slices)
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 cup coarsely ground walnuts
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons salad oil
5 teaspoons original Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs, lightly beaten

Preheat oven to 375 F. In a large bowl mash chick peas (makes about 3 cups). Add bread crumbs, celery, walnuts, onion, parsley, salt, tomato juice, oil, Worcestershire sauce and eggs; mix well. Spoon into a greased 9-x 5-x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake until set, about 30 minutes. Turn out of pan onto serving plate. Let stand 5 minutes before cutting into slices. If desired, serve with tomato sauce seasoned with Worcestershire sauce. YIELD: 6 portions

KITCHEN CORNER

By LOIS JALBERT
Transcript Correspondent

Harold Turin, a busy advertising executive from Newton, considers working in the kitchen for five or six hours on a Saturday, the best way to shed the pressures of the week. His interest in haute cuisine started about 20 years ago and he has been preparing gourmet food and collecting cookbooks ever since. In fact, Turin did a cookbook count and came up with a figure of 165 in his library. They range from his first purchase, "A Gastronomic Tour of France" to books detailing the cuisine of Asia. His second purchase was a book by Escoffier which he admits was so difficult it took him by surprise. However, that book was the challenge to cooking which solidified his interest in haute cuisine.

When there is to be a special dinner at the Turin's, it becomes a joint effort. Turin often prepares the main course while his wife, Phyllis, another excellent cook, will prepare the remaining courses. A dinner at their home might well be Mexican, Cantonese, Szechuan, Mandarin, Italian or American. His favorite foods to prepare are French and Italian. When the Turins travelled to France, they arranged their schedule to fit in time at great restaurants. They began in Paris and had dinner at Le Grand Vefore. There they ordered poire belle otero which appears in today's Kitchen Corner. From Paris they travelled to Burgundy, Leon, Provence, and the Riviera dining every evening in a famous restaurant. To assure a table and to assure being served the specialty of the house, they ordered the table and main courses weeks in advance.

For a recent dinner, Turin served a cassoulet for 18 people. The cassoulet billed as "country fare" takes several hours to prepare and is served with a dry, white wine, French bread and a salad of assorted greens.

POIRE BELLE OTERO

(Poached pears with Grand Marnier custard cream)

4 winter pears (Bosc, Anjou or Comice)
2 cups water
1 cup sugar
vanilla bean or 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Make a syrup of the water, sugar and vanilla. Peel and core pears, slice in half and poach in vanilla syrup. Do not overcook.

PASTRY CREAM

3/4 cup sugar
5 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups milk
6 egg yolks
6 tablespoons butter
vanilla extract to taste
Grand Marnier to taste
Garnish:
Macaroons
Grand Marnier
1 cup whipped cream

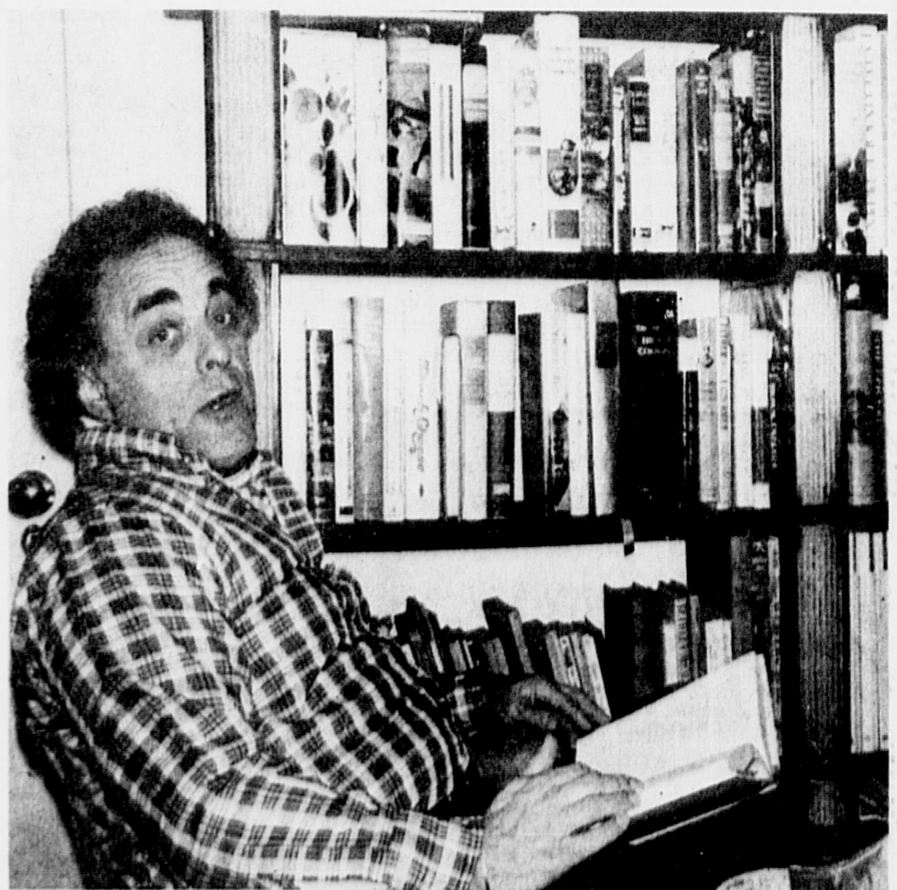

sugar to taste
crystallized violets

Combine sugar, cornstarch and flour in the top of a double boiler, stir in milk and cook over direct heat stirring constantly until mixture comes to a boil. Boil, stirring constantly for one minute. Beat egg yolks slightly with a wire whisk and add half cup of the hot mixture to the beaten egg yolks; mix thoroughly and pour into saucepan containing milk and sugar mixture, continuing to stir. Cook over hot, not boiling water, for five minutes. Strain, and cool slightly. Whisk in butter, then whisk in Grand Marnier and if desired vanilla extract to taste.

This may be assembled in one large serving dish or individual flat bottomed dessert dishes, such as souffle dishes.

Spread a layer of custard on the bottom of the dish. Top this with a macaroon or macaroons depending on the serving dish. Use almond macaroons, not coconut. These are available in French and Italian bakeries. Sprinkle the macaroons with Grand Marnier. Cover with remaining pastry cream. Arrange poached pear halves on top.

Combine whipped cream with sugar and Grand Marnier to taste. Decorate dessert with whipped cream. Use a pastry tube with a star nozzle. Decorate top with a crystallized violet. Violets are available at gourmet stores. A maraschino cherry will do, but the violet is traditional.

Hunt on for printing alternatives

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soaring paper prices and the high machinery and labor costs of printing and distributing books and periodicals are spurring the search for alternative methods of publishing.

No one expects printing on paper to die. Printed books, catalogs, magazines and newspapers are too convenient, too elegant and otherwise too satisfying to be dispensed with.

Nevertheless, the hunt for cheaper alternatives is being stepped up. It began 50 years ago with the development of microfilm, which isn't cheap or fast in itself but provides a convenient and inexpensive way of storing thousands of volumes of reference material in a very small space.

The electronic computer brought an even more compact and a very rapid way of storing information without printed paper. Now the computer is being married to television and photography with the help of satellite communications to create new ways of publishing.

The impact already is enormous and will grow in the years ahead. More and more persons will become comfortable reading from the face of a cathode ray tube or ground glass screen instead of from paper. Electronic alternatives to printing on paper already available include:

- Video display.
- Videotape.
- Broadcasting, which is a formidable competitor of print publishing for audiences and advertising revenues even though it doesn't provide consumers with actual copies.

- Facsimile, which uses paper but not the printing press and is delivered by wire or radio to the consumer. Its ultimate reproductive quality is inferior to good printing. Photographic m.e.s. include:

- Microfilm, still used mainly to miniaturize printed matter on film and store it compactly.
- Microfiche.
- Computer output microfiche.

The newest form of videodisplay publishing is being delivered into 12,000 English homes and the British expect to equip four million home TV receivers for it by the early 1980s. The system is called CEEFAX and the BBC and Oracle on Britain's independent TV network. It employs a Teletext decoder to create a magazine of the air from which the home viewer can choose any page and, by pushing a button, have it reproduced in color or black and white on the face of his TV screen.

The page images can be retrieved at any time from the broadcasting network's computer and the page can be "frozen" on the home TV screen for prolonged study. A choice of pages devoted to news and features is offered.

About $35 million worth of the teletext decoders have been sold to convert existing TV sets in Britain this year and the BBC is moving out to sell CEEFAX in other countries, including the United States.

Each page of the CEEFAX magazine can contain about 150 words of text or drawings such as maps or charts. Most new British TV receivers will come equipped to receive CEEFAX. At present, this adds about $200 to the cost of the set, but this figure is expected to come down. And the BBC does not make any extra charge to homeowners for receiving CEEFAX.

Ultimately, the BBC hopes to provide a companion printout device so homeowners can make a permanent record of any desired material.

Chairman Charles Ferris of the Federal Communications Commission attended a recent CEEFAX demonstration in Washington and said he hoped the American broadcasting networks soon would provide CEEFAX or a similar service.

Some persons at the Washington demonstration professed to see in CEEFAX a threat to newspapers because it can provide to homeowners many things for which they customarily depend on newspapers.

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $410; worth $1,700

NILES, Ill. — The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of The Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate . . . which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,700. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the Exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange.

To obtain a copy without cost or obligation, send your name, address, and zip code by Saturday of next week to: The Bradford Exchange, Dept. 44802, 9301 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, Illinois 60048. (Not available to Canadian residents.)

A spokesman for the British Information Service in New York said there is no such threat. He pointed out that Britain's General Postoffice has a somewhat similar service delivered by telephone lines into homes but offering access to a vastly larger computer data base. He said there is no indication that either this or CEEFAX would harm newspapers. He also said the proposed printout attachment likely will be expensive.

American broadcast observers at the Washington demonstration noted that you have to sit up close to the TV screen to read CEEFAX. It is not legible from the more normal "across-the-room" viewing seat. And the 150-word page capacity is scant compared with that of an office videodisplay terminal. The reason is that the line scanning pattern of the typical home TV receiver is intended for pictures. It simply doesn't adapt to closely packed alphanumeric text.

In the United States almost 900 cable television systems are delivering into homes, to be read from the face of the TV receiver, continuous silent 15-minute newscasts prepared by three wire services. The viewer cannot select a page and freeze it on the screen but the desired page will appear again in approximately 15 minutes.

Typical of this kind of TV publishing is United Press International's Cable Newswire, which is delivered to 331 cable television systems and also is being used experimentally over the air in broadcast transmissions by KSL-TV in Salt Lake City.

The UPI transmissions include general news, weather, business, sports, entertainment and lifestyle features. One 15-minute program in each hour is devoted to state and regional news and special features are shown on a spot or scheduled basis.

The American cable TV programs are designed to be read from the normal television viewing seat so the type is larger and only 40 words are put on the face of the screen at one time. There has been some experimentation with 80 words but that has not won much acceptance.

Although makers of videotape equipment sometimes profess to see the tape as a formidable rival to print publishing, it is likely always to be much too expensive. The blank tape alone to hold the contents of a book that sells in printed form for $7 to $20 will cost $75 to more than $200 and all the editorial, production, distribution and marketing costs must come on top of that.

An ambitious effort to slash this cost failed when the EVR partnership of American, British and Japanese companies led by CBS, Inc., gave up after spending many millions of dollars on a venture to substitute for the expensive magnetic tape relatively inexpensive 8mm black and white motion picture soundfilm carrying electronic color coding.

Videotapes and the machines to play them through home television receivers already are a big business and will grow. But it appears their future is in entertainment, educational, scientific, administrative and commercial programming requiring combinations of TV action pictures, special effect photography.

Of the photographic alternatives to printing, microfilm, either in 35mm or 16mm widths, still is largely a library supplement to print.

But when the French invented the microfiche card about 20 years ago users immediately began to bypass printing and put the copy directly on the microfiche to be read from the film transparency by means of a magnifying reader.

One or two four-by-six inch microfiche cards can hold the entire contents of a thick magazine and a big catalog or a multi-volume reference work on microfiche can be kept in a tiny desk file.

Computer output microfiche makes it possible to turn out microfiche images at high speed and at costs much below printing.

There are two classes each night for students from 7 to 8:30 and adults from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Equipment is supplied. The fee is $3.00 for students and $5.00 for adults and the instructor is Bill Baker. Interested Newton residents may call Supervisor, Bob Doherty at 552-7120 or go to the Newton Centre Hut on Wednesday evenings.

North skiers ready

A lack of snow forced the cancellation of the Newton North alpine squad's first meet this season, scheduled for Jan. 8.

Until snow is available for a rescheduled opening race, alpine coach John Fernandes said the alpine and nordic squads will continue their dry land training program.

Despite cancellation of the first meet, Fernandes is looking forward to a good season.

"Our main strength lies in our depth and in the size of our team. If any racer is absent due to illness or injury, we have strong alternates to fill the gap. This will allow the team consistently strong showing," he said.

Alpine squad captain Chris Heesepink noted, "Poor snow conditions afforded us no practice time at Prospect Hill before our first race, so all that we can do until there is enough snow is stay in good condition."

Neither Fernandes or nordic coach Joe Rigali is sure who the starting racers will be, but both plan to utilize their returning varsity skiers

South tumblers split

By ANDREA RESH and SANDY NAGLER

The Newton South Girl's Gymnastics Team held their first meets of the season on Jan. 3 and 5. They won the first meet against Wayland 64.1-63.45, but dropped their second to Melrose, 100.6-65.15.

The Lions worked hard for their first win. They were forced to play catchup from the half to make up their seven point deficit.

The young gymnasts put on a spectacular performance on the balance beam, as Carla Eknanian took first place, Lauren Kaufman second and Debbie Lee, third.

They also did well on the uneven bars with senior Jill Shuman taking second place, and sophomore Joanne Beatty, third.

Sophomore Carla Eknanian displayed her talents beautifully as she placed first on the balance beam and in the floor exercise. Her efforts along with those of her teammates boosted them over Wayland for their first victory of the season.

Statistics

Balance Beam
1. Carla Eknanian: (6.7); 2. Lauren Kaufman: (5.0); 3. Debbie Lee: (4.5)

Floor

1. Carla Eknanian: (6.7); 2. W.H.S.: 3. W.H.S.; 4. Lauren Kaufman: (5.5); 5. Debbie Lee: (4.2)

Uneven bars

1. W.H.S.; 2. Jill Shuman: (5.2); 3. Joanne Beatty: (3.55)

Vaulting
1. W.H.S.; 2. W.H.S.; 3. W.H.S.; 4. Jill Shuman: (5.55)

The Melrose meet was a disappointing one for the Orange and Blue as they failed to place first in any of the events. However, they did receive two second place finishes and one third.

The third place finish in the floor exercise was well deserved by Carla Eknanian. When she received a low 5.9 for an excellent performance, there was much controversy. This forced the judge to reconsider and raise Carla's score to a 6.5.

Unfortunately, this was not sufficient to make up the gap between the two teams. The Lions were handicapped by Melrose's significantly larger squad which enabled them to place six girls in each event to the Lions' maximum of four.

With their first loss of the season, the Lions head into the second week of competition with a record of 1-1.

South wrestlers sweep two

By Don Steinberg

A crowd of wild, cheering Newton South sports fans can only mean one thing. Well, actually, it can mean quite a few things, but a of Lion fans banging the gym radiators and screaming pack "Tonto!!!" can definitely have only one meaning: First year, 187-pound wrestler Rich Tarantino is pinning another foe.

The only South grappler to score pins in both matches last Friday night, Rich sealed victories over Weston and Lincoln-Sudbury in South's double-dual sweep.

The historic twin-triumph at home put the grapplers over .500 on the season. Things are beginning to jell for the Lions now. With injuries healing and weight-class conflicts clearing up, South should be strong for the rest of the season. Even with two starters missing, South overpowered Weston 34-26 and Lincoln-Sudbury 34-21.

Tarantino, co-captains Ron Krassin and Paul Butters, and Don Steinberg all picked up pins in the Lion win over Weston. After going down 12-0 on Weston pins at 100 and 107, South struck back quickly. Ron Krassin pinned his man in just 23 seconds, giving him 4 (3 first period) pins in as many bouts. Now secure at 121, Don Steinberg did the same, tying the score.

Ethan Miller wrestled like a man possessed, and fought off a pin against Weston's best grappler at 128. Then 134 pounder Paul Butters put South ahead for keeps with a third-person mat sleeper. Scotty Buffington increased South's lead with a major decision and Dave Isenberg chalked up his first varsity victory at 147. Rich Shone did a his job by winning convincingly at 157.

Ever improving rookie 169-pounder Alan Seifer could not defeat his more experienced foe, and the Lion lead was down to 8. Choosing to avoid Weston's strong 187 pounder, coach Chuck Hurwitz accepted to forfeit in that weight class and put Rich Tarantino in to pin the Weston heavyweight. The strategy paid off, as the Lions topped the Wildcats 34-26. South continued its winning style against Lincoln-Sudbury. With 11 100-pounder Wayne Chou temporarily sidelined, small first year man Andy Cohen had to take his place. Andy had been successful on junior varsity, but needs varsity experience. He was just over-matched. The Lions accepted an L.S. forfeit at 107 to tie the score at 6. Ron Krassin dominated his rival in scoring a 15-1 superior decision, Don Steinberg won at 121, and South was rolling again. After a Lion loss at 128, Paul Butters was robbed by the buzzer before he could register a pin and he settled for a major decision.

Other South triumphs came from Richie Stone, who came from behind to get a second reversal, and Rich Tarantino, who pinned yet another man. South got 6 more for an L.S. forfeit at heavyweight, and won this time 34-21 on a satisfying night.

The rest of the schedule shows that the toughest teams are yet to come for the Lions. With most of the matches at home, South will be listening for that beautiful sound of radiators being whacked.

More Newport seats

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The Newport Casino will feature more money and more seats during this year's Hall of Fame championships July 9-15.

The purse has been upped $25,000 this year to $100,000. The casino's seating capacity will also be increased from 2,500 to 4,100.

"We're trying to build the tournament up and put on a good one," said James H. Van Alen, the casino's chairman emeritus.

North skaters grab first

By Jane Wolfson

With a record of 1-3-1, if the Newton North Hockey Team doesn't get on the puck they are going to find themselves out of contention in the Suburban League race. Though League champions for the past two years, the Tigers seem to be unable to find themselves this season.

After the dropping of the opener of their season to Weymouth South 6-3, the Tigers were stunned three days later when they dropped another one to Quincy 4-2.

But playing against Brookline at the Watertown Skating Arena, Dec. 30, Newton North looked better skating to a 4-4 tie, and last Wednesday North beat North Quincy 5-3.

Brookline skated a 1-0 lead in the first period. With 4:30 remaining in the period senior Jeff Larson came around from the left and passed to senior Mickey DeMeo who checked checked it in for the goal.

A minute later, sophomore Bob Kenney gave the Tigers the lead with an assist from junior Gary Frenchette.

At 3:50 in the second period Newton had a 3-1 lead when senior co-captain Jim McHale scored from the right side on an assist from the senior John Leavitt. With less than a minute remaining Brookline scored from the right corner near the blue line to make the score 3-2.

Thirty seconds into the last period, Brookline evened the score at 3-3. McHale came through for the Tigers again, with three and a half minutes remaining and scoring what would have appeared to be the winning goal. But following the pattern of the Tigers frustrating season, with just a little over 30 seconds remaining, Brookline evened the score when on the power play Brookline's Bill Freedman, tied the score with an assist by Billy Smith.

Last Wednesday the Tigers picked up their first win of the season as they defeated North Quincy 5-3.

At 12:47 N. Quincy's Carl Marrella scored the game's first goal when senior goalie Paul Blummenstein came out of the goal to knock the puck away and Marrella came around and scored, assists going to Mark Parsons and John Doyle.

Senior Dave LaRoche fired a shot at 7:12 in the first period that cleared the top of the net. North Quincy's goalie made the save but senior Peter McHugh checked the puck into the upper left corner to tie the score.

At 7:12 in the second period, the combination of LaRoche and McHugh teamed up again when passing the puck back forth in front of the net LaRoche knocked the puck in. The assist went to McHugh.

At 6:59 Kenney received a minute and a half penalty for tripping and N. Quincy was able to tie the score on a power play goal at 6:40.

With six minutes remaining in the second period Kenney scored the first of his two goals to recapture the lead for the Tigers and an assist was credited to junior Glenn Chisolm.

John Leavitt scored the Tiger's next goal on a wide shot from near the blue line, finding an open left corner. The assists went to senior co-captain Mike Thomas and LaRoche.

Quincy's final score scoring drive came in the middle of the third period to bring the score to 4-3. The game was finally put away with a little over a minute and a half remaining when Kenney scored again from the left corner with an assist from Larson.

"It was nice to get a win," said Newton North coach Don Crowley. "LaRoche, McHugh, Hatton, and the sophomores Rich Callanan and Bob Kenney did good jobs," he added. "As a group the defense did a fine job but the starting line is missing by a little bit."

"We are getting better each game, but a lot of kids haven't played on the varsity before; we're a young team," said senior goalie Paul Martin. "The turning point will be winning our first game," Martin added.

Well it seems only time will tell. The Tigers next home game will be on Saturday against Waltham at the Watertown Rink at 6:30.

North girls hoopsters in OT win

By SANDY BLANCH

Last Friday, Newton North's girls basketball team defeated Quincy 45-41 in overtime. With a previous record of 0-3, this tense, action-packed game provided North with its first victory of the season.

North began to fold toward the middle of the fourth quarter after maintaining a lead throughout the first three. "I think the reason we started to fold was the lack of back-ups. We only have two players to substitute in, and many of the kids were coming off with the flu. Our captain, Laura Flaherty, played the entire game without any rest. Everyone got tired," said North Coach Moe Enos.

Newton was trailing 39-35 with 20 seconds left to play. They came back with a basket and called time out. North junior Sherry Levin scored another basket to assure overtime.

"I'm not particularly way pleased with the way we played because we should have well scored a lot more points. Quincy played They have a lot of talent but usually are an average team," said Enos.

"I thought the game would be easier. I had a feeling we'd win, but Quincy really threatened us at the end. We just outlasted them."

"We've played tough teams lately and have lost many close, one-pointers. There was a lot of pressure on us in this game, but we're learning to hold onto a lead. We're also becoming aware of when to call time outs," she said.

North has no outstanding weaknesses, according to Quincy coach Barbara Webster. "They were good at everything, especially at trapping the ball and playing offensively up the middle. They have a good, well-rounded team. I think North has the potential to win the Suburban League title this year," she said.

Junior Sherry Levin scored a total of 24 points in the game.

"Sherry usually plays well. Another junior, Judy Hinchey, was excellent at defense. Senior captain Laura Flaherty did well at rebounding today. Senior Anne Geagan is a steady player. She has a calming effect on everyone else. Everybody contributed a lot out there," said Enos.

"This win boosted our spirits 100 percent. We have a lot of talent but a great deal of inexperience too. The inexperience hurt us against Quincy and in past games. We have the ability but it needs to be used. We definitely have to improve on our offensive ability if we're going to win the league championship. We need to mature as basketball players. I think pretty soon now it's all going to click," she said.

South swimmers romp

By JIMMY ROSENTHAL

The Newton South boys' swim team swam to a very impressive 107-44 win over a weak Quincy High School team. The meet took place at Quincy's pool last Friday, January 5. The team's record now stands at 2-2 with both wins coming against Quincy teams.

The meet started off in a way that foretold the result. In the first event, the 200-yard medley relay, South's two teams entered took first and second place. The first place team was composed of co-captains Mazin Shukri and Kevin Hayden, Mike Feldstein and Mike Kanellis. The event that followed was the 200-yard freestyle event. This time, South took first, second and third place. Mike Feldstein was again the victor with Chris Chaloff finishing more than a lap behind him and Alex Atwood a little further back.

Not until the 50-yard freestyle event did Quincy take better than fourth place. In this event, South's Phil Miller and a Quincy swimmer were nip and tuck going down the stretch but in the last five yards, Miller showed his strength as he pulled ahead to win the event with his best time ever, 28.5 seconds. After this event, South took a 49-12 point lead into the diving.

The diving competition was in no way different from any of the other events as junior Harry Raphael dove for 122 points, first place and six more points for South's score.

The two events that followed, 100 yard butterfly and 100 yard freestyle were to be the only events that South would not take first place in; however, they did take second and third in both. From then on, South was again the dominant team.

In the next event, South took control as Chris Chaloff, sophomore Dave Quillen and Atwood swam for first, second, and third place, respectively. The event was the 500-yard freestyle. The 100-yard backstroke followed and co-captain Shukri "sailed" in uncontested for first place. Then came the 100-yard Breaststroke where Feldstein took first place with a time 2 seconds short of the state record. The meet ended with South winning the 400-yard freestyle relay.

The team's next meet is tomorrow, Friday against Arlington High School at Newton North. The meet will begin at 5:00.

Against the Warriors, South played a surprisingly tough game. However, a 4 minute lag late in the second period turned a close game into a rout and South lost 6-0.

The Lions showed right from the start that they were prepared to play. The newly-converted defenseman Adam Wool broke up two Lincoln opportunities in the first period. On offense forwards Al Bupp and Bob Weiss were able to develop some good chances in the Awarrior end.

However the impressive play occurred in the Lions zone as sophomore goalie Paul Aires was spectacular. Aires' saves are the only reason the first period ended scoreless.

In the second period, Lincoln-

Tough losses for South skaters

by BRIAN J. KILEY

There was a feeling of tradition in the air as the Newton South Lions faced the Lincoln Sudbury Warriors and the Acton-Boxboro Colonials. A tradition that is not discussed at length at Newton South; and one that seems destined to continue for a long time.

Against the Warriors, South played a surprisingly tough game. However, a 4 minute lag late in the second period turned a close game into a rout and South lost 6-0.

The Lions showed right from the start that they were prepared to play. The newly-converted defenseman Adam Wool broke up two Lincoln opportunities in the first period. On offense forwards Al Bupp and Bob Weiss were able to develop some good chances in the Awarrior end.

However the impressive play occurred in the Lions zone as sophomore goalie Paul Aires was spectacular. Aires' saves are the only reason the first period ended scoreless.

In the second period, Lincoln-

Sudbury began to play less individually. This allowed their All-Star defenseman, Eric Magnuson to set up a potent offense. Magnuson himself scored early in the period but the Lions continued to play well. Paul Aires continued to rob the Warriors of seemingly "easy goals." Then with 4:27 remaining in the second period, the Lions slumped. Their aggressive hustling play which had been the trademark in the first half of the game suddenly disappeared. The Warriors whacked in four goals in a span of 3 minutes and 6 seconds.

For the Lions, the third period was almost as well played as the first. Senior Nathan Berkovitz handled the net without too much difficulty (he allowed only one goal). However, at that point, it didn't make too much difference.

Against Lincoln-Sudbury they worked hard and played well for most of the game. It is unfortunate that the 6-0 score did not reflect this.

For the Lions, playing Acton-Boxboro was a tough experience. The Colonials romped 12-0.

Poirier opens new showroom

Bob Poirier, president of Poirier Sales and Service Corporation, announces the opening of a new Poirier Home Appliance Showroom at 1037 Washington St., South Norwood, across the street from their 1024 Washington St. service center.

"Over the past 16 years we have added so many new products and services that we just had to make a move," Poirier explained. The new showroom displays a larger array of televisions and stereos as well as products from Maytag, Kitchenmaid, Amana and General Electric among others.

The original Poiriers is undergoing renovation.

It will have new offices and a computerized system for efficient replacement of parts inventories in the seven service vans. The service training shop will be enlarged to handle the latest service techniques and repairs.

Poiriers began 25 years ago as a father and son operation (Bob and Bud Poirier) and has grown to its present 22 employees.

The new showroom is open Monday through Friday, 9 to 5, Saturday 9 to 5 and will also stock repair parts for the handy man. The service center at 1024 Washington St. will be open 8 to 5 Monday through Saturday.

Changing coal pollutants into fertilizers

By MARCIA STEPANEK
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Ralph Peck wants his new fertilizer discovery to go up in smoke.

In fact, the more people he can find throughout the country to agree with him, the better — for the sake of state utility officials, consumers and clean air advocates everywhere.

Peck's discovery, flue gas desulfurization — smoke fertilizer, for short — is a process still being tested that converts sulfur gases from the smoke of coal-burning generators into farm fertilizer.

Peck, a researcher and professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology, said in an interview that smoke fertilizer might improve the buying power of high-sulfur Illinois coal and redz'n high sulfur phosphate emissions of utility companies troubled by Environmental Protection Agency air pollution standards.

Peck said the smoke process produces a high grade nitrogen and phosphate fertilizer. "This process can be used to promote the use of Illinois coal," Peck said. "Ohio, Iowa and New York also have high sulfur coal and this could make the stuff more profitable again."

"And, because utility companies are the ones that burn the most high-sulfur coal, they would be the logical clients of the idea."

Peck said many utility companies in Illinois and the Midwest — including some in New York — are interested in the concept. "Any other flue desulfurization process in the name of cleaner air is a cost process. This one actually brings in income. It just makes economic sense."

Peck said the process would work by attaching special "scrubbers" — devices used to purify emissions — to smokestacks that would remove the sulfur dioxide from the stack. The sulfur dioxide would be converted with phosphate rock into fertilizer.

"Nitrogen fertilizers are made with sulfuric acid," Peck said. "This process would take the sulfur dioxide direct and save money in the long run."

Peck said the process cleans smoke better than conventional means. He estimated the new plan would remove 95 percent of the sulfur dioxide in coal burning, much better than state and federal standards.

Peck said he first thought of the idea 30 years ago when he was a consultant for the Illinois Farm Machine Company. He said he had theories then that sulfur dioxide emissions could be used in the same way sulfuric acid is in the making of nitrogen fertilizer. He didn't really start talking about them until he worked as a consultant for various Midwest farm coops.

He took his ideas to IIT and the state's energy department, which gave Peck and colleagues a grant to study the process for Illinois in 1975. Three years later, they released a report on their findings and now are showing them to utility companies, farmers' groups and other state agencies.

Peck said their research shows that fertilizer produced by the process could be sold at the competitive price of $149 a ton, which would help pay for the new cleaning equipment.

He said a utility that produces 100 megawatts of power each year could produce about 125,000 tons of fertilizer for sale. If a plant produces nearly 192 megawatts, it could sell fertilizer worth about $37 million, if promoters' estimates are correct.

Although the immediate costs of building and operating the new system — more expensive than traditional scrubber processes — would cut into that profit figure during the first several years, Peck said, the returns would start coming in after about three years.

He said tests by IIT researchers show the fertilizer works as well as other nitrogen fertilizers now on the market.

Railroad plans last ride

Due to its eviction from its current quarters, the final show of the Bay State Society of Model Engineers will be conducted on Jan. 13 and 14, from 12 to 6 p.m. at the current club quarters at 45 Poplar St., Roslindale. (Show dates: Jan. 20 and 21, 12 to 6 p.m.) The Society has, over that last ten years, built one of the largest and most impressive operating model railroads (featuring both O and HO gauge trains and trolleys on one site) in the United States. The mainlines include over 200 freight cars and 10 full-length passenger trains. The railroads are transcontinental in nature, featuring both lush Eastern scenery and the spectacular Western scenery of the Royal Gorge. Variations of Park Street station and the Riverside loop are modeled on the "O" gauge trolley line.

Among passenger trains included on the roster are the California Zephyr, City of San Francisco, Crescent Limited and Twentieth Century Limited. These are operated with both steam and diesel power. Additionally, it is not unusual to see double and triple headed engines pulling freight trains for over operated 50 cars. Trains in excess of 100 cars are successfully.

During the final open house, a wide variety of passenger and freight trains' and trolleys will be operated to stimulate interest and provide a realistic panorama of American railroading. Club president Joe Kaminski says, "This is more than a model railroad. It reflects 10 years of co-ordinated construction including carpentry, electronics and electrical wiring' scenery and structures as well as the trains themselves. It captures the interest and imagination of people who have no great interest in railroads but who are impressed with the workmanship and varieties of skill necessary to create and operate such a large and complex empire. We believe that this final show will give everyone a last opportunity to view our efforts before dismantling begins in February."

CETA program teaches techniques of word processing to unemployed

Juliette Zakak of Newton sits at a keyboard as characters, sentences, entire documents appear before her eyes.

She stops the machine, pushes a button, and a whole phrase disappears. She types in new words and the machine moves on again all by itself.

Juliette operates an IBM typewriter, one of two used in word process training at Newton Area Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Since the machines were purchased in June, half a dozen participants in the CETA office skills program have been learning the intricacies of these machines, which can store up to 50 separate documents for recall with the touch of a button.

Before using the new equipment, students must be able to type at least 40 words per minute, a skill that can also be learned at the CETA Office Skills Center.

This broader program teaches the students to convert verbal dictation into typewritten documents, as well as mastering proofreading, grammar, punctuation, spelling, and an understanding of secretarial procedures and office responsibilities.

There are currently openings in both the office skills and the word processing programs for qualified applicants. All applicants must live in one of the communities served by Newton Area CETA (Newton, Waltham, Brookline, Needham, Lexington, Bedford, Lincoln, Weston and Wellesley, and Dover), have been unemployed 30 days or more, and meet certain federally determined income guidelines.

A high school diploma, a GED certificate or current enrollment in a GED program, and the ability to type 40 words per minute are required for the word processing unit.

Legionnaires honor Lt. Pescosolido

American Legion State Commander Ernest Pescosolido of Newton will be feted at a testimonial dinner Saturday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hillcrest, Bear Hill Road, Waltham.

Legionnaires are expected to gather from all parts of the Commonwealth to pay tribute to this tireless worker on behalf of the Legion and his fellow veterans. Tony Bicchieri of Belmont and Jim Dilello of West Newton, cochairmen of the affair, expect over 1000 to be in attendance.

The principal speaker will be Judge Monte Basbas of the Newton District Court. Judge Basbas, an active Legionnaire for many years, is also a past commander of Newton Post No. 48 of the American Legion.

Other invited guests include Mayor Theodore Mann, Fire Chief Harvey Preble, and State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci.

Commander Pescosolido is a lieutenant inspector in the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Newton Fire Department.

"Healthy back" awaits you at the YMCA

The family YMCA in Newton is offering a physical program this winter that can help you prevent or relieve pain and discomfort of the lower back.

Called "The Y's Way To a Healthy Back," the program will be directed by William Kelley, Newton YMCA's director of the Physical Division, who has received special training in this field and is YMCA-certified to offer the program.

Developed by medical specialists, the course is designed specially for men and women who suffer discomfort and pain in the lower back and need to increase overall flexibility.

The class will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 for six weeks and class size is limited to 10. The first class is January 9, 1979. A fee will be charged for the course.

Among other planned goals are relief of nervous tension, and strengthened back, stomach and hamstring muscles.

Registration for the program is now open at the YMCA, 276 Church Street, Newton Corner. For further information contact William Kelley at the YMCA or call 244-6050.

Lasell J.C. to offer new fall programs

Programs in Physical Therapy Assisting and Accounting will be offered at Lasell Junior College starting in Fall 1979.

The Physical Therapy Assisting major includes both college based courses and clinical experience. Graduates will work with registered physical therapists to rehabilitate patients.

The Accounting major will include accounting and business courses, as well as liberal arts, to prepare students as para-professional accountants. It will also serve as a foundation for students wishing to transfer for a BA in accounting.

People, vehicles sought to sign up for emergencies

Newton officials are currently setting up its snow-emergency plans for 1979. During the blizzard of '78, citizens with snowmobiles, four-wheel-drive vehicles and citizen skiers were invaluable in assisting the Police and Fire Departments in getting their fellow citizens medical assistance when needed, helping stranded motorists and obtaining food and medicines for those handicapped and elderly citizens stranded in their homes.

This year the city requests interested citizens who own four-wheel-drive vehicles or snowmobiles, who would be interested in volunteering their time and equipment, in an emergency, to contact Capt. John H. Bartinelli in writing at Newton Police Headquarters, 1321 Washington St., West Newton 02165 or by calling him at 552-7257.

Restaurant closes for renovation

The Fairfield Inn Restaurant in the Marriott Hotel, Newton, will be closed until about Jan. 25 for renovation and refurbishing, Colin Nadeau, general manager announced recently.

A white stucco "Mediterranean motif" will be the new look of the Fairfield Inn upon completion with the rear section of the restaurant elevated. The counter at the entrance will be removed and a counter-bar will be constructed to the left as one enters the room.

A new feature will be the crepe wheel, with the Fairfield Inn highlighting a number of different crepe specialties for both luncheon and dinner. Regular menu items also will be included.

Decorative wrought iron gates will be at the entrance and the giant wooden spindles in the restaurant will be removed. The two chandeliers also will be removed and there will be decorative lighting throughout the room.

Colors will include orange, brown and gold hues as well as various earth tones. The new room concept will be to provide more privacy for dining and seating will be reduced from 150 to 138 to make way for decorative glass and wrought iron dividers.

Mandell appointed

Alvin Mandell, an 11-year member of the Newton School Committee, has been appointed to serve on the Massachusetts Association of School Committees' Legislative Committee for 1978-79.

This committee is charged with reviewing the bills filed in the Great and General Court, recommending stands to be taken on these bills and recommending legislation to be filed by the Association.

EPA sponsors annual ecology poster contest

The New England Regional Office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is sponsoring, for the seventh consecutive year, the Elementary Education Ecology Poster and Poster Program.

Paul G. Keough, director of EPA's Office of Public Awareness, said that this program is one of the largest of its kind in the country and annually involves more than 3,500 teachers representing some 100,000 elementary school students in the six-state region.

"The goal of our program is to involve teachers and young people in discussions about environmental issues. Once these discussions have taken place, we ask students to consider what they have learned and to prepare a poem, poster, or short story about an environmental topic that was of most interest," Keough said. Teachers send the two best entries from each class, or a single class project, to EPA in Boston. A citizen panel reviews the entries.

"We select 90 of the best entries as plaque winners while an additional 210 entries will be judged as finalists and will receive framed certificates."

Teachers in grades kindergarten through six who have not yet received brochures explaining the program can write to EPA, Office of Public Awareness, Room 2203, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Boston, 02203.

Rotary to sponsor scholarships

The Rotary Foundation is seeking candidates to study abroad under a full fellowship for graduate students or full scholarships for undergraduates.

The basic purpose of these awards is to further world understanding through study in a country other than one's own. An awardee may attend any college of his or her choice. He or she is expected to act as an ambassador of good will for the United States through informal contacts and through appearances before Rotary Clubs and other civic or educational groups nearby to his chosen college or university. The award covers transportation, housing and one full year of study in another country.

The Newton Club can sponsor candidates. With this sponsorship they go on to the final competition which is at the district level. Final awards will be made in May of 1979 for the 1980-81 school year.

The deadline for filing applications is March 1, 1979. A person desiring detailed information about these educational awards may write W.H. Phillips, Chairman of the Newton Rotary Foundation Committee at 50 Hunt Street, Watertown, Mass. 02172.

Chorale group opens season

The Newton Chorale finished 1978 with a concert at the Recuperative Center in Roslindale, and will open 1979 with two concerts.

On Jan. 4, they will entertain the residents at The Heathwood Nursing Home on Florence Street and on Jan. 5, they will give a concert at the Ulin House, Brighton.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hans Seligman, their programs are geared to the occasion whether it be young or old. They have sung all over the state of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Funds raised by the group are allocated for Musical Scholarships in Israel, through Youth Aliyah.

N-W Hospital offers two one-day courses in CPR

There are still openings in Newton—Wellesley Hospital's CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) courses on two dates in January.

The course being taught is the American Heart Association's Heart-saver course, in which one-person CPR is taught in one 3 1/2 hour session.

On Thursday, Jan. 25, the course will be offered from 7-10:30 p.m. On Saturday, Jan. 20, there will be a session from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Reservations may be made by calling the hospital's Community Relations office, 964-2800, ext. 395.

A $2 fee per person and a stamped, self-addressed envelope should be mailed to the office within 10 days of making the reservation. Checks should be made payable to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The course is held in Allen Riddle Hall, the School of Nursing's dormitory, located behind the hospital on Washington Street in Newton Lower Falls.

Participants are advised to wear comfortable clothing since they will be practicing on life-size mannikins following a one-hour lecture.

Those who have already taken the course may refresh their skills at the beginning of each program. There is no fee and no reservation required for this brush-up session.

The Community Relations office will also take reservations for courses on Feb. 1, 8, 15 and 24.

Head Start teaches at home

Communities United, Inc., of Watertown, which sponsors Head Start Programs for low-income families in Newton, is now offering a Home-Based Head Start Program for three-year-old children.

The Home-Based Program is a parent-focused, federally-funded, child development program based on the premise that parents are the first and most influential educators of their children.

A Home-Based teacher, trained in early childhood education, will go into the enrolled child's home once a week for one and a half hours. He/she will help plan activities for the parent and child to do together. Families can learn how to use the home environment as a place for learning and teaching. If there are younger children in the family, they will be encouraged to join in the fun-filled activities with the parent and Home-Based Teacher.

Periodically, the parent will accompany the child to a Home-Based Head Start classroom where the child may interact with his peers. During the child's classroom experience, the parent will have an opportunity to participate in workshops and discussion groups or just share mutual interests and concerns with other Home-Based parents. The Home-Based Teacher will also help parents obtain health screenings and follow-up treatment for their children, explore nutrition-foods with their children, and meet individual family needs through available social services and community resources.

Interested families are encouraged to contact local social service agencies or contact Communities United, Inc., at 923-2010.

Conservatives sponsor discussion on SALT pact

Four consecutive organizations are banding together to sponsor a lecture entitled "SALT II: Is it in the National Interest?" to be presented Tuesday, Jan. 16, at 8 p.m., at the Wellesley Junior High School, Kingsbury Street, Wellesley.

The speaker will be W. Scott

Thompson, associate professor of international policy at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy of Tufts University.

A graduate of Stanford, he received his doctorate degree in 1967 from Oxford University. A member of the International Institute of Strategic Studies, he served as Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense from 1975-76. The public is urged to attend and learn about the treaty, the ratification of which could unalterably affect our national security. Admission is free.

The sponsors of the meeting are the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of Americans for Constitutional Action, based in Waban, Women for Constitutional Government, the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, and The Massachusetts Conservative Caucus.

For further information, call Arnold Garrison at 527-3744.

Lewis M. Foster

Foster retires

Long-time New England Baptist Hospital President Lewis M. Foster of Newton Highlands announced his retirement from that post at the institution's 84th annual meeting recently.

Acting Administrator Raymond C. McAtose announced Foster will continue as a trustee of the hospital as well as chairman of the Development Committee and member of the Executive Committee.

A retired senior partner in the accounting firm of Deloitte, Haskins & Sells, he held the corporation president for seven years.

The New England Baptist Hospital is known for its treatment of complicated medical and surgical problems. It is located on Parker Hill, Boston.

Library installs security systems

The Newton Free Library is planning to install a book detection security system. The detection system is designed to present the unauthorized removal of any library materials.

The library also received funds for a building security system. The system is designed to thwart break-ins.

Like many libraries, the Newton Free Library loses approximately $25,000 per year in the value of books. As book, record and cassette costs escalate, so has the degree and amount of theft escalated.

It is a national problem for libraries, one that the Newton library hopes will be resolved once the detection and building security systems are installed.

Scandinavian students need host families

American host families are being sought for 500 Scandinavian high school students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland for the school year 1979-1980, in a program sponsored by the American Scandinavian Student Exchange (ASSE).

The students, ages 16 and 17, will arrive in the United States in late August 1979, attend the local high school and return home in late June, 1980. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in Scandinavia and have pocket money and medical insurance.

American families with small children or grown children, as well as those with teen-age children, are welcome to participate in this program.

ASSE is also seeking American students, ages 16 and 17, who would like to spend a high school year with a Scandinavian family or participate in a five-week family holiday in the summer of 1979. Persons interested in either of these programs should contact: Mr. Charles Bullwinkle, 14A Ashford Street, Alston, Mass., 02134, (617) 782-9472.

The ASSE is the official Swedish high school exchange program in the United States operating under the auspices of the Swedish Board of Education. The ASSE program is officially designated as an Exchange-Visitor program by the U.S. Department of State. Since 1938, more than 150,000 students have taken part in student exchange, home stay and school exchange programs in the United States, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Finland, Germany, France, England and Switzerland. ASSE has representatives in all areas of the United States.

Information sought on Nazi war criminals

The Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston has received a request for witnesses, survivors or anyone who may have firsthand information about crimes and actions against Jews in Europe during World War II.

Anyone having information should contact the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), Martin Menelsohn, chief, Special Litigation Unit; 425 I St., NW; Washington, D.C. 20536.

The INS is particularly interested in individuals with information concerning events in the following cities:

Riga, Latvia (1940-1944); Rezenke, Latvia (1940-1944); Aubrene, Latvia (1942); Madona, Latvia (1941-1942); Estonia (1940-1945); Bucharest, Roumania (Sept. 1940—March 1941); Zagreb, Yugoslavia (1935-1943); Treblinka (1940-1944), and Ivano-Frankovsk (Poland, USSR, Ukraine 1940-1943).

Also Daugavpils, Latvia (1941-1943); Kaunas, Lithuania (1941-1942); Vilnius, Lithuania (1941-1942); Jurbarkas, Lithuania (1941-1942); Panevezys, Lithuania (1941-1942);

Siauliai, Lithuania (1941-1942); Kedainiai, Lithuania (1941-1942); Skaidville, Lithuania (1941-1942); and Sucutard, Roumania, Hungary (1940-1944).

The National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council has informed the JCC that as a result of a meeting with INS officials, the research resources of the Jewish community have been volunteered for future legal proceedings against alleged Nazi war criminals.

For further information please call Barbara Katz at the Jewish Community Council, 542-7525.

To work, to play, to school...

let's pool together, America!

All across the country, folks are finding that carpooling pays. By making driving more fun. And putting fewer cars on the road. And whether you're going to work, play or school, a pool is better for all of us. It saves effort. It saves fuel. And it sure saves money, too.

So carpool America! Share a ride with a friend.

55 SAVES LIVES

It works!

The 55MPH speed limit... it works! Since 1974, the year the speed limit began, it's been the single biggest factor in reducing highway deaths - by more than 36,000. And don't forget 55 saves gas. Driving at 55 rather than 70 can improve gas mileage up to 39%. So keep up the good work. Keep your speed at 55. It works - for all of us.

OBITUARIES

Giles Mosher

A funeral mass was to be said at 10 a.m. this morning (Jan. 11) in St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, for Giles E. Mosher.

Mr. Mosher, 79, of West Newton, a retired pharmacist, died Monday (Jan. 8) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a short illness.

Born in Newton Centre, Mr. Mosher was a lifelong resident of the city and was the owner of Mosher's Pharmacy in Newton Centre for many years.

Mr. Mosher was a graduate of Newton High School and Boston College. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Bernard's Church.

Mr. Mosher is survived by his wife, Mary

Giles Mosher

Agnes Mosher; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Schorer of Bedford, N.H.; a son, Giles Jr. of Waban; and 10 grandchildren. Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Louise Weeden

Memorial services were held Wednesday (Jan. 10) in Second Church, West Newton, for Mrs. Louise (Fessenden) Weeden.

Mrs. Weeden, 81, of Weston, died Friday (Jan. 5) after a short illness.

Mrs. Weeden attended Vassar College and was a member of the U.S. women's field hockey team of 1919. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) and did volunteer work at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Mrs. Weeden is survived by her husband, Charles F.; a daughter, Mrs. Edward F. Mahoney of Wellesley Hills; a son, Charles F. III of Ringoes, N.J.; and two brothers, Hart Fessenden of Brookline and Frederick Fessenden of Kennebunkport, Me.

Diego Falcone

A funeral mass was to have been celebrated at 9 a.m. this morning (Jan. 11) in Our Lady's Church for Diego Falcone.

Lifetime Learning group demonstrates people don't want to stop learning — ever

By Jackie Perry

Are mass religious and social movements, governmental lobbyists and multinational corporations taking power away from the people?

A lot of people, including many students, think so. One group of these students — namely a class of nearly 20 senior citizens — meets in Newton once a week to discuss current events and their implications. They are the members of a course entitled "Great Issues," part of the Lifetime Learning Program sponsored by the Newton Community Schools and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) with assistance from the Newton Community Service Center.

Classes are led by retired professors, many of whom are "recruited by word of mouth," according to Edward Landry, former assistant superintendent of Newton schools and director of the program.

"Most of our staff have their Ph.D.'s," Landry said. "Three are retired Boston University professors, one is a semi-retired MIT lecturer, and another is a retired clergyman."

Recently, in an informal give-and-take atmosphere, students in the "Great Issues" class expressed concern that "nothing is being done" to curb the growing influence of groups such as the People's Temple cult in Guyana, as well as more economically-motivated groups.

"In this country," one man said indignantly, "there are foreigners buying up farmland and city property — even in Boston. If we had legislation we could stop them, but right now nothing is being done."

Wendell Yeo, professor emeritus at BU since 1973 and coordinator of the class, summarized the group's feeling when he said, "There is an underlying concern that the uses of power, economic and otherwise, are beyond what the people intend them to be for their own welfare. It's not a new problem, but it hurts when it hits home. The question is, how do we control it?"

Yeo, whose 34-year academic career includes service as BU's dean of the School of Education, vice president for Student Affairs and vice president for Academic Affairs, said the group "can't always come up with answers." But he said the class is important because "it stimulates people who have read and traveled to maintain an active interest in world happenings."

"These people are opinion makers, not followers," he said. "The reason why the Lifetime Learning Program is a vital, necessary service is because this level of citizenry is not being challenged enough now," he added.

Members of the class agreed that the "powerful yet elusive" influence of lobbies is changing the character of the American political process. One woman said it was "frightening" that the Ford Motor Company maintains a full-time lobbying staff of 40 in Washington, and most students were shocked when Yeo noted that there are 10-20 lobbyists for each congressman in the Capitol.

Wendell Yeo, professor emeritus of Boston University, discusses people and political power with Jack Shapiro of Newton during a "Great Issues" class.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF HEARING
The Board of Higher Education for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, acting through its Collegiate Authority Committee under the provisions of G.L. Chapter 69, Section 30 as most recently amended by Statutes of 1974, Chapter 782, Section 1, will conduct a public hearing at the Board of Higher Education's conference room, 3rd floor, 31 St. James Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts on February 5, 1979 at 9:30 a.m. for the purpose of determining whether the Board of Higher Education will approve the following Articles of Amendment authorizing the Boston Architectural Center, Inc. to be a private non-profit educational corporation originally incorporated in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in 1969 under Chapter 115 of the General Laws. Its principal office is at 320 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02115. The BAC has the purpose to foster the art, science, and industry of Architecture and related specialties through the operation of a School of Architecture, through the continuing education of architects and others, through professional meetings and activities, and through other education and research activities. A curriculum of five years plus a thesis are now offered. Successful completion of all of the BAC's requirements leads to the granting of a certificate.

On March 22, 1977, the BAC held a special meeting of its members for the purpose of voting on a change of its purposes to include the authority to grant a Bachelor of Architecture degree. The vote authorizing the change is as follows:

Voled: To amend the Charter of the Boston Architectural Center as follows:

The purpose of the Corporation is to foster the art, science and industry of Architecture and related specialties through the operation of a School of Architecture, through the continuing education of architects and others, through professional meetings and activities, and through other education and research activities.

The Corporation shall have the power to grant the professional degree of bachelor of Architecture to students properly qualified therefore in accordance with the Constitution and Bylaws of the Corporation.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF AND UNDER THE PENALTIES OF PERJURY, we have hereto signed our names this 19th day of April, in the year 1977.

s/ Urs P. Gauchat, President
s/ Elsie M. Curt, Assistant Clerk

Woman's study of old markings

By MARC LIFSHER
NAZCA, Peru (UPI) — German mathematician Maria Reiche has devoted the last 39 years of her life to the study of the mysterious Nazca Lines etched on the face of a bonedry Southern Peruvian desert.

But Mrs. Reiche, now 75, says she needs to find someone to carry on her research into the meaning of the mysterious ancient lines and drawings on the Nazca Plain, 248 miles south of Lima.

"I work alone, but I'm too old now and need someone to take over," she told visitors over dinner at the Nazca Tourist Hotel where she lives. "My caretakers insist my successor must be a woman and a foreigner. So, I'm looking for a woman between 40 and 50 years of age with no personal connections to follow up my work and spend the rest of her days here in Nazca. She does not have to be a trained mathematician, only someone who is good with mathematics."

Mrs. Reiche first heard of the series of ruler-straight lines, mammoth trapezoids and gigantic animal figures scratched on the ochre-colored rock surface of the plains in 1939, from Dr. Paul Kosok of Long Island University, a specialist in ancient irrigation methods.

"Kosok realized the lines could never have carried water, and after charting a curving line, he discovered it was an enormous drawing of a bird," she said.

"One day as he walked back to his car, he looked up and saw the sun directly over one of the lines. It was June 21, the winter solstice in the southern hemisphere, so he knew it was a solstice line and possibly part of a huge calendar."

Mrs. Reiche was only able to visit Nazca once before World War II broke out.

"I dreamed about the lines for years and went back in 1946 and then started discovering the figures. Apparently no one saw them before because they did not know to look for them. In fact, they built the Panamerican Highway right across a giant etching of a reptile, cutting off its tail."

Mrs. Reiche soon found a large spiral and a monkey figure and carefully swept accumulated dust from the shallow white clay lines cut into a thin surface of oxidized rock fragments washed onto the plain from the Andes Mountains by flooding. "I found a Peruvian Air Force and we took photographs," she said. "We discovered a score of figures, hundreds of triangles and thousands of lines."

With proof of the importance of the Nazca archaeological findings, Mrs. Reiche said, she "got some Peruvian people interested and with a little grant was able to continue my work by living very cheaply and simply."

"Later I published a small pamphlet and wrote articles. With another grant from a Swedish foundation and the royalties from my book, published in 1968, I could live here permanently and pay for four caretakers and motorcycles to patrol the edge of the plain and keep people from damaging them."

Mrs. Reiche's years of study convinced her the lines represent a massive two-dimensional calendar, built by the pre-Inca Nazca Indian civilization around 1000 B.C. to calculate the coming of the sparse rains needed for their crops in the semi-arable Ingenio River Valley.

"They made the calendar to last forever and made it very big so an invading army could march across it and not damage the whole system," she said.

Mrs. Reiche said the Indians developed a sophisticated method of working from models to transfer the drawings to the plain and, possibly, checked their work by ascending in primitive hot air balloons.

Her latest work concluded that the builders of the lines used a basic measurement of 33 centimeters

Art, travel classes at Pine Manor

Pine Manor College is offering four new seminars and workshops in the arts to Newton-area adults next semester through their continuing education programs.

The seminars and workshops include: "Adventure in Opera," a six-week series beginning the end of January; "The Treasures of Tutankhamun," a six-week series beginning in March and concluding in April with a visit to the "Treasures of Tutankhamun" exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City; "The Splendor of Oriental Carpets," a two-day seminar in March; and "New England and the China Trade goes to Wintethur," which features guided tours of Wintethur, Longwood Gardens, and other collections in the Wilmington Del., area. The fee for the Wintethur tour includes round-trip plane fare to Wilmington.

In addition to the seminars and workshops, Pine Manor College's continuing education programs will offer other opportunities for adults, such as full-credit courses leading to the A.A. or B.A. degree via the Open College; courses and workshops in textile arts, offered by Pine Manor's American Institute of Textile Arts; and workshops for personal and professional development, such as Parent Effectiveness Training.

Anyone interested in these seminars and workshops in the arts or any of Pine Manor College's other continuing education offerings should call the College at (617) 731-7133 or 7134.

Pine Manor College is an independent liberal arts college for women, located in Chestnut Hill at 400 Heath Street five miles from downtown Boston.

Paperback section expanded at library

Patrons of the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., are invited to pick a pack of paperbacks from the revolving rack near the circulation desk at the Main Library.

Virginia A. Tashjian, library director, announced the expanded paperback service and browsing area for borrowers who enjoy the convenience of lightweight books.

A new crop of paperbacks has been speedily processed at the Main Library and is ripe for the picking.

Included are books which normally could not be included in the library budget in more expensive hard copies, as well as a new selection of books which are duplicates of hard cover popular titles already owned by the library.

The quality paperbacks offer reading in the avant-garde areas as well as in the classics. There are biographies, fiction and nonfiction, mysteries, gothics and westerns.

"Early Spring Marsh," an oil painting by Renee Rubin of Newton, is one of the paintings on exhibit at the Newton Free Library through Feb. 4.

Abstract painting topic for Art Association

The Newton Art Association presents to members and guests on Thursday, Jan. 18, 7:30 p.m., artist George Dergalis, who will give a lecture-demonstration on abstract painting.

This meeting will be held at the Women's Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands, and is open to the public.

Born in Athens, Greece, George Dergalis attended the Academia de Belle Arts in Rome where he graduated in 1951 with the highest honor, the Prix de Rome. He emigrated to the United States, was drafted in the Air Force, and received an Honorable Discharge in 1956. Dergalis then entered the fourth year at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts and graduated two years later with the school's most outstanding honor, the James William Paige Scholarship. This award took the artist to Spain, France, Italy, Turkey, Sudan, Yugoslavia, Ceylon, and Egypt.

Kodaly Center starts spring term

The Kodaly Center of America starts its spring term Feb. 6 for extension courses in Kodaly training for music teachers, classroom teachers, performers and nonmusicians.

Late afternoon and evening classes in solfege, conducting, songs and games for early childhood, upper grades techniques, Kodaly curriculum for elementary grades, voice, and chamber chorus.

Credits are available. Courses may lead to KCA certificate and diploma, and an affiliate Master's degree.

In 1967, Dergalis was invited by the U.S. Army Historical Department to tour Vietnam as a combat artist. His series of paintings and drawings are now on exhibit at the U.S. Army Historical Society in Washington, D.C. Dergalis now maintains a private studio in Wayland; he teaches classes in his studio and at the DeCordova Museum.

Newton Art Association is a non-profit organization dedicated to stimulating and encouraging the expression of the fine arts. ## Money books in big demand says librarian

With the cost of everything soaring these days, books at the Newton Free Library on how to manage money and stretch a dollar get heavy use, according to Librarian Patricia Marvin.

"People seem to be worrying more about inflation and money difficulties than most other problems," Mrs. Marvin said.

Some of the recent helpful guides to money management include "Moneywise" by Richard Stillman; "Strategy for Personal Finance," by Larry Lang; "A Woman's Book of Money," by Sylvia Auerbach; "The Money Book," by Sylvia Porter; and "J.K. Lasser's Managing Your Family Finances."

Consumer buying is covered in Richard Genge's "The New Consumer Survival Kit," "How To Cope With The High Cost of Living," by Sidney Margolis; and "How to Live Rich When You're Not," by Rebecca Grier.

The Library also has material on household budgeting, saving and investing, buying a house, insurance, and other related subjects.

Spring Arts in the Parks registration available

The Spring Arts in the Parks Brochure is now available. It outlines the Spring offerings scheduled to begin the week of Feb. 5.

Newton residents who wish to have a copy should send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale, Mass. 02166. Registration for the Arts in the Parks Spring program begins this week. The spring programs will continue popular craft classes, including rug hooking, quilting, crocheting and more. In addition, several innovative programs are planned.

Arts in the Parks will take to the road with a trip to the Peabody Museum in Salem for a lecture on the "History of the China Trade." On Friday afternoon Feb. 9, and April 27, there will be a trip to a Boston Symphony concert. The Feb. 9 trip will be preceded by a lecture and luncheon at the All Newton Music School on Chestnut Street, West Newton.

In response to the expressed interest of parents, Arts in the Parks has scheduled three programs for children. Pathways to Music, with instructor Keren Milner has added four sections because of the response to her successful method of introducing children to music. The series of 10 classes will be held the week of Feb. 26 through the week of May 4 on Mondays and Wednesdays and Thursdays at the Burr Park Fieldhouse in Newton Corner.

Instructor Phyllis Bernstein, through her program Creative Movement for Children, provides an opportunity for 3-and 4-year-olds for creative self expression through movement. This program will be held on 10 Thursdays from Feb. 8 through April 26 at the Newton Arts Center in Newtonville.

Another new program offered by Arts in the Parks will be Art and Music with Mommy (or Daddy) and Me, with instructors Johanna Erickson and Keren Milner. This will be a morning of art and music to channel the imagination of the 2-and 4-year-old in making designs and music, along with Mom or Dad. It will be held for 10 Thursdays from March 1 through May 19 at the Burr Park fieldhouse in Newton Corner.

Complete information on these and all other various programs scheduled by Arts in the Parks of the Newton Recreation Department is contained in the Spring Brochure.

Bank robbery case goes to grand jury

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

After almost 17 hours of testimony, during which the defense attempted to disqualify two key eye witness identifications, Newton District Court Judge Paul Chernoff found probable cause Saturday to bind the alleged "bomb lady" bank robber over for a grand jury in Superior Court on two charges of armed robbery.

Lee Kaye, 58, a former jazz singer from Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested on an unrelated charge Dec. 14, by Watertown police and charged later that same day with the March 17 and March 28 robberies of the Bay Bank Newton-Waltham Trust Company on Washington Street in Newton Corner.

Nine of these 17 hours of testimony occurred Friday when defense attorneys Leslie Shea and Peter Harrington presented their motion to suppress or disqualify the robber's identification by witnesses, Jean Gardiner, the BayBank teller robbed on both occasions, and Mary Smith, a dietary worker at Newton-Wellesley Hospital who was in the bank during the robbery of the 17th.

It was the defense's contention that contradictory descriptions and suggestive identification procedures used by police should invalidate the witness' in court and out of court identifications of Lee Kaye as the bank robber. Judge Chernoff disqualified the identification of Mrs. Smith, but upheld the identification by the 57-year-old Mrs. Gardiner.

The challenge to Mrs. Gardiner's identification stemmed from an incident the day after Kaye was arrested, Dec. 15. On that day, Mrs. Gardiner was brought to the Waltham District Court by another BayBank employee for a reason unknown to her at the time. While she sat in the lobby of the court building, she was told by a BayBank security official that she had been brought to see if she could identify a woman.

Two hours later, a group of three women walked up the stairs into the court lobby, a young black woman, a middle-aged, heavy set woman and Kaye. At that time, Mrs. Gardiner said, "There was doubt in my mind" as to whether the last woman in the

Judicial commission may investigate Basbas

The Commission on Judicial Conduct is inquiring into charges aired by WBZ-TV4 against Newton District Court Judge Monte Basbas last week, according to a news telecast on Channel 4 Tuesday night.

WBZ's I-Team focused last week on two district courts, Roxbury and Newton.

Judge Basbas has not been available for comment. This week his secretary, Angela Siciliano, answered a telephone request for a statement from the judge by saying, "There is his side to the story, but the judge feels it is inappropriate to make a statement at this time."

Basbas, who was mayor of Newton from 1966 to 1972, was appointed a special justice by then governor Francis Sargent in 1972 and became a full-time judge in 1976. He presiding judge succeeded the late Judge Franklin Flaschner as in August 1976.

The I-Team investigation into procedures at Newton District Court monitored cases for several months, according to a transcript of the program.

"We found some defendants being denied their rights while defendants, attorneys and witnesses were subject to the whims and tantrums of Judge Basbas" . . . the reporter said.

"In a number of cases we reviewed, Basbas refused to provide defendants with a lawyer paid for by the court, though it appeared they were qualified. . . .

"Since there are no stenographers in the district courts, the new tape recording system is the only way for defendants, prosecutors, or anyone else for that matter, to find out just what goes on during a district court trial. . . . The I-Team requested tapes of specific trials from the Newton Court. Our review of the tapes and monitoring of the cases show that Judge Basbas frequently pushes a button to shut off the tape recorder, sometimes at key points in a trial.

"The manipulation of a tape recorder was apparent in the case of a youth brought before the court last July on drug charges. . . . Basbas turned off the tape recorder and began shouting at (a public defender) for exercising his right to appeal (the sentence). . . . (The public defender) dropped the appeal immediately, but neither Basbas shouting nor (the public defender's) final decision ever made it onto the tape. . . .

"Judge Basbas has also on occasion held criminal defendants in default even when they are hospitalized or under a doctor's care. Basbas at first told us being hospitalized or under a doctor's care was a good enough excuse to avoid default. But later when we presented him with specific cases he acknowledged he does hold defendants in technical default even when they have proven they are hospitalized. . . . A technical default means the default is put on a person's record but an arrest warrant is not issued. . . . Basbas often imposed court costs on defendants even if they had a valid reason to avoid the default in the first place. . . .

"Judge Basbas also has a unique way of handling probation records, which include all past criminal offenses of a defendant. When defendants appear for arraignments, Judge Basbas often asks the probation department for his own copy of the defendant's past criminal record."

The significance of this practice, according to WBZ, is that while the ## Corner plan almost complete

Air-rights development over the Turnpike, a bus facility, a commuter garage, and another Centre Street bridge are the long-range improvements needed for Newton Corner, according to the near-final "revitalization report" being prepared by planning consultants Skidmore, Owings & Merrill.

The report includes suggestions for accomplishing the long-range goals and a great number of relatively low-cost improvements that can be started immediately.

Improvement of the business area of Newton Corner with renovation of storefronts and creation of a business image could be done with money from the federally funded community development program.

Parking must be increased by the acquisition of houses on Pearl Street and the combining of public and private parking, SOM believes. The planning firm has suggested the closing of Bacon Street and the creation of a plaza at the Washington Street end.

The symbol of Newton Corner, the "Nonantum Block," curving around Centre Street to Washington Street, should be renovated, but the combination of apartments and offices should be kept.

To encourage use of Newton Corner as a shopping area, and to make the streets safe for pedestrians' traffic control and flow must be improved. Short of the extremely long-range solutions of another bridge, bus facility and commuter garage, SOM suggests narrowing of Washington Street, redesign of some of the intersections, and signal and signage improvements.

Upzoning the Charlesbank, Pearl Street and Burr Park neighborhoods would allay fears of residents that the current Resident D zoning will allow over-dense development of the area.

Efforts should be made to acquire small parcels of land for open space whenever possible, and existing park and recreational facilities should be improved so that more intensive use may be made of them.

The report, which should be completed some time in February, includes sources and resources for implementing SOM's suggestions. The final report will have a large section telling how to proceed and whom to see to put the plan into effect.

The draft plan has not been well received by all Newton Corner groups and residents, but all like some of it.

SOM was commissioned by the Newton Corner Advisory Committee of the community development pro-

Budget mandate could mean loss of 44 teachers

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said this week that he may have to reduce the number of teachers by more than 44 in order to bring in his budget for next year at the same dollar figure as this year.

Superintendent Fink said in a telephone interview Tuesday that the pupil-teacher ratios "may be in excess" of what the School Committee suggested in its budget guidelines for next year.

The School Committee directed Fink to present a budget not more than the $34.9 million passed last year.

The cut of 44 positions was discussed in November when the Committee discussed pupil-teacher ratios that were planned for this year, but never implemented because of the superintendent's belief they would take too many teachers out of the schools.

In a 140-page analysis of staffing in the schools recently prepared by the schools' Research and Planning Department, it is clearly stated that cuts in staff have not kept pace with declining enrollment.

Since 1970 enrollment in the whole system has dropped about 22 percent. There have been 165 teaching positions cut since then, representing part of the overall staff reduction of about 13 percent.

In the same eight-year period, the pupil-teacher ratio has dropped system-wide from about 19:1 to 18:1. To keep the 19:1 average this year, 37 teachers would have to be let go, according to the study by Director of Research and Planning Vincent Silluzzo.

Superintendent Fink is still preparing the budget for next year, which will be presented at a School Committee meeting Feb. 14. He would not speculate at a School Committee meeting Feb. 14. He would not speculate where further cuts in the staff would be made to 80 percent of the budget is for staff.

One set of tables in the staff analysis outlines how many courses are taught in each high school to 10 students or less. In the past three years, the number of these courses has increased from 24 to 41 at Newton North, and from 34 to 45 at Newton South High School.

Among the classes that have 10 or less students are theater, Russian, German, Latin, ancient history, Jewish history, statistics, photography, electronic music, shorthand, auto repair, career English, and computers.

Superintendent Fink said some of these courses are given for special education students, some are taught by the same teacher as one class, and the rest are specialized classes which "make the difference between high quality schools and mediocre schools."

Fink said he uses the Professional Staff study to build the budget with.

Changes in the amount of staff assigned to schools is often made on the basis of the study, a year after staff ratios from school to school have been unequal.

In the high schools, staff reductions at Newton North have kept close pace with declining enrollment, but that is not the case at Newton South.

North High's enrollment has dropped 12 percent from 1972, and the staff has been cut 24 positions, equal to 11 percent.

At South High, enrollment peaked in 1967, and in 1978 10 positions were added. Since 1967 enrollment has dropped 31 percent and the staff has been reduced 13 positions, or about 12 percent.

At Newton North, the average pupil-teacher ratio is 16.3:1, compared to 15:1 at South.

North teachers have an average of 91 students to teach, compared to 85 at South. At both schools teachers are assigned an average of 4.4 classes to teach.

Elementary schools

The cost of running small elementary schools with less than 225 students is $1634 per pupil, compared to $1244 per pupil for schools with more than 400 students, the study notes.

Superintendent Fink has lamented at School Committee meetings about the difficulty of keeping costs down while running 21 elementary schools. Emerson School will close in the fall.

The average pupil-teacher ratio in the four schools with more than 400 students is 22.7:1, compared to 20.1:1 in the four schools with less than 225 students.

The pupil-teacher ratio suggested by the School Committee for elementary schools is 22.8:1. The current actual average is 22.6:1.

In the analysis of staff throughout all schools, the study indicates there are 35 professionals in the system whose salaries are paid by federal funds.

BUDGET MANDATE — See page 5

Major traffic legislation confuses drivers, police

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Major legislation passed by the state last year reduced about 90 percent of all motor vehicle laws from the criminal category to the non-criminal category. This legislation, unknown to most drivers and unpopular with law enforcement officials, is for the most part being ignored by many police departments, including Newton's.

The motor vehicle law changes were all part of ex-Gov. Michael Dukakis' court reform package, designed to relieve the court's workload and make county and state courts run more smoothly.

However, some police officials feel the legislation's intent and the consequences of its practical application in the field are far from the same.

"The new motor vehicle laws," said Capt. John Bartinelli of the Newton Police Department, "have taken away some historical arrest powers and are making enforcement of traffic laws a lot more difficult."

The decriminalization of traffic violations makes traditionally arrestable violations, such as speeding, violations of red lights, driving without a license, driving without a registration, failing to stop for a police officer in uniform and improper equipment, non-criminal offenses. Meaning, for one thing, the police will no longer keep a record of these violations.

Crimes punishable by a fine of more than $100 or imprisonment, such as driving without the owner's authority, vehicular homicide, driving under the influence of alcohol or narcotic drugs or driving after a license suspension, are still arrestable offenses.

One of the main problems for local police is that under the new laws, the operator of the vehicle does not have to surrender his or her license to an officer. This creates obvious difficulties for the officer when writing a citation. In this situation, the officer's only recourse would be to take the name as told to him by the operator and instruct the operator to leave the car where it is.

Since no record of these violations are kept and driving without a license is no longer an arrestable offense, Capt. Bartinelli is concerned over what will happen with youths. He is worried that the prospect of reduced consequences for taking a joy ride before a youth is a licensed driver will increase the potential for accidents.

However, Newton police, like other police across the state, are finding a way to get around these laws; they are ignoring them.

"Effective Tuesday, and pending an opinion by Attorney General Bellotti, we are going to operate just as we always have in the past," explained Bartinelli. "As we now interpret the law, an offense doesn't become non-criminal unless he chooses, until then, we'll assume they are criminal."

This is where the new laws and their interpretation by police get confusing.

As the new law states, when a violator is pulled over, he or she is issued a citation. Along with that citation, the operator receives a written notice of the options available in handling the violation.

The operator may either pay the fine within 10 days, request a hearing on a non-criminal basis before a magistrate, thereby declaring the violation non-criminal, or request the matter be sent down as a criminal trial before a judge or jury.

The Newton Police Department's procedure, however, will be as follows. If an alleged violator refuses to surrender his or her license at the time of the citation, he or she will be arrested, if the occasion warrants it. This will not happen in all instances.

If an operator refuses to surrender his or her license according to Bartinelli, then the officer cannot issue a citation, therefore, the officer cannot give the violator a copy of his three options, the operator cannot declare the violation a non-criminal offense, and the officer is free to arrest the operator if the situation warrants arrest.

Sources on Beacon Hill say they expect action in the legislature to re-examine these motor vehicle law changes early in the session.

"We've had cooperation so far from the drivers of Newton," said said Bartinelli. "But, I see an obvious increase in the number of motor vehicle cases and hit-and-runs. I feel this must be remedied immediately."

Local group requests CD funds to buy, fix up houses for elderly

A $100,000 slice of the $2.3 million 1980 allocation of community development funds is being sought by the non-profit Newton Corner Community Development Corporation for preservation of houses to be occupied by elderly residents.

The $100,000 will produce between 20 and 30 units of renovated housing for 25-40 elderly persons.

The plan, presented by the Community Development Corporation, would be implemented by the Community Resources Program, a subsidiary of the CDC, which would buy houses, renovate them, and sell them to community-controlled trusts that will operate them and manage them. Alternative methods could include retention of ownership by present owners and division of homes into condominiums.

Each renovated house would provide housing for two or more elderly persons.

The benefits to the city and the community would be the provision of improved housing for the elderly residents of Newton Corner, revitalization of substandard housing, and payments to the city of money in lieu of taxes.

The request for federal community development program funds must be approved by the Newton Corner Advisory Committee, a component of the requisite citizen participation. If it is approved, the planning & Development Board, which is reviewing the requests for community development funds, will consider the proposal.

According to Glenn Morris, chairman of the Newton Corner Community Development Corporation, the planning committee of the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association, a nongovernmental body, has "overwhelmingly" recommended therequest to the NCNA. There may be changes in the program proposed, however.

The program will start off on a small scale by finding one or more properties, not more than four, in one subneighborhood. The proposed group of houses would be submitted for approval to the neighborhood groups' which would hold public hearings to get neighborhood reaction.

The Community Development Corporation would arrange for financing and, if necessary, help in getting rezoning.

An example of costs of one house divided into two apartments, prepared by the CDC, shows a $30,000 cost of buying the house, $30,000 for renovation, $3500 for architectural fees and $2000 for legal fees and administration, making the cost per unit $34,250 and the total cost $68,500.

Operating costs, mortgage payments and payment in lieu of taxes ($1500 a year) would come to $9520 for the two apartments, to be recovered by a monthly rental of $400 to each of the two tenants. The proposal notes that a HUD rental subsidy would be needed.

Financing would be accomplished by an 80 percent mortgage from a commercial lending institution plus community development program funds ($8700) and proceeds from selling a limited partnership ($5000).

The CDC has also asked for Advisory Committee approval of a request for six months' funding for operation of the CDC, to be paid from community development program funds. The $13,050 request covers salaries for a secretary and director, office rent, supplies, and so on.

Peabody School sale under mayoral review

By ELIZABETH MCKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The awarding of the sale of the old Peabody School in Oak Hill to developer Edward Leventhal has been delayed pending a review by Mayor Theodore Mann of a proposal submitted by another developer.

Ald. Robert Stiller last week charged the mayor with "precipitous" action in awarding the sale to Leventhal at a negotiated price of $425,000 because another developer, Chestnut Development Associates, offered a higher purchase price and should be able to provide a higher 20-year return to the city.

The property is to be converted to no more than 22 condominium units, sold for a minimum of $400,000, and include two units for low-income persons.

Chestnut Development Associates in association with architects Bastille-Neiley were eliminated from consideration early in the two-and-one-half-year deliberation on Peabody School, apparently on the basis of their not having shown in their response to the requests for proposals that they intended to comply with the low-income housing requirements.

Not until last Friday in conversations with Edward Bastille did it become clear that he had all along intended to comply with the "10 percent ordinance."

Bastille said in a telephone interview that that since the developer's kit mentioned the 10 percent ordinance several times, he accepted that requirement as a "given" and did not feel it necessary to mention it, especially since the "content of proposal" section of the developer's kit did not specify its inclusion.

The Bastille-Neiley proposal offered $500,000 purchase price against Leventhal's price of $400,000 (negotiated by the mayor to $425,000), and an estimated tax return over 20 years of $2,402,000 against Leventhal's $2,421,550. Stiller said the Bastille-Neiley tax figure should be higher, based on a higher estimated renovation cost than the Leventhal proposal.

Planning Director-Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas commented this week that the discovery of the misunderstanding about including compliance with the 10 percent ordinance in the proposal would not change his opinion that the Leventhal-Jung-Brannen proposal is superior.

"The physical characteristics of the Jung-Brannen plan—the details as to treatment of the building and the site and the location of the swimming pool and tennis courts, and the interesting treatment of the hill side of the building"—are superior in the Leventhal plan, Thomas said.

Edward Neiley acknowledged that perhaps he had not been as "aggressive" as he should have been in following the course of the bids on the Peabody School. He said he had asked "from time to time how things were coming," and had told John Simmons of the Planning Department "before the holidays" that he was still interested.

Bastille added that no one had ever questioned why the low-income housing was not mentioned in his proposal.

The Peabody sale provoked a long and bitter argument between Stiller and Mayor Mann, according to Stiller. Stiller said Mann accused him of calling the mayor a "crook," and dismissed him, saying he had nothing further to say to Stiller, and that he, the mayor, would do what he "damn pleased."

School bus firm's future uncertain

Newton's school children continue to be bused to school this week by the Metropolitan Coach Company, a company which has apparently removed itself from responsibilities to bus students in other communities.

The School Department hopes the company will be able to fulfill the last one and one-half years of its five-year contract.

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius said Tuesday, "There's no question it is in the city's interest to continue" with Metropolitan Coach, the parent company of Garden City Bus Company.

If the city was forced into the position of hiring another bus firm, it would be either "poorer service or more expensive," Cornelius said.

Benjamin Goodman, owner of bus company, said Tuesday that his lawyer would make an announcement Monday, but would not give the name of his lawyer. A lawyer who worked with Goodman in the release of his responsibilities in providing buses in Needham said he knew nothing about a forthcoming announcement about the Newton service.

Regarding bus service to students in the past week, Cornelius said the company was short four buses Friday for Underwood students being bused to other schools while Underwood is being renovated.

One other bus route was completely forgotten one day last week, but there have been no major problems like last Monday when half of the buses wouldn't start because of the rain," Cornelius said.

The buses transporting Newton students in the past two weeks have not all been the ones the city contracted for.

Buses serving Newton students are supposed to have two-way radios and high back seats, but since the company announced it might not be able to fulfill its contract about four weeks ago, other school buses have been used in Newton.

Cornelius was told by Goodman that the buses agreed to by the School Committee in 1975 would be back on the street by Wednesday, but other buses were seen Wednesday morning transporting students. The buses with high-back seats and two-way radios have Garden City Bus Company printed on the side.

The School Department has contingency plans in case Metropolitan Coach ceases service. Elementary students who are usually bused to school will almost certainly receive continuous service, and older students should have bus service restored in one or two days.

About 3000 Newton students are bused. Metco buses and the station wagons that transport handicapped and small groups of children are not under contract with Metropolitan Coach, so would not be affected by that company going out of business.

DeNucci appointed to Ways and Means

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Newton's state representatives received their legislative committee appointments Tuesday and at least one appointment will bring some new notoriety to the city.

Rep. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton), beginning his second term in the House, was appointed to the powerful Ways and Means Committee, an appointment usually reserved for more experienced representatives.

DeNucci, formerly on the Health Care Committee, said he has "a lot of mixed feelings about leaving."

that committee. "I immediately requested the Speaker to retain me on Health Care. He said it's never been done before (serving on another committee besides Ways and Means), but said he would consider my request."

Ways and Means, responsible for every bill that includes financing and appropriations, is the most powerful committee on Beacon Hill.

As for the effect on Newton, DeNucci said, "at least it will give us a more illusionary effect in power, if not a real one."

Freshman representative David Cohen (D-Newton) received appointments to the Public Service, Election Laws

Public Services, Cohen's first choice for a committee, is responsible for public retirement laws, civil service hiring, firing and evaluation regulations.

"I'm hoping to see a committee view toward providing more strict scrutiny of the performance of state, county and municipal employees" said Cohen. "It's an excellent place for a freshman to learn the nuts-and-bolts of state government."

Cohen didn't request the Election Laws Committee, however, he said he is very happy to be on it. "I hope to be involved in an on-going process to make a more open and democratic election process," he commented.

Rep. David Mofenson (D-Newton) was very pleased on his reappointment as chairman of the Human Services and Elderly Affairs Committee.

Final HVAC repairs another $900,000

What is expected to be the final phase of repairs to the heating, ventilating, and air conditioning (HVAC) at Newton North High School will cost $900,000, according to city officials, bringing the total HVAC repair bill to over $2.1 million.

The school, completed in 1973, had ventilation problems since it opened. In 1975 it was estimated the total cost of HVAC repair would be $150,000.

According to Building Commissioner Allan Fraser, phase three work will include $300,000 for the repairs to the pipes, ducts, and other main parts of the system, $141,000 for repair and improvements in the chiller system, and $145,000 for an energy monitoring system.

The chiller at the school broke down in September, and in addition to repairs to that unit, this summer's work will include installation of a second unit which will take the full load off the repaired unit.

The energy monitoring system will be a computer which will automatically turn off lights and all energy using systems in the school according to a programmed schedule. Fraser said the system will be programmed by school personnel and will save about $45,000 annually.

Phase three will also include $110,000 worth of work to correct problems uncovered while the first two phases were completed in the past two years. In addition, the request before the Board of Aldermen includes a $132,000 contingency fund.

The aldermanic Finance and Public Facilities committees were to have heard the request Wednesday night.

Most construction projects in the city have a 10 percent contingency added to the expected cost, but Fraser said 15 percent was added due to what has been the constant uncovering of more problems.

Recently the physical education area was discovered to have inadequate ventilation, for which $21,000 will be included in phase three.

One month after the $22 million building was opened in September 1973, an estimated $500,000 more was needed for equipment in the school.

By 1975 the city had spent $1.2 million to complete parking and field construction, $163,000 for the student mall, $173,000 for HVAC, and $208,000 to enclose asbestos.

In 1976 $100,000 was needed to repair the indoor swimming pool, which it was discovered was built below the water table of the site.

Mayor Theodore Mann said at last week's School Committee meeting that the additional $900,000 for phase three will be added to the damages the city will try to recover in the suits currently pending against firms involved in the construction of the school.

Newton North's resident engineer Al Knasas said Tuesday that the problem with a damper in the auto shop on the first floor has been fixed, and about 40 teacher cubicles on upper floors are now being properly ventilated. Teachers complained of smelling paint fumes in their cubicles.

A ventilation problem in the pool area has also been fixed, he said.

Marino to stay as comptroller

Comptroller Lawrence Marino has decided the grass is greener at home.

The Board of Aldermen last week acceded to Marino's request that his resignation be rescinded. Marino was to have left city employment Jan. 19 to become state budget director under Gov. Edward J. King, but "misunderstandings" between Marino and Secretary of Administration and Finance Edward Hanley caused Marino to reconsider his appointment. Marino's letter to the Board said.

Marino has been city comptroller since 1974.

His retention of the position throws doubt on the appointment of Treasurer Theodore Scafidi as director of finance for Newton, a post that has been vacant for almost five years.

Scafidi was proposed for director of finance after Marino's resignation. While Marino and Scafidi were equal department heads, the Board was reluctant to choose between them for the slightly higher position of director of finance.

The city ordinance says the director of finance must be either the comptroller or the treasurer.

But after Scafidi was proposed for finance director, Ald. Terry Morris proposed abolition of the position, which he believes is unnecessary.

The matter is now in the Finance and Administration & Planning committees.

Matthew Jefferson NAACP president

Matthew Jefferson of West Newton will be installed as president of the South Middlesex Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Sunday Jan. 21.

The ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. at the First Parish Church, Framingham Center. The public is invited.

Jefferson is president of the Newton Board of Aldermen.

Other officers to be installed are James Yancey of Natick, first vice president; Warren Himmelberger of Wellesley, second vice president; Mary Lou Hillman of Natick, third vice president; Marguerite LaMarque of Framingham, recording secretary; and Lillie Jefferson of Newton, corresponding secretary.

The South Middlesex Branch of the NAACP has its office at 5 Main St., Natick 653-4114.

Correction

In a front page feature last week on the appointment by Governor Edward J. King of John Bewick of Newtonville, Bewick's title was incorrectly stated.

He was appointed secretary of Environmental Affairs.

35 attend hearing on Spezzano development

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

About 35 people attended the Land Use Committee hearing last week to hear Florence Development Corporation's request for permission to build 98 townhouses on the Spezzano Farm, which is adjacent to the Sidney Hill Country Club. Because the selected site is in a two-family district, which permits attached houses, the developer only needs a special permit and site plan approval from the Board of Aldermen. No zone change is required.

Plans for the project call for 54 two-bedrooms, and 44 three-bedrooms. Also planned are a swimming pool, a tennis court, a play area, and attached garages for each unit of housing. Taking issue with the garages, Land Use Chairman Terry Morris suggested aggregate parking to preserve more open space.

The separate garages will add to the marketability of the units, said Saul J. Feldman, attorney for Florence Development. The units will either be condominiums selling between $80,000 and $100,000 or rentals going for about $700 a month, he said. If the site were used for building a two-family subdivision, in accordance with the zoning ordinance, he added, it would support between 100 and 115 units.

In his memorandum to the committee, Planning Director Charles Thomas disagreed with this estimate. His calculations showed 98 two-families. Such a subdivision, according to the memorandum, would, however, require slightly more roads and paved areas, thereby providing for a little less open space than the proposed townhouse development.

"I would rather have two families, said one resident of the area. "Two families would be more consistent with the neighborhood," he said.

The proposed project is unattractive, the resident said. They will look like "army barracks", he added.

The development will make flooding conditions in the area worse, said Rose Wayne of Tanglewood Road. "Now we need a row boat. If the project is built, we will need an ark," she said.

The property, a working farm, should remain as agricultural land, said Matt Barron of the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture. The state presently has a pilot program to pay those who win funding the difference between the land's worth as agricultural property and what a developer would offer. A farmer who is selected for this program gives up the development rights on his property.

The process can only be reversed, if the farmer returns the money and receives the permission of his city or town and of the state legislature. Barron was unable to make any commitment that Spezzano's farm would have any chance of winning funding from the program. Charles and Lucy Spezzano, the owners of the farm, would have to take their chances, by applying, according to Barron.

Although the Conservation Commission would like to see the land remain as a farm, have Mr. and Mrs. Spezzano not. They currently leased their land to Florence Development for 99 years and are, therefore, unwilling to apply to the state program.

What was not mentioned by Barron or anyone else at the hearing was the possibility of the lease being negated if Florence Development is unable to obtain approval of the board for its project. At a recent Conservation Commission meeting, commission Chairman Dennis Ditelberg suggested this possibility to Charles Spezzano if his lease arrangement with Florence Development falls through.

Of those at the hearing, two favored the project, and 25 were against it. Thomas in his memorandum recommended denial of the special permit.

As a first choice, he favored continuation of the land as a farm. It is the only one of the only two working farms left in the city, Thomas noted.

If this choice becomes impossible, Thomas would support housing with a density of no more than 98 attached units. If the developer continues to want townhouses, he added, the project should be designed to preserve more open space than shown in the currently proposed plans.

Lasell Castle buyers may ignore opposition

The Lasell "Castle," a huge house on nearly four acres of land on Vista Avenue, Auburndale, may be bought by a developer whether or not he gets permission from the Board of Aldermen to convert it to condominiums.

The request by Wexler Construction Co. to divide the building into four condominiums created an uproar in the community, which thought Lasell had made inadequate efforts to sell the property to a buyer who would use the property as is.

The frankly revealed intentions of the developer to create two 25,000-foot house lots out of the property after converting the house to condominium apartments also brought on the wrath of neighbors. Such a subdivision may be done without permission of the Board of Aldermen.

There was some support from the community, local organizations and members of the Land Use Committee for the conversion of the building to condominiums if subdivision of the land could be forbidden.

A feeler put out by the lawyer for Wexler about the Land Use Committee's reaction to five apartments in the building was received with no particular interest in an informal discussion at the last committee meeting.

Nevertheless, the developer is apparently trying to get Lasell out of the picture by going ahead with the purchase and seeing what he can do with the property.

A meeting between neighbors of the Castle who expressed interest in purchase of the property and the developer is being arranged, to take place this week if possible.

At that meeting any proposal for disposition of the property other than sale to Wexler will be discussed.

If Lasell is removed from negotiations through sale of the property, the proposal for condominiums may not seem so bad, in light of the alternatives open to Wexler, which include demolition of the building and the creation of five house lots.

MAPC to present findings on hazardous materials transport

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) will present findings of a six-month inventory of hazardous materials transport in metropolitan Boston at a public briefing to be held on Wednesday, Jan. 24, from 11 a.m. to noon, in MAPC fifth floor conference room, 44 School St., Boston.

The MAPC study was conducted to provide greater Boston residents and local officials with specific information on the types and amounts of hazardous substances transported to or through their communities. An examination of 101 MAPC cities and towns revealed that 93 are either origination, storage location or destination for some type of hazardous substance. According to the planning council, this is the first such inventory ever conducted for the greater Boston area.

MAPC will present the study's findings at the briefing and discuss federal and state safety regulations and enforcement experience. Copies of the study report will be available to briefing attendees.

MAPC is the regional planning agency for 101 greater Boston cities and towns. The council works in a number of areas of local and regional concern including energy and environmental management, land use, transportation, housing, and water quality.

Editorial More memories than answers

The question of whether there were conspiracies to assassinate John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King probably will never be satisfactorily resolved. Today we observe Martin Luther King's birthday.

Millions of dollars have been spent on investigations intended to provide the answer to that question. What they have mostly done is revive sad and painful memories. The Warren Commission and the FBI seemingly produced strong evidence that President Kennedy was killed as a result of the demented thinking and sharpshooting accuracy of one man, Lee Harvey Oswald, firing a rifle from the window of a Dallas building. Unfortunately, Oswald was murdered in a police station by Jack Ruby, making it impossible to elicit any facts from him.

Now a Congressional committee has concluded, after an investigation, that President Kennedy's assassination resulted from a conspiracy and was not the work of one man.

A similar decision was reached concerning the killing of Dr. King.

If the conclusion concerning the assassinations are correct, the Warren Commission and the FBI did not discharge their responsibilities properly.

Further investigations probably may create additional uncertainty and raise more questions than they will answer.

We are unlikely ever to know whether the assassinations of President Kennedy and Dr. King were the work of individuals or the result of conspiracies.

Crying wolf on energy

The problem is that Americans have been told repeatedly since the Arab oil embargo of 1973 that just about any minute now the oil supplies would disappear or at least dwindle away. Six years ago a lot of people took the warnings seriously. Home thermostats were turned down. Car pools were arranged. There were plans of mass transit and a lot of conversation about learning to live more simply.

But then nothing much else happened. Gas prices went up a bit but so did the prices of everything else in the inflationary spiral.

Secretary Schlesinger has pointed out some hard facts. More attention to conservation by Americans could save 600,000 barrels of oil a day, well over the current projected loss to the Iranian cut-off. Unless such measures are taken voluntarily, Schlesinger warned that "by this summer" more stringent regulations will have to be applied. Saudi Arabia in addition to going along with the OPEC price increases, is now showing less enthusiasm for more production than it did in the past.

It wouldn't hurt most Americans to live more simply. But as long as that oil and gas are available at reasonable prices, little attention will be paid to calls of "wolf" until the beast really shows its fangs.

Perspectives King's first week was a mess

By James R. Dorsey
UPI Statehouse Reporter

BOSTON (UPI) — As first week's go, Gov. Edward J. King's was a political, administrative and public relations mess.

Those Statehouse observers and political insiders who believe that all new governors should get a criticism-free honeymoon chalked up the five days of botched appointments, hirings, firings, and frozen personnel ranks (except for special thaws, such as patronage) as normal confusion.

But others who said they were disinclined to allow him a grace period snorted that it was just the beginning of four years of stumbling and bumbling through government; that King, who said he would hit the deck running, fell on his face.

Perhaps most damaging to King's credibility was that the week's first controversy — the phony degrees from two of Europe's more prestigious colleges which were claimed by erstwhile Elder Affairs Secretary Stephen G. Guptill — have made the governor's selection process a joke.

Even some of the capable appointees he named were openly joking with reporters about having extra doctoral degrees.

"Doctor _____, how nice to see you again" was a common greeting.

Secretaries claimed esoteric Ph.D.'s. Clerks joked of attending non-existent academic conferences in Vienna. It was funny to all but those closest to King.

King's designee as Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority chairman, Robert E. Foster, an incinerator operator for a firm which was a favorite of the Massachusetts Port Authority when King ran it, was caught a day later misrepresenting his academic credentials.

Unlike Guptill, who compounded his error by trying to put some of the blame on King's press office, Foster made the politically stupid mistake of blaming part of his problems on a reporter for the Boston Globe. By inference, Foster called the reporter a liar in front of a room filled with television, radio and pencil reporters.

Many of King's problems with his appointments clearly could have been avoided if the level of paranoia over the news media was not as high as it is. According to a copyrighted story in the Boston Herald American, State Police Det. Lt. Edward Schofield was not given the names of many appointees until after they were announced because of a concern that the appointments would be leaked to the media.

A week he will remember

Joseph O'Reilly, a veteran probation officer with slim administrative credentials, was assured by King's office that he was going to be the new commissioner of Youth Services. A mini-crisis developed over the fact that King had not informed Human Services Secretary Charles Mahoney or DYS Commissioner John Calhoun of that.

Mahoney received repeated assurances from King's chief secretary, Paul Guzzi, that Calhoun still had his job. Calhoun was told the same thing Friday by King — sort of. Calhoun said King would decide in a week or two whether the Dukakis appointee would stay or go.

O'Reilly, whose colleagues at the Boston Juvenile Court gave him a going away party, was unavailable for comment.

Newton Comptroller Lawrence H. Marino declined his appointment as budget director after a "number of misunderstandings" with Administration Secretary Edward T. Hanley. King's press office refused to confirm that Marino was going to stay in Newton by contending that since the public relations people had never announced his appointment he had never been appointed — the administration's version of Catch-22.

Hanley drafted his first administrative bulletin Wednesday announcing a hiring freeze, which amounts to a reduction in the workforce through attrition. But King, who ran with the solid support of organized labor, didn't tell Massachusetts AFL-CIO President William Cleary about it in advance. Cleary told a news conference Thursday he would fight reductions in the size of the state's 60,000-member workforce.

Meanwhile, while the hiring freeze was in effect for agency heads, reports filtered out of King's office that three present and former members of the Massachusetts House had found new homes working for the governor as had Nancy Thissen Egan, the daughter of architect David R. "Dick" Thissen — a close friend and favored Massport designer of King's — who landed a $16,000 job.

Eight secretaries had taken up residence in the governor's appointments office where one month ago there were only three.

Three women clerical workers in Dukakis' press office were assured by Hanley through Guzzi's aide Edward Pignone that they would not be replaced immediately, only to be fired unceremoniously by Pignone who told one of the women: "The other shoe has dropped. He (King) doesn't want you around anymore."

Capitol Police Sgt. Arthur Beaulieu, who comprised Dukakis' total security force, was told that he would remain in plain clothes in King's outer office along with the half-dozen Massachusetts State Troopers assigned to protect King. Two days after he was told he could stay, Beaulieu was back in uniform on another detail.

Indeed, Gov. Edward J. "Can-do" King's first week was a mess. Was it just opening week jitters? Or is it indicative of what the remaining 207 will be like?

Inflation deflates image of economists

Commentary by Gus Tyler, national columnist

NEW YORK — Pity the poor economists for they know not whereof they speak.

Once, when economics was known as the "dismal science," its practitioners limited themselves to describing the forces at work in the present. In recent years, economists have been posing as seers foretelling the future, playing the prophet for a profit. In the process, the "dismal science" has become a joyful non-science, a babble of gleeful nonsense.

The most recent case is recorded in what happened to our country in the last quarter of 1978, when the economy boomed not only contrary to all expectations but also in total violation of the planned efforts of the President of the United States and the Federal Reserve Board to de-boom the nation's business.

In the last three months of the year, the economy expanded by five percent. Although Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal hailed the big leap upward as a sign of "strength and resilience," the Federal Reserve Board Chairman William Miller commented more candidly: "That's bad news."

It's "bad news" to Miller because the Administration has been trying for the last several months to hold down economic expansion. This has been the preferred policy of both Carter and Miller to check inflation.

To cool the economy, Washington has tried to restrict the money supply by raising interest rates so as to make it harder for both makers and buyers of things to get credit. But, to the utter bewilderment of the soothsayers, the big speedup of the economy took place precisely in that period when the Administration was pressing hard on the brakes.

What happened is that human beings did not react the way the "best brains" expected. Indeed, people did just the opposite.

People are spending money as if they were going out of fashion because they really do think that it is going out of fashion. Today's buck may be worth only 50 cents tomorrow; so spend it now before you have to spend twice as much to get the same thing.

Inflation spurs people to get rid of their dollars. The result is an acceleration in the circulation of money, an acceleration that in effect is an "increase" in the money supply.

If one dollar changes hands 10 times in one day it has as much impact on buying in this country as $10 spent only once. The effective money supply is determined by the number of dollars multiplied by the velocity with which they circulate. Inflation stimulates circulation.

The hope that high interest rates would discourage people from borrowing also seems to be futile. People are ready to borrow at high rates now because they can pay back with "cheaper" dollars later.

Just to add to the ironic confusion, the higher interest rates are themselves inflationary since the higher cost of money raises the cost of everything. And precisely such inflation is, for the present at least, speeding up money circulation to expand the economy.

You might expect that, with this overwhelming evidence that the economists know not whereof they speak, they would either apologize or fall silent. But they won't, because there is no profit in being a prophet.

Last week's Board meeting a classic

By RICHARD BULLWINKLE

One of the banes of modern society is the philosophy that if you're not with me on every issue, you're not with me. There is no allowance for discussion, disagreement or even differing attitudes.

The art of listening, even if only to prove and buttress one's own point of view, seems to have gone the way of a signed contract, effective only if honored by both parties.

A classic case in point seems to have been last week's Newton Board of Aldermen meeting. Having observed this current edition of the Board over the past year, I have received some clear impressions.

The eight new members required a period of familiarization to stabilize themselves in the new situation. Some of the new members seemed to display intellectual and leadership qualities once the shakedown period ended about eight months ago.

One of the more disturbing positions taken by some of the more senior, liberal aldermen has been a reluctance to hold public hearings on matters some elements of the public consider important. Their rationale says that only heated discussion will ensue and the aldermen know all the arguments already. How's that for open government?

Most of the members of the Newton Board of Aldermen have moderate to liberal leanings for the most part. Yet only last week, this Board denied one of its members the right to speak. So much for liberality.

The Board meeting last week itself was something else. The performance was at best disappointing.

Ald. Mark White suspended the rules to move the nuclear waste transport item out of order to accommodate a number of Newton's citizens who were in the audience. The courtesy was extended and a 30-minute discussion limit was voted. The first problem that developed was that Ald. White was the only one in possession of the material on which a "concept" vote was to be taken. No one had read or seen the document upon which a vote was to be taken.

Public Safety Chairman White publicly upbraided President Jefferson in his challenges of the chair.

I think his chagrin was at the loss of a Boston TV reporter and possible publicity as much as anything else.

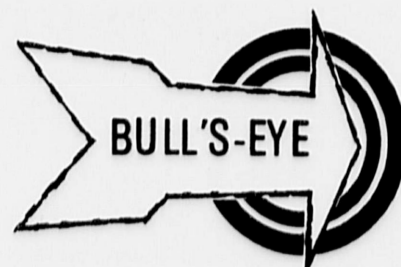

Next up for discussion was an enlarged seating plan for a Newton Highlands restaurant. Ald. Paul Daley told his colleagues that you could not expect first problem that developed was that Ald. White was the only one in possession of the material on which a "concept" vote was to be taken. No one had read or seen the document upon which a vote was to be taken.

Public Safety Chairman White publicly upbraided President Jefferson in his challenges of the chair.

I think his chagrin was at the loss of a Boston TV reporter and possible publicity as much as anything else.

Next up for discussion was an enlarged seating plan for a Newton Highlands restaurant. Ald. Paul Daley told his colleagues that you could not expect a businessman to invest a large amount of capital to enlarge his business and have the decision reversed in two years.

Subsequent disclosure, however, by Chairman Terry Morris indicated the docket item was before the Board because the Licensing Commission in a routine check discovered, in June 1978, that the additional seats were already in place. This docket item was an attempt to legalize what already had been done. The item was approved by the Board.

A proposal for lighting and planting plan for a Newtonville car dealer did not even have a revised plan before the committee. What crossed my mind as I listened to the discussion on the matter was that two of the proponents who accepted no plan on this docket item in a similar kind of case hounded a Route 9 business owner a few years ago.

This also passed with the original lighting and planting scheme.

Two committees of the Board, Finance and Administration & Planning, held joint public meetings to vote on the acceptance of City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi as new director of finance. The two committee chairmen, Ald. Ernest Dietz and Ald. Edward Richmond, requested a committee vote to hold the item.

The Board then engaged in a bitter, nonproductive argument that called the leadership qualities of President Jefferson into question as he was challenged repeatedly on his rulings.

The fragmentation of the Board's various positions became obvious in this issue.

Treasurer Scafidi sat through the entire debate. The irony of it all was that Comptroller Larry Marino has elected to stay with the City of Newton (our gain and the state's loss) and the whole scene was pointless.

On the executive side of government, Mayor Mann, after refusing to vote on the matter in the School Committee, led the Newton South supporters before a specially called (by Mayor Mann) meeting of the Newton Board of Aldermen.

No one argued the merits of a field as long as there are children to use it, but the Board in April 1977 voted $340,000 to build the field. The contractor's bid was for $328,000 — why the meeting? They had enough money.

The mayor said he considered a "no action necessary" vote a supportive vote. Who's he kidding? I remember during the last mayoral campaign that no more than $250,000 was promised to be spent on the field. The real problem is that $400,000 is the number Public Works Director Charles Thomas says is required. Look for another $60,000 for fences, stands etc., before it's all over.

Richard Bullwinkle is a former West Newton alderman.

Aldermanic chaos

To the Editor:

The roots of the aldermanic chaos described so well in last week's Graphic are tangled and deep. It is not simply a matter of decorum and more strict adherence to Robert's Rules, as some might be tempted to conclude from just this one meeting.

Hopefully, before people go charging off in pursuit of illusional solutions, they will stop and ponder some of the Board's fundamental difficulties and some of the conditions that created the current mess at City Hall.

We should consider, for example, the fact that there is little agreement, even among members, on whether the Board should be an active, positive body, continually conquering causes and seeking problems to solve, or a negative, passive assembly, ruling on weighty petitions and reacting to the initiatives of others.

Newton should not escape the great debate sweeping the country about whether we, as a society, are over-governed. Even among some dedicated liberals there is great uneasiness that possibly we spend too much time and effort governing ourselves, thus creating more problems in the long run than we solve. Possibly the Board of Aldermen is simply trying to do too much for whatever reasons.

There seems to be little incentive at City Hall to overcome the confrontation atmosphere in which so much business is conducted. It's almost as if people want to accept this as the norm or, possibly, they find it easier to work this way. There has not been much effort, except among a few members, to reform the day-to-day, week-to-week processes of the Board, to find new ways of identifying the issues of key importance and the underlying policies and principles that ideally should form the basis for votes on many matters.

The Board of Aldermen, like so many institutions in society today is faced with the terrible fact that we live in a leaderless age, a time when very few people want to follow the leader, no matter how competent and reasonable that person might be.

It pains most aldermen to think of suspending their obviously superior judgment for that of someone in charge, or someone who has expended more effort on a problem. Thus, in many respects, we have a Board of 24 leaders, 24 individuals convinced that the voters gave them a mandate to find the light by themselves.

A few pounds of humility would solve a lot of the problems at City Hall.

One could obviously go on and on in this vein. The point is not to condemn the Board of Aldermen — either the current members or the institution — but to raise just a few considerations that should be a part of any serious discussion of the state of Newton's political affairs.

Because there are no easy answers does not mean that the questions shouldn't be asked. The people of Newton deserve more than the kind of Board meeting held Jan. 8, but I fear we'll not get it until more people start paying more attention to why things happen as they do in the aldermanic chambers.

Youth Soccer story

To the Editor:

A correction in the reporting of the article on Newton Girls' Soccer, Dec. 14, 1978, is in order.

Your sports reporter mishandled some of the background information regarding soccer organization in our city. The spotlight on Youth Soccer was fostered in 1975 by Bobbie van der Walde, assisted by Rose Chalfin.

Mrs. van der Walde continued in her efforts to help soccer grow as a co-educational sport for elementary school youngsters, as based upon mandated school curriculum by the State Board of Education. Mrs. Chalfin chose to branch off and direct her energies towards the organization of a segregated and separate girls league.

Apparently, judging from the Newton Graphic Graphic article, there has been support for soccer play in both directions. The success of this sport is indisputable. The fact that 750 boys and girls joined in a co-educational program, and an additional number of 350 participated in an all girls program is testimony to a success story.

We congratulate Mrs. Chalfin in her endeavor and convey our best wishes to the new president of Newton Youth Soccer, Chuck Redmon. This will be the fourth season of Mr. Redmon's involvement with fall soccer in Newton as well as his two girls and boys, who will be registered in all three divisions of the program.

Deny Oldco petition

To the Editor:

We are writing to voice our opposition to the petition by the OldCo Realty Corporation for the extension of nonconforming use for the property at 40 Glen Ave.

As one of the abutters in our neighborhood, completely zoned Residential B, we have endured the detrimental effects of trucking, traffic hazard, noise, pollution, snow removal and nighttime loitering due to the recent increase of business and manufacturing activities of Temptronics Corporation which occupies the property.

Now the fact has come out that the OldCo Realty Corporation has rented this property to Temptronics Corporation illegally in 1973. It was illegal because it extended the non-conforming use without the approval of the Board of Aldermen or the Planning Board, as required by the code of the City of Newton.

The present petition seems to be but a late attempt to legalize the situation, which has recently become drastically intolerable to our neighborhood.

If the present business and manufacturing activities were allowed to continue and expand, they would certainly destroy this residential neighborhood. We, therefore, strongly urge to reject the petition.

Notes from Nick

To the Editor:

I see the PTAs are worried about the sidewalks during a storm. I do not see them worried about what kind of teaching is going on in the south side of the city. I have been trying to get the north side and the south side to visit each other. Then there would be something to yell about.

I had lice when I was small, and that was due to no money in the family; my mother did the best she could. I got them again in the service because we could not get enough water on the troopship to clean ourselves. Health Commissioner Dr. Carolyn Zavarine and others try to make it come out clean — forget it! tell the truth. If the person is not clean and doesn't have clean clothes, forget it.

To the School Committee, Mr. Fink and the mayor, who have spent millions of our taxpayer money for sex films and books and told the teachers to teach sex — please, I beg you, teach hygiene.

I see we have another Lois Pines in Rep. David Cohen — more laws, and more about reducing the "inefficient" Civil Service force. I believe this will open up an alligator's mouth. These politicians will put their own people in these positions, and then, boy would we have inefficiency!

Civil Service has been in a long time and it works well. I think Mr. Cohen should worry about jobs for people in Newton.

I see the mayor is worried about gasoline. My question is "What can he do about it?" Get another garage? P.S. There's enough hot air up in City Hall now.

Opposes Carabetta

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the Carabetta development proposal for the Chestnut Hill Country Club.

The entire question of preservation of Newton's golf courses, the largest and most precious open space left in the city, needs to be considered by the Board of Aldermen and by the Mann Administration, so that our golf courses are not to be picked off one by one by developers.

There has been procrastination, buck-passing, scape-goating and rhetoric ad nauseam on this subject ever since I first moved to Newton in 1971. It is time for this sort of behavior and non-action to stop, and for both the Board and the Mayor to cooperate in a firm plan to save the remaining golf courses for posterity.

For those who may not remember, Mr. Seward was once ridiculed and chastized for advocating that the United States buy Alaska. And there were those who disagreed with the Louisiana Purchase, claiming that it was an extravagance.

Let us act now — first to deny the Carabetta petitions, and second to arrive at a consensus, among the residents in the city via the Board and the Mayor, as to how to preserve Chestnut Hill, Woodland, Brae Burn, Albemarle and Charles River clubs or golf courses.

Our children will thank us.

Robbery

group was the same woman who had robbed her nine months ago.

After observing Kaye two more times that morning, the last time inside a courtroom, Mrs. Gardiner was positive of her identification. "She looked at where I was sitting and smiled," testified Mrs. Gardiner. "I said, 'I believe she knows who I am.'"

Shea and Harrington contended that these two identification procedures, the informal "line-up" in the Waltham District Court lobby and allowing Mrs. Gardiner to observe Kaye while she was in a courtroom surrounded by police officers, "tainted" the identification and made the procedures suggestive.

Although Judge Chernoff upheld the identification of Kaye by Mrs. Gardiner, he said that the procedure at the Waltham District Court left "a lot to be desired."

"If that intended to be a line-up, it certainly fell short of that," said Chernoff. However, he didn't go so far as to say the teller's testimony was "tainted" by the procedures. He noted that on two other occasions Mrs. Gardiner was brought to other places to view suspects, and made no identification.

As for the disqualified identification of Kaye by Mrs. Smith, the judge ruled that the confusion surrounding whether or not she had seen a picture in the newspaper identifying Kaye as the suspected "bomb lady" and then was shown that same picture at a later date as the basis for her identification, the "clear violated and convincing" proof standard of constitutional scrutiny for out of court identification procedures.

The hearing then proceeded into the phase probable cause where Judge Chernoff heard, for the second time, lengthy testimony by Mrs. Gardiner. Again, she pointed to the defendant, Lee Kaye, as the woman who robbed her on two separate occasions in March.

Mrs. Gardiner testified that on the March 17, the first robbery, the defendant walked up to her teller's window, handed her a note that read, "You are being watched — Don't talk to anyone! Don't touch any alarm. We have bombs in paper bags, give me bills in $100's and $50's. My friend is in back of you. We will throw the bombs! We have two minutes."

The teller saw no bomb, but did observe that the defendant had her hand in a brown paper bag. Mrs. Gardiner handed over two hundred dollars.

As for the robbery of the 28th, Mrs. Gardiner testified that the defendant again walked up to her window, smiled and said, "Remember me?" "Yes, I remember you," replied Mrs. Gardiner. Then, the robber handed her a second note demanding 200 $20 bills. Mrs. Gardiner gave her two packs of $20 bills, a total of $400, and then told the robber "that's all your you're going to get."

At 8 p.m. Saturday evening, all the testimony had been heard, and Judge Chernoff found probable cause to bind the case over to a grand jury for an indictment. This does not declare the defendant's guilt, it merely means the Judge has reason to believe the crime might have been committed by Lee Kaye.

The defense will attempt to prove that the defendant was out of the state at the time of the robberies.

South Field

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Newton South Boosters, we would like to thank all those people whose persistent efforts helped make the Newton South sports complex become a reality: Mayor Mann, members of the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen; administration, faculty, and students of NSHS; Booster members; and, most especially, Anita and Herb Bamel, the Booster's Sports Complex Chairmen. Special thanks are also due the Newton Graphic for its timely and supportive editorial of Jan. 11.

Justice cried out and finally was heard as the struggle for the long over-due sports facility ended successfully. We are further gratified that it was accomplished through a team effort.

It re-affirmed our belief that when informed and concerned individuals work together, we can be effective. Each and every person who made a phone call and/or took the time to attend the emergency meeting in support of the field contributed to the end result and should feel proud of their valuable contribution.

We now look forward to the speedy completion of the sports facility.

Lee Kaye reflects on her situation

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

"You read about people going to jail and years later your read that they found out they were innocent. I'm nervous as I can be for something I didn't do."

Lee Kaye, 58-year-old defendant in the "bomb lady" robbery case, sat outside Middlesex District Court room Friday, and waited.

It hasn't been a terribly happy road that finally led Kaye to the Newton courthouse that morning. Born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Kaye started her adult life singing with her husband's 15-man jazz band. Throughout the forties, the Chris Cross Band traveled the country playing night clubs, army bases, riding Jeeps in Burbank and sitting under wings of planes on hot desert bases.

By 1947, she and her husband had settled in Brooklyn, had a son and her problems started.

"I started on pills then because my son was a colicky baby," recalled Kaye. "I started taking Miltown and other tranquilizers. No one realized they could get addicted to tranquilizers."

From the pills, she moved to heroine and became addicted.

"I didn't know what I was doing. I didn't know why I was doing it. When I told my mother I was addicted, she said she had known all along but didn't say anything. I wish she had."

Kaye described her childhood as a happy one. She quit school in her junior year of high school and started singing. But way somewhere along the things got out of hand.

After her mother died, Kaye went on a methadone treatment program. Again, she didn't know "anything about it" and has been dependent on the methadone for years.

Kaye, a very frail woman whose face reveals the effects of many years Of poor health, nervously chain-smoked as she waited in the hallway, last Friday. She said that she was in Brooklyn visiting her father in the hospital at the time of the two robberies, and couldn't be the woman police are looking for.

She claims that her father shared a room with another patient who could place her in the hospital on March 17 and March 28. However, that information could only be obtained by an investigation.

Said Harrington, "We need to conduct and investigation for a woman who is unemployed. How is she going to pay for it?"

gram to prepare a "land use plan," but the final report will reach into almost every facet of Newton Corner.

Karen Alschuler, one of the SOM team that has worked almost a year longer than it expected to on this project, said this week that she thinks the final report will be a "combination of SOM ideas and community goals."

The important thing now, she remarked, is that the community "keep the momentum" that it has displayed through the past year and one-half so that the community can realize the goals that will be expressed in the final report.

Budget mandate

Junior high schools

At the five junior high schools, the average pupil-teacher ratio has dropped from 15.4:1 in 1970 to 14.4:1 in 1978. The School Committee budget guidelines call for an average ratio of 14.7:1.

In the major subject areas, the average junior high teacher has 90 students, with a range of five students more or less between schools. The teaching time per week in English, math, science, and social studies ranges from 800 minutes per week at Weeks to 912 minutes per week at Warren.

80 percent tenure has been As the staff reduced, the number of tenured teachers has increased. In 1970 56 percent had tenure, and now 80.8 percent have tenure.

Teachers now have an average of 14 years experience teaching, and 75 percent have earned master or doctorate degrees' the study notes.

Basbas

Judge setting bail "can and should" look at the defendant's record, the trial judge is not supposed to be aware of the defendant's record.

According to the transcript, Basbas keeps his copy of the probation record sometimes for what Basbas described as a "couple of days" after setting bail. And since Basbas, the presiding justice of Newton District Court, will not allow criminal cases to be heard by the other judge (Paul Chernoff), the same judge who looted at the criminal record will be presiding over the trial.

The I-Team questioned Judge Samuel Zoll, chief justice of the district courts, on the practices and conduct observed in the Newton District Court.

Zoll, who was reported Tuesday night as unable to comment further since the charges are under investigation by the Commission on Judicial Conduct, did comment on last week's program.

On eligibility for a court-appointed lawyer — A judge makes his own evaluation on the basis of information provided by the probation department and information the judge may elicit from the defendant, Zoll said, according to WBZ.

On default because of illness or hospitalization — "I would say, assuming it was substantiated... in most cases that would be an acceptable (excuse)," Zoll said.

On Basbas's decision that no criminal cases be heard by the other judge — Zoll said in effect that Basbas is the administrative head of the court and can make such a decision. "Beyond that, I don't think I could comment."

On Basbas's having his own copy of probation records and retaining them — "Gee, I'm not aware of that as a practice. You know, I'm not aware of that. The records, as you know, are all kept in the probation department," Zoll said.

John Burke, temporary secretary of the Commission on Judicial Conduct, said Tuesday before the WBZ follow-up was broadcast that under statute the commission may make no public comment. He would not even say whether a formal complaint had been received about either court since last week's television revelations.

The procedure, Burke said, is that a written complaint must be filed. The CJC sends a copy to the judge, who has 30 days to respond before any investigation is undertaken. Nothing must be made public until a complaint is filed by the CJC with the Supreme Judicial Court.

Allan Rodgers, chairman of the Commission on Judicial Conduct, which is an arm of the state Supreme Judicial Court, asked that complaints about Newton or Roxbury district court or other district courts, be sent to John Burke at the CJC, New Court House, Boston 02108. They may be sent anonymously.

The CJC is scheduled to meet next week.

Griffin re-elected

The Board of Trustees of the Parker Hill Medical Center announce the reelection of President Arthur Griffin of Lasell Junior College, Auburndale, as its president.

Griffin is a graduate of Tufts University and the University of Denver where he received his Ed.D. in administration. Widely experienced in administration and management, Griffin has been president of Graham Junior College, headmaster of Cheshire Academy, executive vice president and treasurer of the National Education Television Network, and has served as senior education officer in the United States Department of Commerce.

Supporters outnumber foes at NCDF

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

Newton Community Development Foundation supporters outnumbered their opponents fourfold at last week's Land Use Committee hearing on the foundation's proposed Newton Centre apartment building for the elderly and handicapped.

Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) is proposing to build a five-story, 43-unit apartment building at Sumner and Lyman Street. The project needs a special permit from the Board of Aldermen because the proposed density and number of stories exceed the zoning limits of the business district in which it is to be located. NCDF is also requesting an exception to the city's parking requirements.

To finance the project NCDF will also need a Chapter 121A contract with the city. This contract will allow NCDF to pay each year a specified amount in lieu of taxes.

To obtain the contract, NCDF must prove that the building site is "open and blighted". While the state's definition of "blighted" is somewhat open-ended, NCDF's attorney, Alan J. Schlesinger, was hardpressed at finding arguments to prove that this criteria could be applied to the Lyman and Sumner Street site.

Schlesinger began his argument by admitting that Newton Centre could hardly be considered blighted in the usual sense of the word. If the area is developed as a commercial site, the attorney continued, parking problems and congestion would increase. Because the lots are vacant and without any vegetation, they are unsightly and therefore detrimental, he added.

The peculiar shape and grade of the lot would also qualify it as blighted, Schlesinger said. The shape of the lot could only be considered peculiar if the Lyman and Sumner Street lots are considered as one since each is a rectangular lot. As for the grade, the Planning Department noted the Sumner Street lot is slightly below grade. The department did not consider that either the grade or the shape would make development ordinarily costly and therefore making the site blighted.

As a final argument, Schlesinger noted the mortgage on a house once located on the Sumner Street site was foreclosed. This point, he said, contributed to making the site blighted.

These arguments are all "shaky," Planning Director Charles Thomas said later. Perhaps better ones can be found, he said. Would bending the "blighted" U criteria precedent? to allow the project to go forward set a bad

Yes, said Thomas. "The law must be followed," he said. Thomas, however, does like the NCDF plan. It does, he noted, meet all the other criteria for a Chapter 121A contract.

Other supporters include the League of Women Voters; the president of the Mutual Bank for Savings, the current owner of both lots; the Newton Centre Neighborhood Association; Robert Davis, the pastor of the Elliot Church, and some residents of Sumner Street.

Three people spoke at the hearing in opposition to the project. A chief opponent was Stefan Theodore, an owner of two two-family houses on Sumner Street opposite the proposed building. The Lyman Street lot, he said, is only being included in the project to allow the board to approve the proposed density. The lot will be used only for parking. Without its inclusion in the project, the density would be too large for the Board to grant a special permit.

Drawing a parallel between the Willow Street and Sumner Street neighborhoods, Theodore noted he was recently denied a variance to legalize a four-unit structure on Willow Street in Newton Centre. The appeal was denied, he said, because the Zoning Board of Appeals thought four dwelling units would overburden the site.

What Theodore did not mention was his building was currently being used for living arrangements similar to a boarding house without the necessary permission from the Board of Aldermen. Unlike the Lyman and Sumner Street lots, his is in a private residence district. Theodore also wanted to include some office space in the building.

Halfway House plays host

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Alternative Home, Inc., operator of two community residences in Newton for the emotionally ill, took last Sunday's small turn-out of neighbors to their quarterly information and grievance meeting as an indication that all is calm in Auburndale.

Of the 200 invitations sent to neighbors by the Alternative Home at 459 Auburn St., Auburndale, only six neighbors attended the meeting.

The quarterly meetings, mandated by the Aldermanic Land Use Committee when they granted Alternative Home the right to use the Auburn Street house as a community residence, are to provide a forum for neighborhood grievances and provide neighbors with current information on staffing, residents, and programs.

"I think the amount of neighbors here is indicative of the fact that there aren't many problems," said William Carmen, chairman of the Board of Directors of Alternative Home, Inc., in opening remarks to the audience.

"If you measure by the standard of any other community, no interest, at least at the moment, is a positive sign," he continued.

Rep. David Mofenson, (D-Newton) and Sen. Jack Backman (D-Newton-Brookline) chairmen of their respective committees on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, attended the meeting along with the neighbors, Alternative Home staff, and two members of the Land Use Committee. Cong. Robert Drinan appeared briefly before the meeting started.

Mofenson, the featured speaker, centered his informal remarks on the outlook for mental health funding in the new King administration. Noting the increasing commitment by the courts and Commonwealth away from institutionalization of mentally ill persons toward community support services like Alternative Home, Mofenson expressed concern over whether the current administration will continue this emphasis.

"I believe there is a big political fight waiting on Beacon Hill with all Human Services allocations," Mofenson stated. "We are apt to see all of these remarkable gains greatly reduced."

After the meeting, Mofenson elaborated. "If he (Gov. King) attempts to fulfill his campaign promise, I think cuts in mental health areas will be inevitable. I don't see how you can cut $500 million in taxes and expect anything different. But, I hope I'm wrong."

During the meeting, Ald. Ethel Sheehan, member of the Land Use Committee, expressed concern over the Department of Mental Health's slowness in issuing regulations for the operation of community residences. (Currently the residences are run by less formal guidelines from the state.)

Dr. Stuart Meyers, Newton-Wellesley-Weston-Needham area director for the Department of Mental Health, informed those present that the state has completed its final draft of the regulations and will circulate them in February.

Ken Gorfinkle, executive director of Alternative Home, Inc., wrapped up the meeting by encouraging neighbors of the Auburn Street home to drop by in the evenings and meet the residents and staff. Because to make staff and residents change so often, Gorfinkle hopes these meetings an on-going process, possibly avoiding an incident similar to one that happened at Thanksgiving when a resident wandered into an unrecognized, home, unannounced and frightening a woman and her child.

Old conductor recounts lifetime of railroading

By DAN CHISZAR

DENVER (UPI) — The train had stopped in Denver for an hour, then pulled out in a drizzle, rolling free of the train yard along the South Platte River, heading for Chicago.

There was a solid rumbling beneath — none of the unsettling tenuousness of the jet airplane ride.

It was slower, too. The bar car was open until midnight. Travel became an extended verb, not just the shortest time possible between two points.

We passed the stockyards. The rain picked up and so did the train, blasting its whistle long and short. The rain tapped harder at the window, accompanied by the clacking rails.

A porter came by and dropped a pillow onto the seat. None of the set smile of an airline stewardess. The porter's action was brisk and swift, the way ordinary business should be done, without the grand false sweeps.

Ids and grazing cattle. The Colorado Rockies faded from view.

I was riding in Car 609, coach, one car behind the crew's sleeping quarters, two cars behind the baggage car, three cars behind a car heaped with gray mailbags, four cars behind the two huge diesel engines hauling the whole affair — 14 cars in all, counting those behind mine.

Sundown came somewhere after Fort Morgan, and the countryside passed in shadows outside the window.

The conductor sat at a small table two cars back. His cap was tilted back on his head, showing white hair. His shirt was white, his tie burgundy, his uniform the traditional black. He wore glasses.

On my way to the bar car I stopped to talk to him. "H.P. Cotton," he said his name was. "I could tell you a lot of things." And he did.

Harry Cotton was the sixth conductor to come on the San Francisco Zephyr since it had left Oakland. He had been with Burlington-Northern 44 years, a conductor since 1943. He had been on the stretch between Denver and McCook, Neb., where he lives with his wife, for three years.

We were traveling 79 miles an hour, Harry said. The car rocked gently, and Harry's shoulders rolled with it.

"I've been 44 years a railroad man," he said. "I'll take my pension the 29th of this month. I've flown north, south, east and west. I have a brother in Houston, a son in Great Falls, Mont., and a son in York, Pa. And I have friends in San Diego."

"Look outside," he said. "You can see the terrain. Now we're going through the High Plains. This is a part of our western lore, just like in that book 'Centennial'."

"How many times when you've flown, after you reached your altitude, have you seen the ground? You can't."

"The only time I've seen anything on a flight was from Denver to San Diego and that was the Colorado River. And then you come down; you start your descent. By the time you land everything is over, and the seating is close."

"Here, you can get up and walk around. You can see the countryside. Here, all of our meals are prepared on the train. There's nothing frozen or reheated. They have a kitchen back there."

"We have a bar. You can buy a can of 7-Up and individual bottles of whiskey and mix it yourself. The reason for that is the Bartenders Association would get into it."

Harry paused for a few seconds, then proceeded, more slowly.

"The railroads have forgotten that the traveling public is king and should be catered to," he said. "We can't compete with the airlines because of the unorthodox way they reduce their fares."

We can't, under any circumstances, compete with speed.

"The government says we can go 80 miles per hour on a single track. We can't leave early from a station because we'd miss passengers. There's no way we can make up a delay."

Here, the conductor paused again. We were approaching Akron, Colo., and he would have rounds to make.

"I've been a railroad man since 1934," he said. "My father was a railroad man, my uncle was a railroad man, and I had grown up with them. It was in my blood — this is more or less a normal way of life."

"Railroading is a fascinating game," Harry Cotton said, getting up to prepare for the stop. "I don't know anything about your game, but if it's as fascinating as this game — well, you'll never get out of it."

Akron — 9:10 p.m., 26 minutes behind schedule. Harry got up to go about his business.

Shortly after midnight, another conductor came aboard and Harry got off at McCook, Neb. I never saw him again.

My trip continued. In two weeks, I was on the Zephyr again, heading back from Chicago to Colorado. It was dark early morning when the train blew through Omaha, and in the mid-morning we stopped in McCook to take on a new crew.

I remembered Harry Cotton had said the month before he was taking his pension soon. I asked a porter if he knew of H.P. Cotton.

"I think I know who you mean, but he's gone," said the porter.

A trainman said he knew Harry Cotton, but he wasn't sure. Coming aboard was La Moine Keene, the conductor for this leg of the trip.

"Do you know H.P. Cotton?" I asked.

"Yes I do, but I didn't know him all that well," said Keene. "He just took his pension."

Keene had white hair and wore glasses. He loitered awhile and talked about his business and trains and how long he had been on them.

"A conductor is sort of like the captain of a ship," he said. "You're responsible for whatever goes on aboard."

Rate of recycling paper has dropped since 1940's

By Betsy Lewenberg

Recycling question of the week:
Is it true that in spite of increased awareness of the value of recycling there were higher rates of recycling waste paper in the 1940's than today?

Unfortunately, the answer is yes. Although the United States presently recycles more paper than ever before, we also consume more. The net result is a lower rate of recycling. In 1944 the peak paper recycling rate of 35.3 percent was reached. The recycling rate steadily dropped for decades until 1972 when this negative pattern began reversing itself. In 1974 the paper recycling rate was up to 22 percent, still substantially lower than the 1944 figure.

Most of the paper recycled comes from industrial rather than residential or "post consumer" waste. The reason is economic. It makes sense for factories to reuse paper clippings, rejected boxes, etc. rather than pay to discard them. Unfortunately, the general public has not caught on to this idea. People don't seem to realize that we pay twice for packaging — once in the purchase price, and again in taxes which are spent to dispose of this trash. Only approximately 175 cities nationwide collect paper from curbside, although many more have general trash collection.

There are many reasons why the recycling rate is low. Our "throw-away ethic" plays a large part in this situation. Americans historically have milked the land for whatever we wanted and then moved on, often leaving desolation behind. Although we can no longer afford such wasteful ways, people are slow to change.

Compounding this situation is legislation that discriminates against recycling. Depletion allowances and freight rates, for example, both work against recycling.

Everyone should do his part to encourage increased recycling. We must increase participation in recycling by convincing our friends and neighbors of the economic, energy and environmental benefits of recycling. We should also refuse to buy goods that are excessively packaged and let industry know of our concern. When possible, we should buy goods packaged in recycled paper. You can tell the paper is recycled if it looks gray or speckled when ripped. Don't be fooled by Chinese food containers or brown paper bags that say recyclable. They are not generally made from recycled fibers and prob-bably will not be recycled.

A simple label should not relieve industry from a responsibility for recycled, not recyclable, packaging. If recycling is to become economically viable, we must increase the demand for products made from recycled fibers.

Finally, we must work towards passage of legislation that will provide incentives for, instead of discriminating against, recycling. The federal government has recently begun to help rectify this situation. The Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 encourages states to develop comprehensive solid waste management plans. This, however, is only a start. Legislation needs to be passed to encourage reuse and recycling and to discourage excessive packaging.

With increased awareness we can improve our environment by both increasing the rate of paper recycling and decreasing the amount of paper consumed.

Addition for Hamilton planned

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

The Planning & Development Board meeting last week, the city now intends to build an addition to the recently closed Hamilton School as part of the school's conversion to an elderly housing project.

With the addition the converted school will have 40 apartment units, which will comprise the entire package recently awarded to city by the state Department of Community Affairs. Previously, the city had only intended to rehabilitate the school into 23 units and use another site to build the remaining units.

It had hoped to purchase the Maz-zola Bakery in Nonantum. Consideration was even given to using some community development funds to help subsidize the acquisition of the site. But even with the possibility of the additional money, the site was too expensive, according to Planning Director Charles Thomas.

The architect was directed to consider other sites for the addition units. In the midst of his search, it was decided that the conversion of the Hamilton School would require an elevator. With the additional cost of the elevator, more units would have to be added to make the project cost efficient, Thomas said. It was then decided to put the entire 40 units at the school, he said.

In addition to the 40 units, the project will include community space for the residents of Newton Lower Falls.

of an offer to buy the last of the Moulton Street lots in Lower Falls. These lots were all part of the redevelopment program in Lower Falls. At one time, it was hoped they would be used to build singlefamily houses to be sold at moderate prices.

Instead the lots were sold to private developers. One was held back from sale because of its terrain. Elizabeth and William Johnson, abutters to the lot, have offered to buy it at the asking price of $2,900 with a restriction prohibiting any construction, parking, or storage.

Turning to the former Greek Church in Lower Falls, the board learned Lee Loomis has been asked by Shipley, the owner of the church, to vacate the property by March. Since Lee Loomis was originally and is now located in the redevelopment area, the Community Development Authority must pay its moving expenses.

Drinan urges check on Swedish tires

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) urged consumers across America who have experienced serious problems with Swedish-made Firestone 500 tires to write immediately to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) in Washington.

Drinan noted that after he wrote to NHTSA chief Joan Claybrook asking for an investigation into possibly life-threatening defects in the Swedish-made tires, Claybrook responded by saying her agency wanted to hear individual consumer complaints about foreign-made Firestone 500's.

"Over the past few months I have received a number of phone calls and letters from citizens who have experienced serious problems with Swedish-made Firestone 500's," Drinan said.

"Some of the people who have contacted me have described instances of Swedish-made 500's blowing out or suffering tread separation," Drinan noted. "Because there may be a significant risk to life and limb involved in the continued use of these Swedish-made tires, it is critically important that citizens share with NHTSA any information they may have about the malfunctioning of Swedish-made Firestone 500's."

Approximately 200,000 Swedish Firestone tires were shipped to the United States on Volvos between 1974 and 1977.

Vandals busy at North High

Vandals damaged forty plastic windows and sprayed a wall with white spray paint on the east side of the Newton North High School building sometime Friday night, police reported.

Newton North football coach Norm Walker summoned police to the high school Saturday morning after discovering that holes had been burned through the plastic panes. The holes were made with a flare, said police. Upon a search of the area, Officer John Bartinelli discovered and extinguished a flare in the northeast corner of the football stadium.

Two juveniles were arrested by Newton Police Saturday night on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and malicious damage after they allegedly threw a brick at a man inside the Newton Highlands Laundromat, 1191 Walnut St., Newton Highlands.

The Newton Highlands man in the self-service laundry, told police that two males threw a brick at him, damaging a dryer and just missing him. Newton officers later found the suspects, aged 14 and 16, in a nearby pizza parlor and arrested them.

A home on Lovett Road was broken into early Saturday morning when an unknown party entered the rear cellar window and kicked in the door at the top of the cellar stairs. The alarm apparently scared the intruder away as nothing was taken.

A witness, riding past the Old Colony Gas Station at 2 a.m. Saturday, noticed someone pushing in the front door of the station at 1172 Beacon St., and called police. The front door was caved in causing structural damage to the building. About $15 in cigarettes were taken.

Police also reported this weekend arresting John P. McCarthy for disorderly conduct outside the South Pacific Restaurant at 1152 Beacon St. Police were summoned to the restaurant at 6:45 p.m. on a report that McCarthy allegedly tried to pass a stolen credit card. McCarthy's conduct during questioning became loud and disorderly and he was taken into custody, police said.

A burglary and forced entry occurred at Rosenberg's Kosher Foods, 880 Walnut St., Saturday at 2:10 a.m. A witness reported seeing a white male under 30-years-old leaving the scene in a car. An employee of the restaurant said $100 in cash and an undetermined amount of meat was taken.

Solar energy, social security highlight Drinan's legislation

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) introduced this week a legislative package of 55 bills to Congress focusing on solar energy and energy conservation laws; changes in the Social Security Act; and a series of bills in the area of smoking and health.

During the 96th Congress, which ended in October, many of Cong. Drinan's legislative efforts were signed into law. Among these was a bill which eliminated the remarriage penalty against Social Security recipients. In addition, Drinan played a central role in the passage of legislation raising the mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70; the passage of bankruptcy reform; and the passage of a bill giving small businesses a better chance to receive government contracts.

In the 96th Congress, which begins Jan. 15, Drinan will continue his work to make the Social Security system fairer by filing a bill which would allow married couples to combine their earnings for Social Security purposes.

In the area of energy, Congressman Drinan will press for industrial energy conservation, utility rate reform, and methods of making solar energy more widely available for homeowners and small businesses.

The Massachusetts lawmaker will also be reintroducing his bill to protect the press against surprise police searches. Last year, Drinan's Press Protection Act drew over 50 House cosponsors and helped to convince the Carter Administration to reverse its previous support of these police searches.

The author of the first no smoking legislation ever introduced into the United States, Drinan again filed his legislation to protect the rights of nonsmokers from breathing tobacco-polluted air; to mandate disclosure of tar and nicotine content; to tax cigarettes according to tar and nicotine content; and to strengthen the warning label on cigarette packages, citing the "deadly consequences of smoking" reported by the newest surgeon general's report.

Among the other legislation Drinan filed is a bill to provide grants for safe drinking water, a matter of particular importance to the Northeast where older water systems have been deteriorating at a rapid rate and imposing severe financial burdens on cities and towns.

In addition, Drinan will refile his bill to move the 1980 Summer Olympics out of Moscow unless the Soviet Union changes its human rights policy or provides evidence that "dissidents" will not be locked up during the Games. Other Drinan bills would strengthen Congressional oversight on American arms sales abroad; end the patronage system in the selection of federal prosecutors; improve job placement services; and protect the rights of visual artists not to have their work distorted or destroyed.

Finally, Cong. Drinan will be filing legislation to eliminate mandatory retirement in the private sector. This measure will build upon the work done by Congress last year, after Congressional hearings were held in Brookline and Waltham, to raise the retirement age to 70 in the private sector and eliminate it entirely for federal employees.

South High field and track get OK at $328,000-plus

A new home football field and track for Newton South High School were assured, however backhandedly, by a 19-3 vote of "no action necessary" by the Board of Aldermen at a special meeting last Thursday.

The meeting was called by Mayor Theodore Mann after a vote from the Newton School Committee requesting him to recommend to the Board that $328,485 be spent on the South field and a track.

The Board of Aldermen in 1977 transferred some $339,000 left in a Newton North High School head account a few years ago to the Newton South account, but both the School Committee and the mayor agreed that no more than $250,000 would be spent on the South High School facility.

Since the Board had transferred the full $339,000, technically the mayor could have designated that amount for the field and track without approval of the Board, but he said he had a "moral commitment" not to proceed without Board action.

"No action necessary" could not be construed as favorable action, but Ald. Richard McGrath's threatened charter objection, which would have delayed all action until after expiration of the bids Jan. 16, did not materialize.

McGrath may have been forestalled by the presence of about 150 South High School students, Pep Squad and Booster Club signs, and the announcement by Ald. Cynthia Creem that she had signatures on a letter from 18 aldermen "informally assenting" to use of the $339,000.

Opposed to Creem's letter were Ald.

Joseph McDonnell, Matthew Jefferson, Joseph DePasquale, and McGrath. Not available were Ald. Robert Sandman and Paul Daley. Ald. David Cohen signed the letter with the reservation that the land used for the field should not encroach on the adjoining wetland using the line established by the Newton Conservation Commission and not the state Department of Environmental Quality's boundary.

The low bid for the field and track was submitted by the J. J. O'Brien & Sons of Waltham at $328,485. Additional money will be needed for contingencies.

The mayor will have to submit an appropriation request at some later time for $16,000 for a fence. The Recreation Department will provide bleachers at no charge, according to a letter from Lillian Radlo, assistant to the superintendent of schools.

An effort by Ald. Ernest Dietz to give the mayor a more positive expression of approval by a resolution supporting the new field and track and its additional cost failed to gain the necessary votes for suspension of the rules so that it could be taken up. The field and track should be ready for use by the opening of school in the fall of 1979.

Indigent defenders program costs less than old system

The Middlesex County Indigent Defenders Program represented 12,465 indigent defendants in criminal matters during 1978, compared to 10,392 indigent defendants represented in 1977, according to County Commissioner Michael McLaughlin.

The Indigent Defenders Program was created in 1977 by Commissioner McLaughlin to provide the poor with expert legal counsel and to reduce the tax burden on county taxpayers.

Under the old system of court appointments, the average cost per defendant was approximately $55.

In 1978 the cost per defendant was less than $24.

The cost of the Indigent Defenders Program has remained constant at $292,000 for the past two years, in contrast to an estimated $571,560 and $685,575 had the old system remained in effect.

The feeling that God can heal you.

Men and women everywhere feel deep down that it's true. God can heal. With the power of Spirit. Without drugs. Jesus knew this. He proved it, and so did his early followers. They turned to God in prayer. They yielded to the understanding of God's presence and grace.

You can do the same, and there is a book that can help you. Study of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy reveals new meaning in Jesus' teachings. You can learn the rules of spiritual healing he taught and lived.

The Art of Home Decor

by Lynne Rapoport

Useful objects decoratively displayed are usually most appropriately used as wall decorations in kitchens and dining rooms. Floors, although not first to come to mind, can also serve well as major areas available for display of such accent pieces, such as area rugs, floor-based sculpture or large plants. Windows, occasionally, can be fitted with glass shelves, and used as a display case for small plants or for collections of colored glass. A good idea is to store part of your collection and give variety to the display by frequent changes. Functional decorative items such as screens, pillows, clocks, bowls and vases may also be used for accent. Did you know that DELTA BATH & HOME BOUTIQUE, 134 Adams St., Newton, 954-6453, does emergency service and repairs for the home, commercial and industrial businesses on sprinkler systems, heating systems, plumbing disorders, etc? We have been serving the people of this and surrounding areas for many, many years with experience, reliability and equality. Call us when you need us in a hurry, or call us when you decide to have your kitchen or bathroom remodeled. We're open Mon. thru Sat. from 10 until 5 and Thur. until 9. HELPFUL HINT: Beware of the temptation to show off too many things in limited space, risking an effect more cluttered than decorative.

Sloppy Saturday leads to accidents

Saturday's mixture of snow, rain, slush and ice created hazardous driving conditions on Newton's roads. The Newton Police Traffic Bureau reported nine accidents between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. that day.

A car driven by Edmund C. McCormack, 34, 12 Rogers Rd., Dedham, had its right side totaled when it struck a tree at the corner of Grant Avenue and Marshal Street on Saturday about 12:50 a.m.

McCormack stated to police that he swerved to avoid hitting a car traveling on his side of the road, causing him to run off the road and hit the tree. No description of the other car was given. McCormack, suffering from bruises and abrasions, was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Two cars collided on another snowy street Saturday at 1 p.m. when one car attempted to turn into a driveway.

Paul J. Derboughosian, 20, 22 Templeton Pkwy., Watertown, stated to police that he was traveling south on Parker Street when a car driven by Saloman H. Hecht, 18, 66 Brookline St., Newton, turned into the driveway at 95 Parker St. The cars, unable to stop on the snow and ice, collided.

Lisa B. Schuster, 20, 217 Greenwood St., Newton Centre, was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital Saturday with a bump on her head after skidding into a pole. Schuster told police that while heading south on Parker Street about 1:45 p.m., she pulled over to stop for an ambulance and skidded into a utility pole.

Slowing down for a red light on Beacon Street Saturday at approximately 1:50, a car driven by Caroline S. Dodge, 28, 306 North St., Medfield, skidded on the snowy street colliding head-on into another car. The second car as driven by Mack Carmella, 36, 151 Concord St., Newton Lower Falls. Cars driven by Howard Charbonneau, 78, 91C Kennedy Cir., Newton and Laurence B. Rosenberg, 39, 50 Booth St., Needham were involved in a minor collision Friday at the corner of Washington and Walnut Streets. Police reports gave no time for the accident.

Police stated that Charbonneau's car cut a right turn too wide, hitting Rosenberg's car in the front fender. Passengers Amy Beth Rosenberg, 8, and Ann Rosenberg, age unknown, were taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital with minor injuries.

The Newton Police Traffic Bureau also reported a total of issuing 333 overnight parking tickets Friday and Saturday nights.

Commission to sponsor environment program

The Environmental Science Program has a new sponsor—the Conservation Commission.

The commission voted last week to sponsor the summer program for junior high students. The decision came after the commission learned from the City Solicitor Daniel M. Funk that there are no legal issues hampering such an action.

The sponsorship of this 15-year old program is part of the commission's efforts to educate youth, commission Secretary Helen Heyn said.

The program runs for 20 days each summer. Under the supervision of a Newton science teacher, 30 to 36 junior high teens undergo rigorous environmental training. Specifically, they study places such as Hammond Pond, a sewage treatment plant, and Mount Washington, which they climb as a climax to their program.

This year the supervisor teacher will be Richard Staley, who is also a member of the commission. It was Staley who first asked the commission to consider taking the program under its wing, since the Newton Conservators, its former sponsor, felt it necessary to disassociate itself from the program. Before the Conservators, the sponsor was the Newton school system.

The program, according to Staley is self-supporting. All costs are paid by fees from participants.

In other matters, the commission is disturbed by the noticeably white roads this winter, indicating excessive use of salt. They are afraid the city Department of Public Works (DPW) is not adhering to the requirement of using no more than one third salt to every three parts of sand. To show concern, they voted to send DPW Commissioner Charles Thomas a letter notifying him of the problem.

Museum needs volunteers

The Museum of Transportation is moving Wharf in July 1979, to Boston's Museum. Presently located in the 100-year-old Carriage House in Brookline's Larz Anderson Park, the museum's exhibits and programs explore the impact of transportation on people's daily lives.

A training course for volunteer tourguides will begin in February at the Carriage House. Taught by Museum staff and guest speakers, the course will focus on the vehicles, people and events of transportation history, with particular emphasis on the city of Boston. Volunteers will be trained to lead tours of children and adult groups through the current exhibits and those in the new Wharf building. In addition, volunteers themselves will have the opportunity to learn to ride a high-wheel bicycle, to crank-start an antique car, and to use an 80-year-old gasoline pump.

The philosophy of the museum's education department is that people learn best by doing. Exhibits encourage visitors to get involved: current activities include a minihovercraft to ride, a carriage to build, and a giant steam engine in which people become "steam." An exhibit being created for the Wharf building, "Boston: A City in Transition," entitled will focus on the development of Boston from 1630 to the present, making use of unique exhibit techniques to actively involve visitors.

Speed reading for students from ages 10 to 70

Based on an established, national program, E.R.S. offers a unique written guarantee that a student will at least equal or at least triple their reading comprehension. Most people do considerably better and are pleasantly surprised. Adults read at an average rate of 250 words per minute. The E.R.S. goal is to increase that rate to 150-300 words per minute on most general material, with full comprehension. Reading rates of 5-10,000 words per minute are not uncommon. This means that a person can read an average size paperback in 20-30 minutes. To date, the fastest reading speed attained at an E.R.S. class is 81,000 words per minute.

Depending on natural methods and personalized instruction, the program does not use machines or devices. Normally consisting of one class per week for a period of ten weeks, many people have successfully completed the course in as little as five weeks. With small classes limited to ten, students proceed at their own pace, with a great deal of individual attention. Because of this structure, enrollment is continuous which means a new student may enroll at any time. Once enrolled in the program, a person is entitled to return for refresher purposes at any time.

Because the E.R.S. method consists of informal and non-competitive classes, students from age 10 to 70 can attend classes together. There are frequently many family groups enrolled in the course. Instruction is by experienced classroom teachers, all of whom have earned Masters degrees in Education and have successfully completed the E.R.S. course.

Over 80% of South grads go to college

What is there to do after high school?

At Newton South High School, Margaret Addis, head of the Guidance Department, said 85 percent of the Class of 1978 went on to two- or four-year colleges, and 3 percent went on to other schooling.

Although last year's class was 73 students less than the 1977 class of 438 students, 5 percent more of the 1978 grads went on to continue their education.

One trend Ms. Addis noticed is an increasing number of students postponing college education one or two semesters.

She said that about a dozen students in the last class were accepted at colleges, and then notified the colleges that they would not be starting classes until January or September 1979.

Ten years ago there might have only been one student postponing college education, she said.

In the past nine years, the percentage of Newton South students continuing their education has fluctuated from 83 to 89 percent, according to figures Ms. Addis supplied. Of the rest of the 365 members of the Class of 1978, 30 went to work after high school, four went into the armed forces, and seven did other things, which might have been traveling or getting married, according to Veronica Cannell in the Guidance Department.

Newton North High School's Guidance Department head, Robert DeJulio, could not be reached this week for information on that school's graduates.

CH Country Club faces foreclosure

The Newton-based Mutual Bank for Savings has filed a complaint in Land Court for authority to foreclose the mortgage of the Chestnut Hill Country Club, thus complicating the possible purchase and development of the club by Carabatta Enterprises.

Richard Jones of the Mutual Bank for Savings would not reveal the amount owed, but said when the mortgage was given in 1974 the amount was $750,000.

The financially distressed club is reported to be under purchase-and-sale agreement to Carabatta for about $2 million, contingent on Carabatta's obtaining a zone change and special permit to build a 428-unit apartment building.

The plan submitted recently by Carabatta, which also included 30 townhouse units, was received negatively by the Land Use Committee. Further discussion will take place in a special meeting of the committee Jan. 25 at 7:45 p.m. at City Hall.

If the foreclosure goes through before the purchase by Carabatta can be arranged, the bank may ask any price it chooses for the 81-acre site. The amount might well be higher than Carabatta is willing to pay.

After 31 years of service to the U.S. Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center, Watertown, Joseph D. Iannelle of Newton Corner retired recently. During his career he received 11 awards for adopted suggestions and received a Superior Performance Award.

Housing Services told to raise employee salaries

The Housing Services Commission learned last week of a possible compromise with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development over the wages of Housing Services employees.

The problem began when the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) audited Newton Housing Services (NHS) and found its employees earning below HUD standards. Raising the wages to comply, according to Executive Director Frank Quinn, is not easy. Ever since the department lost its authority status and was incorporated into the city, its employees must abide by the standards and rates set by the Personnel Department.

"The real answer is to recreate the independent authority," said commission Chairman Stephen Buchbinder. As an authority, it could set its own wage scales, he said.

In other matters, the tenants at the Beaconwood Road project will now receive their utility reimbursement checks made out jointly to themselves and Boston Edison. Tenants were polled on this idea, and they approved of it, Buchbinder said.

The utility reimbursement is made because the Beaconwood Road project has all electric utilities as well as electric heat. To help defray some of the high costs, NHS reimburses each tenant based on income after rent payment. By making the checks payable to both the tenants and to Boston Edison, the NHS can help those at the project from falling too far behind in their electric bills, Buchbinder said. The tenant merely signs the check and sends it to Boston

Edison.

The commission learned of two new services instituted by NHS within the last year. All residents in all of the services' projects now have available a 24-hour call system to report maintenance problems. A vial of life program was also instituted. It encourages all residents to keep vital medical information in a vial in their refrigerators. If a medical emergency occurs, those at NHS as well as city emergency personnel will immediately look for this information.

Sen. Backman blasts King, hiring freeze means 'chaos'

State Sen. Jack H. Backman (D, Brookline-Newton) last week charged Gov. King with jeopardizing the new child abuse hotline and other Human Service programs by ordering a freeze on hiring.

"Under the Governor's order, the hiring of hotline staff and replacement personnel in every Human Service program in the Commonwealth will be delayed," Backman said. "The result can be chaos."

The King Administration, Friday, notified all state agencies that the hiring freeze would be effective immediately and apply to all state jobs, except positions in state mental hospitals. The Administration gave no indication of how long the freeze would last.

Social services officials say the freeze is particularly hard on them because of the high turnover rate with workers in child abuse and neglect cases.

Backman continued, "This hiring freeze is a replay of the action taken by the Dukakis administration in 1974. The effect then was severe disruption of ongoing programs relating to care and maintenance of children, the elderly and mentally ill persons. Though court action has declared that freeze illegal, nothing can compensate the victims for their pain and suffering."

"Our Constitution permits the Governor to consider whether proposed payments are in accordance with the law," he continued. "It does not give the Governor the power to impose funds once a law has been signed or a budget approved. The Legislature makes the law and the Executive executes the law, as Chief Justice Marshall recognized 150 years ago. 'The Governor's actions may be well meaning. He did promise to return some $500,000,000 to the cities and towns. However, he also promised not to cut back on Human Service programs. He has no legal power to unilaterally stop programs created by our Legislature."

Senator Backman has called upon the Attorney General to rule on the legality of the hiring freeze.

Friday night is for families at Boston Children's museum

Lenny Gerwick introduces the Emperor and Aladdin to a youngster after a recent performance of "Aladdin and the Magic Lamp" at the Children's Museum. The Gerwick Puppets play regularly in the museum's Friday Night Performance Series.

Computer terminals, Grandmother's Attic, the Japanese Home and all the other "do-touch" exhibits are what bring kids and grownups to the Boston Children's Museum. But on Friday evenings, there are two bonuses: a bargain admission rate and the Friday Night Performance Series.

Every Friday, from 6 to 9 p.m., admission is just 50 cents for each adult or child. That's a substantial savings over the regular admission rates of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

For an extra 75 cents, children and adults can flop down on one of the carpeted platforms in the Sit Around and see some of the best family entertainment in the Boston Area — jugglers, storytellers, clowns, musicians and magicians.

True to the tradition of the Children's Museum, all the performers encourage participation from the audience.

Two of the most popular performers in the series are the Gerwick Puppets and Tom Smith.

The Gerwick Puppets have been appearing regularly at the museum almost two years, and they've developed a loyal following with such shows as "Beauty and the Beast," "Adventures from Thornton W. Burgess," "Aladdin and the Magic Lamp," "Rumpelstiltskin" and "Inside the Haunted House." Each show has its own hand-painted scenery.

"We depend on the response of the audience to help generate excitement," Deborah Gerwick said, "and that's why we enjoy the Children's Museum so much. There's a wide range of ages among the children and quite a lot of adults, too."

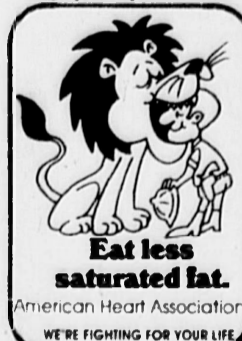

Her comments are echoed by folksinger and storyteller Tom Smith. "The museum is one of my favorite places. I never know what to expect," he says. "There's a wide cross-section of people and each show I do gets a completely different response from the audience."

Smith tells stories; plays the guitar, banjo, harmonica and even spoons; and sings American folk songs, "songs the kids know and can sing along."

Friday Night Performance Series: Jan. 19, the Gerwick Puppets, "Inside the Haunted House"; Jan. 26, Tom Smith, storytelling and folksongs; Feb. 2, Laura Sheppard, mime; Feb. 9, Reg Bacon, "Scrub Board Slim," jug band music; Feb. 16, the Gerwick Puppets, "Adventures from Thornton W. Burgess"; Feb. 23, Tom Smith, storytelling and folksongs. All performances are at 7:30 p.m.

Although the museum is moving to Boston's waterfront this July, the museum is still on the Jamaica Way, Route 1, until April 22.

CONTINUOUS COMPOUNDING

The Mysterious Phenomenon That Squeezes Extra Interest From Your Savings.

No one's invented a better way to pay interest.

Because a bank offers "The Highest Lawful Rates": doesn't mean you're getting the maximum interest from your savings. Your bank could do better - it could figure interest on a continuing basis as the Auburndale Co-op does.

Many banks add compound interest quarterly (only every 90 days), some add interest monthly, others daily . . . However, Continuous Compounding means that interest is added and figured into your balance every second. Yes, every second! The result? Higher annual yield on your savings.

FOCUS

Invisible neighbors

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
In Focus Editor

(Local people were interviewed for this article. They are neighbors you probably never met, and they have a story you have probably never heard. The formation of a self-help group and a desire to help others gave them the courage to be interviewed. To protect them and their families, they have chosen to remain anonymous.)

Ann C. lives on a tree-lined, residential street which she rarely leaves and when she does, she ventures no further than one mile away. People in the neighborhood are unaware she lives a life of fear.

She is one of an estimated two million sufferers of agorophobia. Mrs. Pam M. and Mrs. Connie D., who met through a self-help group describe agorophobia as "a fear of fear...a feeling you are constantly threatened by what is unknown. You fear a loss of control and feel that if you don't get back to a safe place or person, you will lose control and faint, scream or behave in some way that is socially inappropriate."

Mrs. M. added "it should be pointed out that this never happens."

Their fright is something they do not discuss. "People, and your family, just can't understand how anyone can develop fears. They don't understand why you won't drive, go in an elevator and why you can't participate in life the way they can," said Betty G.

Their emotional state can trigger an a physiological response such as pounding headache, choking sensations, "jelly" legs and cold hands. Some may even vomit.

They associate their response with the situation they are in and then try to avoid that situation. Eventually they excuse themselves from life. They begin lying about why they are avoiding situations.

"The seeds for agorophobia are planted early and it takes one good trauma to set it off," said Mrs. M. While the potential may be there in childhood, for the woman and man interviewed, the trauma which made them phobic occurred in adult life. Mrs. D. saw herself as an independent young woman whose anxieties erupted around the time she was engaged. She began to feel trapped.

Mrs. G's phobia became disabling after returning to Massachusetts. For the first 18 months of her marriage, she was able to live thousands of miles away from her parents.

Midway on the trip home she says "it hit me and I realized we made the wrong choice about returning." Financial difficulties added to the pressure and she felt trapped.

It is not uncommon for agorophobics to feel "trapped by certain life situations—they cannot see their options."

Many have had a "controlling parent," the kind of parent, Mrs. M. explained "who uses love, and the child interprets the parent's actions as 'I won't love you unless...' Children like this who have any leanings toward independence, 'must decide,' says Mrs. M., 'if approval is more important than gaining independence.' If they are unwilling to break away, 'agorophobia is the price they pay.'"

The C's moved back to Mrs. C's parents at the urging of her father who said this would be a chance for them to save money for a house. "We will be here six years, and we haven't saved enough for a house," she said.

In the last year, her fears have worsened and presently she is afraid to stay alone in the house. At 28, she feels she has "wasted" her life.

Sometimes, the agorophobia masks great anger. Regarding anger as "socially unacceptable," their fear of their own anger is enough to keep them home where they feel "they are prevented from acting on impulse, and it eliminates any decision making—it is safer."

"You are afraid if you go out, or go too far, you will leave or get on that bus and never come back," says Mrs. D. What agorophobics have to learn is that "the thought is not the deed," pointed out Mrs. M.

The life an agorophobic spouse leads is a lot different than the one they expected when they got married. Mrs. C's husband takes the children on outings by himself. During the interview, he sat

"...a fear of fear...

a feeling you are constantly threatened

by what is unknown."

silent most of the time. He admitted that he feels "like I am in a jungle with no way out—I'm in a dilemma."

Continually searching for the root of the difficulty, daily expecting it to change, he has become embittered by his contact with therapists one of whom, he said, suggested his wife improve her condition by "sleeping with another man."

Where help can be found is a source of controversy. Mrs. M. says "I was cured through therapy." Another woman found help at the Massachusetts General Hospital Psychosomatic Clinic. However, Ed F., who is 30 years old and a victim of agorophobia for nearly a decade, says that the book "Agorophobia," by Dr. Claire Weekes has helped him more than anything.

Married and the father of two children, his panic attacks caused him to lose his job. For awhile he was on unemployment, but "I got so bad, I couldn't get the check. I drank a six pack of beer at eight in the morning to be able to get the courage to get the check and after a few months, I couldn't even do that."

"I signed myself into Medfield Hospital because I was so desperate and in pain 24 hours a day. I stayed one week and no-one looked at you, saw you or talked to you. I felt like I couldn't make it, I was so afraid." He was refused medication.

He tried occupational therapy and group therapy. The group therapy was unsuccessful because "I was exhausted from holding on to the pain."

There have been times when he can spontaneously leave the house and on occasion he has been to a movie. "If I have to stand in line too long, I have to leave." He is fearful of meeting people "I once knew—I try to avoid people I knew."

He shrugged and said "I get discouraged and think about it a lot...I feel more relaxed than I used to be...if it weren't for Claire Weekes' book, I wouldn't be alive."

The four women are all functioning. One woman who has been to the Mass General clinic says that there agorophobia is treated on a biochemical basis.

Dr. David Sheehan, director of the Psychosomatic Clinic at the Massachusetts General Hospital, says that through the use of two drugs, Imipramine or Phenelzine, spontaneous panic attacks are blocked. These, he said, are the "core" of the problem and "as long as they continue, there is no way of controlling the phobia."

Once blocked, then "it is a matter of behavior therapy," says Dr. Sheehan. He noted that there is recent evidence demonstrating that agorophobia may be genetic in origin, not psychological.

Like many other medical conditions, he said, if "you have a vulnerability, and are in a stressful situation," the disease can show itself.

This treatment, says Ms. G., brought her from being "totally crippled" to believing that she will be "free" by the summer.

This kind of agorophobia "hits a person who is not basically unstable and who feels they are coping all right. They are rational and not in need of hospitalization, and it is terrible."

No matter where private, individual help is found, many are finding understanding, and support from a newly formed group, Boston Phobia Group, which meets currently meets weekly.

"We talk about dealing with agorophobia in terms of relating to friends...behavior modification techniques are integrated and the works of some experts in the field are discussed." They also help members overcome phobias by assisting them on "practice" field trips.

"Support is an essential ingredient for us," said Mrs. M. She added "we are caring, but we do not accept excuses." Family members may also attend meetings.

For two hours, they are with people with whom they do not feel they have to keep up their guard. "Everyone shares the same problem...I have found friends and found then to be good friends."

The problems are those which some have carried in isolation for years. "Any kind of psychological weakness is heard to unveil and it is hard to be a normal person with some abnormal way of life."

"No one knew about me...you may even work with people and you won't know about them. I would never tell people because it is so alienating to have a host of ridiculous fears."

(For information about the Boston Phobic Group, write to the group, P.O. Box 372, Kenmore Station, Boston, MA 02215.)

THE READERS WRITE... Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Dear Diane, My husband and I are having some friends in and would like to watch the Super Bowl. I would like to serve an inexpensive meal which can be streereetched.

Mary B., Newton

Dear Ms. B., A "Souper" Eowl party is just the answer. They require a minimum amount of work and money. Steaming homemade soups on a cold afternoon. Try all of the ones here. In each of these soups, there is a little beer. The mellow brew not only helps combine all the ingredients, but at the same time adds its own special flavoring.

A meal in itself, serve with crusty hot loaves of French bread, homemade muffins and rolls. The accompanying beverage—beer, of course.

SPLIT PEA SOUP WITH POLISH SAUSAGE

1 pound split peas
2 (12 oz.) cans or bottles beer
5 cups water
¼ cup minced salt pork
1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery and tops
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound Polish sausage.

Combine all ingredients except Polish sausage and bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 1½ hours or until peas are soft and put through food mill or puree in blender.

When ready to serve, lightly saute slices of sausages while soup is heating. Add to soup and serve.

POTATO SOUP

6 cups sliced potatoes (5 large)
2 cups sliced carrots
6 slices bacon
1 cup sliced onion
1 cup sliced celery
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon tarragon
1 can (12 oz.) beer
1 cup milk
2 cups light cream
Garnish: Gruyere cheese, diced potato, sliced carrots

Cook potatoes and carrots in salted water; drain. Saute bacon until crisp, drain and crumble. Saute onion and celery in 2 tablespoons of bacon fat until transparent.

Combine all ingredients except for cream and garnishes and simmer about 30 minutes. Cool and puree in blender. When ready to serve, add cream, heat gently (do not boil) and serve topped with any combination of garnishes listed.

LAMB &amp; LENTIL SOUP

2 cups dried lentils
1½ quarts water
2 (16 oz.) cans beer
¼ cup diced salt pork
¼ cup chopped carrots
¼ cup chopped onions
¼ cup sliced celery
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 pound lamb shoulder, trimmed of fat and diced
1 bay leaf
2 whole cloves
dash cayenne pepper
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoon pepper
chopped parsley

Place lentils, water and beer in a large kettle. Saute salt pork, carrots, onions, celery, garlic and diced lamb for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add to lentil soup pot along with bay leaf and whole cloves which have been tied in a piece of cheesecloth. Add remaining ingredients except parsley and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer gently about 2 hours. Discard the cheesecloth. Serve hot, topped with chopped parsley for garnish.

KITCHEN CORNER

Feed a family of six a good dinner for under six dollars. Hard to believe? It's not as farfetched as you may think. The supermarket offers many budget stretching food items to help you, and about the best buy right now is the potato.

This year's potato crop is the second largest in history, so there are lots of potatoes in the marketplace now, at even better prices than usual. For just pennies, a medium-size potato provides about one-third the adult daily requirement of vitamin C, some vitamins B-1, B-6 and niacin, and many essential minerals including copper and iron, all for only about 100 calories. It's hard to believe there could be so much goodness in such a modest vegetable.

Because potatoes are so mild-flavored, popular and versatile, they're easy to use in all kinds of recipes and menus to help stretch your food dollar. In addition to our favorite American ways of serving potatoes—mashed, boiled, baked and fried, there are virtually hundreds of wonderful potato recipe ideas from other cultures to try.

Papas a la Huancaína is one such recipe adapted from a South American classic to turn a baked potato into a main dish. Be prepared for a shock because the protein-rich topping for the potato is an unusual blend of ingredients—sour cream, cottage cheese and peanut butter! It takes a somewhat adventuresome spirit to try this dish, but you won't be sorry. The combination is surprisingly delicious, a rich topping for the potato is an unusual blend of ingredients—sour cream, cottage cheese and peanut butter! It takes a somewhat adventuresome spirit to try this dish, but you won't be sorry. The combination is surprisingly mellow blend you can't quite put your finger on. So no one has to know your secret.

Serve Papas a la Huancaína with tender green beans, crusty french bread, iceberg lettuce wedges garnished with carrot curls and your favorite salad dressing, and, for dessert, pistachio pudding and cookies. For less than $1 per serving, you've got a delicious, nutritious meal your family will love.

PAPAS A LA HUANCANA
6 medium potatoes (about 2 pounds)
1 cup sour cream, at room temperature
¼ cup chunky peanut butter
1 cup large curd cottage cheese
¼ cup white wine vinegar
¼ cup finely chopped green onions
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, mashed ½ teaspoon paprika

Salt and pepper

Bake potatoes in 400 degree oven for 1 hour, or until tender. Meanwhile, in saucepan, blend sour cream and peanut butter. Stir in remaining ingredients, seasoning to taste with salt and pepper. On lowest setting, heat through stirring. Do not boil. When potatoes are done, slash to release steam. Serve at once, topped with warm sauce. Pass remaining sauce in small bowl. Makes 6 servings.

MOUNTAIN HOME POTATO SLICES

Basic Potato Slices:

4 potatoes
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Scrub potatoes, cut into ½-inch lengthwise slices (do not pare). Place in single layer on greased baking sheet. Mix melted butter, onion, salt and pepper; spoon over potatoes. Cover with foil; bake in 425 deg. F. oven 35 to 40 minutes until potatoes are tender when pierced with fork. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

Puffed Potatoes:

¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon horseradish
¼ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 egg white, stiffly beaten

In small bowl mix mayonnaise, horseradish, onion salt and paprika; fold in beaten egg white. Spoon on each baked potato slice. Return to oven and bake 3 to 5 minutes or until topping puffs up and is golden brown.

Crunchy Potato Slices:
2 large shredded wheat biscuits, crushed to make 1 cup
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

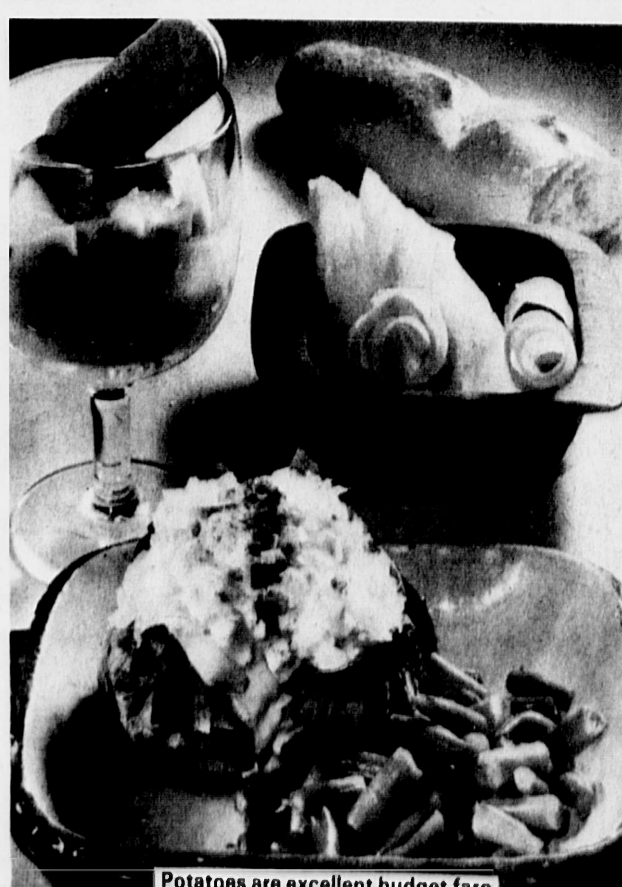

In medium bowl mix all ingredients except butter. Sprinkle over baked potato slices. Drizzle with melted butter, and place under broiler until cheese melts, 3 to 5 minutes.

Nutty Cheese Potatoes:
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
¼ cup slivered almonds, lightly toasted

In medium bowl mix all ingredients. Sprinkle evenly over baked potato slices. Place under Broiler 3 to 5 minutes or until cheese melts.

Herbed Potatoes:

To basic butter mixture add ¼ cup chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon dried dill weed and 1 tablespoon snipped chives. Spoon over potatoes and bake as directed.

Potatoes are excellent budget fare

Glenn S. Hoffman marries Sharon Gross of Hartford

Sharon Jane Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gross of Hartford, Conn., became the bride of Glenn Stuart Hoffman on Dec. 23. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Hoffman of Newton.

Rabbi Terry Bard of Newton Centre and Cantor Arthur Karet of Hartford officiated at the ceremony at the Emanuel Synagogue in Hartford.

Mrs. Richele Gross was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Marilyn Rothberg and Miss Robin Wolinsky. Dr. Mark Hoffman was best man, and the ushers were Daniel Gross, Steven Lesser and Dr. Robert Jampel.

The bride received her undergraduate degree from Case Western and her masters in social work from Rutgers University. She is currently employed as director of volunteers, INTERAC Community Mental Health Center, Philadelphia, Pa.

Her husband is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and is now enrolled in the Registered Physician's Assistant Program at Hahnemann College of Allied Medical Professions.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will live in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Glenn Hoffman

Andover Newton plans Conference on Ministry

A Conference on Ministry for college and postcollege men and women who are considering the vocation of ministry will be held at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre, Feb. 22-24.

The three-day program is an annual event at the American Baptist and United Church of Christ seminary, which has been educating persons for pastoral ministry for more than 170 years.

The Conference Ministry is designed to introduce potential students not only to Andover Newton and the nine-school consortium of the Boston Theological Institute, but also to the whole range of possibilities in theological education. Participants will share in the daily life of the campus, attending classes, chapel services, group sessions, and meeting students, faculty and other members of the Andover Newton community.

Leaders of the conference will be President Roy Pearson, Dean George Peck, Student Executive Officer Gabrielle Fackre-Jenkins and other representatives of Andover Newton's faculty, students, and alumni. The theme of this year's program is "Interpreters of the Living Word."

On the first day of the conference, Thursday, Feb. 22, there will be a service in celebration of Black History Week in Colby Chapel at 7:30 p.m. The preacher will be Rev. Gordon O'Neal, Jr., AN '73, pastor of Mount Calvary Baptist Church in Springfield.

After the service Rev. O'Neal will engage in a discussion with Rev. Renee Updegraff Garrett, AN '77, associate pastor of the Dane Street Congregational Church in Beverly, and Rev. David Ray, AN '69, pastor of The Trinitarian Congregational Church in Warwick.

Persons interested in the conference are invited to write the director of admissions, Dr. Joseph E. O'Donnell, Jr., 210 Herrick Rd., Newton Centre, or phone 964-1100.

Andover Newton library expands with help of grants

Grants from the George and Sybil Fuller Foundation and The Charles E. Merrill Trust have provided funds two major areas of the new Franklin Trask Library at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre.

The library is presently in transition; it will be ready for use at the start of the spring semester, but not all furnishings and equipment have been received.

The Fuller gift of $50,000 has been designated for the central foyer of the library, which links the new wing with Hills Hall, the original building.

The foyer is a principal feature of the architectural design, containing the main entrance, circulation desk and an open staircase leading to all levels. On the east side a wall of glass provides a sweeping view that extends to Boston.

The Fuller Foundation of Worcester has been a strong supporter of Andover Newton for a number of years. When the academic complex erected in 1966-68, the foundation was one of the largest contributors to Worcester Hall, so named because funds for its construction came primarily from that area.

The Charles E. Merrill Department of Rare Books and Special Collections at the library has been made possible by a $25,000 gift from the Merrill Trust.

Andover Newton Librarian Ellis E. O'Neal Jr. said, "We have housed our special collections through the years without acceptable facilities for their care or use. Therefore the gift from the Merrill Trust is of particular significance."

"It is the first time we have received a contribution designated to provide adequate facilities for the processing, preservation and servicing of our manuscript collections, rare books, church records and archives."

Included in the material which will be housed in this area of the library are the collections of the New England Baptist Library and Backus Historical Society, the papers of Jonathan Edwards, and other collections of manuscripts and church records relating to New England Congregational and Baptist history.

Second Baptist offers something for everyone

There is something for every age at the Second Baptist Church of Newton. In spite of many churches closing their schools, its Sunday School has enjoyed increased participation and the addition of new teachers. Classes are provided for preschoolers, children, young people and adults.

Babies are also welcome, with nursery care supervised by Barbara Tirro. Under the supervision of Ruth Whalen, the Sunday School provides classes for preschoolers, taught by Mildred Martin, first and second graders by Holly Thompson, third and fourth graders by Gary DeMaria, fifth and sixth graders by Dorothy Burns and Phyllis Stranahan, junior highs by Betty Crisci, young people by Pastor Crisci, two women's classes taught by Zilda Martin and Lois Hoover and a men's class taught by Don Remington.

All classes meet at 9:45 a.m. each Sunday and run year round. Registration is done in the classroom with new members always welcome. Any questions can be answered by telephoning 527-8567.

Marriage Licenses

The following couples have applied for marriage licenses at Newton City Hall:

Camp advisors ready for summer sendoff

Finding a summer camp is one less problem you will have to face thanks to Beverly Shiffman.

Mrs. Shiffman is president of Student Camp and Trip Advisors, in Boston.

Summer camps vary as greatly in size, personality and life-style as do the campers who attend them. The same goes for trips across country, travel abroad, and the many many specialized camps. Student Camp and Trip Advisors offers free consultation for parents and students who are interested in camps, trips, tours and schools both here and abroad during vacations.

Student Camp and Trip Advisors visits and evaluates camps they represent throughout the world and personally speaks and visit with directors and coordinators.

It can tell you about camping, cross country trips, climbing expeditions, hiking-biking or canoe trips or send you abroad to live with a family and study the language. Or it can send you to study marine biology in the Caribbean, filmmaking in Canada or skiing all summer long on glaciers in western Europe. Travel groups are a popular and diverse educational experience. SCATA collects information on the companies offering student tours, researches their reputations, and meets with the supervisors. For further information contact Beverly Shiffman at 277-7120 or 469-0681. Student Camp and Trip Advisors is a member of the American Camping Association.

Family day care program made possible by CD grant

Maudy Campbell, chairwoman of the Newton Day Care Advisory Board of the Newton Community Service Centers announced the formation of a Family Day Care system, made possible by a grant from the Community Development fund.

The system will be recruiting individuals willing to provide care in their homes for small groups of children from designated areas, primarily on the north side and with incomes in the low to moderate bracket, in compliance with the guidelines set by the funding source.

This program is another service offered the community by Newton Day Care which currently includes an infant-toddler center in Auburndale, a pre-school center in Newton Corner and another in Newton Centre as well as an after-school day care center at the Pomroy House.

For the caregivers, as providers, the program offers special training, staff supervision of the homes, supplies and equipment, child placement and more. For further information call: 964-0069 or 969-3906.

Winter exhibitions listed by Newton Art Association

The Newton Art Association announces that the work of its members will be shown in a series of art exhibitions throughout the city through March 1.

People and Portraits, featuring the works of Gilda Eyges, Evie Gold and Jan Holly, is on display at the Newton Highlands Mutual Savings Bank at 43 Lincoln St.

Ten paintings on a winter theme are being shown at the Nonantum branch of the Shawmut Community Bank on Watertown Street. Exhibitors are Edgar Holmes, Samuel Clemons, Barbara Stackpole, Irene Downes, Henry Schoenberg, Rosalyn Barron, Pertie Holly and Len Walton.

Animals, the theme of the current exhibit at the Auburndale Cooperative Bank on Auburn Street, includes works by Emilie Sheehan, Barbara Jones, Barbara Stackpole, Walter Trainor, Jan Holly and Pertie Holly.

A second group of Newton Art Association paintings and pastels on a circus theme is on display at the junior section of the Waban Library. Exhibitors are Barbara Jones, Barbara Stackpole, Walter Trainor, Gene Faucher, Shirley Shapiro, Rosalyn Barron, Faye Johnson and Pertie Holly. This exhibit is open Monday through Friday from 1:30-6 p.m. until Feb. 18. Circus III will follow with a new group of art works coordinated by Pertie Holly.

On display in the Mayor's office through Jan. 25 are works by Doris Helm, Gilda Braver Eyges, Gail Stone, Barbara Stackpole, Evie Gold and Mary Holzwasser.

A group show is being developed for the new Newton South Cooperative Bank on Watertown Street, Nonantum. Artists exhibiting to date are Florence Morse, Faye Johnson, and Sam Clemons.

An April group show is being planned for the West Newton Library on Chestnut Street. Other shows being planned include such themes as children; hope of spring; life in the city; and the sea.

Those who wish to exhibit should call Jan Holly, chairman at 332-6585.

Nancy E. Yanofsky passes Mass. bar

Nancy Ellen Yanofsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yanofsky of Newton, was recently admitted to the Massachusetts bar.

She is a graduate of the Beaver Country Day School and a graduate cum laude of Jackson College, Tufts University, in 1975. She received the juris doctor degree in 1978 from Boston University School of Law.

NEWTON DIET CENTER 969-DIET

Diet facts & fallacies

By Darlene Crump

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

O.K. The parties are over. Once again we've indulged ourselves through another Holiday Season. Time for procrastination to come to a halt. As usual your New Year's Resolution list includes taking off those unhealthy, unsightly extra pounds. The majority of us will try our own dieting methods or those of friends and relatives. And then those who were unsuccessful through those attempts will turn to "professional" help. Whatever method of weight and fat loss you elect to try, please do with CAUTION.

Check out your diet with your personal physician. Does it meet with his approval?

A diet which is not nutritionally sound can do much more harm than good. "Fad" diets can be dangerous. Not only can they be harmful to your health, if they don't include the nutrients essential to your body's good health, you'll not lose the fat where you want and need to. Instead, you'll lose fat which your body actually needs.

Taming the Amazon, but at a price

By GUILLERMO

PIERNES

MANAUS, Brazil (UPI)

The two heavy tractors, joined by 100 yards of thick chain, advanced into the Amazon jungle, ripping all the trees out of the ground and turning the wilderness into a jumbled mess.

Horrified monkeys screamed their outrage, confused birds flew into the air in clouds, their nests destroyed, smaller animals died by the hundreds, squashed beneath tons of foliage.

Men following the tractors set fires in the fallen greenery that sent choking clouds of smoke floating greasily into the tropic sky.

Up with the smoke went mankind's hopes that the biggest wilderness on earth, half the size of the United States, could be thoroughly understood before it was destroyed.

Traditional methods of colonization have failed and the taming of the Amazon is being turned over to large corporations for large projects — one owned by American billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig is as big as Connecticut — that are condemned by scientists even before they are begun.

Experts at the Manaus-based National Institute for the Investigation of Amazonia say the methods being used to develop the Amazon have been catastrophic and in most cases the work of ignorant technocrats.

INPA President Warwick Kerr says 38.4 million square miles — about one-fifth of the Brazilian jungle — already have disappeared, with a million trees toppled every 24 hours to make way for cattle pastures or tree farms.

The tree farms, which Kerr calls "fatal ecological errors," drive away all the native animals while the planted trees are hit by disease and fungus that does not attack native trees.

For the pastures, developers have complemented the tractor technique with Dioxin, a component of the Vietnam defoliant "Agent Orange" and a poison so powerful that some scientists won't touch it outside a laboratory.

The clearing of the Amazon also is eliminating future knowledge of a region so impenetrable for so long that it is barely understood even by those who study it.

The world has classified about 300,000 species of plants, but INPA biologist William Rodrigues says there are 80,000 species unclassified just in the Amazon.

Rodrigues says only "six or seven" of an estimated 4,000 different kinds of trees are being used commercially, though scientists estimate the value of the Amazon at more than $700 billion.

"We must concentrate as many scientists as possible in the Amazon to get an effective and broad view of the Amazon before it is too late," says Rodrigues.

Wolfgang Jung, INPA's fishlife expert, says the Amazon river system, which drains one-fifth of the world's fresh water, probably has enough fish to feed many of the world's hungry.

There are an estimated 2,000 species of fish in the Amazon but already crocodiles, sea cows and giant tortoises are nearing extinction, turned into expensive handbags and shoes.

One of the biggest failures in the Amazon has been the 1,400-mile Transamazon highway, built to bring the region into Brazil's economic life and give a new start to peasants from the impoverished northeast and south.

Much of the highway is impassable several months of the year and the few farmers who have managed to scratch out a living are clustered around "pockets" of land where the topsoil is deeper than the usual inch or two.

The immigrants find their southern crops won't grow in the jungle, and malaria and dysentery are so rife that only one in 10 can be considered in "good health."

The immigrants also walk unheeding into the jungle, forcing showdowns with primitive Indians that once numbered 3 million.

Now there are no more than 200,000 and they are disappearing slowly.

"The right thing to do would be to wait a little while," says Kerr. "We haven't finished many projects dealing with the utilization of the Amazon."

But there is no waiting.

Recreation Department Notes

Skating Information

Current information on skating conditions at the Newton Recreation Department's natural ice areas may be obtained by calling the Newton Recreation Department number 552-7120, day or night. Rapidly changing weather conditions make skating a day to day, sometimes hour to hour proposition, so Recreation Commissioner, Russell J. Halloran, urges all parents and children to avail themselves of this vital service. The three natural ice skating areas under the jurisdiction of the Recreation Department will not be open unless conditions are deemed safe by experienced authorities. Commissioner Halloran reiterates his warning to would be skaters to stay off unsupervised ice surfaces.

Archery Openings

Supervisor Robert E. Doherty reports that there are still a few openings in the Archery classes held Wednesday nights, students from 7 to 8:30 and adults from 8:30 to 10 p.m. The fee is $3.00 for students and $5.00 for adults. Equipment is supplied. There is instruction for beginners as well as those with archery experience. The chief instructor is Bill Baker. Interested people may go to the Newton Centre Hut any Wednesday night, or call Mr. Doherty at 552-7120.

Junior High Girl's Basketball

North swimmers romp

By GUY BRADLEY

On Tuesday, the Newton North Swim Team beat Brookline 94-76.

Newton North started off strong, taking first and third place in the medley relay and the 200 yards free. There were several false starts, nearly all by Brookline, resulting in the disqualification of one of their swimmers. Brookline was jumping early throughout the meet.

In the 200 yards free Jeff Kennedy broke the school record (again), taking first place. The next event was the 200 individual medley in which Peter Hawkins broke the school record. Howie Abramson came in third. The 50 free was won by Tom Mannix of Newton, leaving the score at 37-25 at the start of the diving. Billy Valaes, a junior, captured second place for Newton with Dave Like also placing.

After the diving, Brookline swept North in the 100 free. Tom Kindler was first for Newton, coming in fourth. The scores were too close for comfort and coach Merritt decided that Newton needed first place in the 500 free. John Mogul, a sophomore, displayed a great sense of team spirit when he was removed from the 500. He was on the starting block at the time and he took it very well. In his place swam Jeff Kennedy. He came through for the team, taking first place. John Harrington came in fourth and Dave Kaufman took fifth.

In the 100 yards butterfly Lee Rubin (a senior) won his first first place in three years of swimming for the Newton North Team. He smashed his personal best time by nearly three seconds. Paul Agranaut took first place in the 100 yards backstroke with sophomore John MacDonald also doing well.

Newton needed first place in the 100 yards breast stroke to be sure of winning. The breaststrokers responded vigorously, sweeping Brookline. Peter Hawkins came in first, Howie Abramson second and Phil O'Dowd, a junior, third. In the freestyle relay John Mogul's team came in second. A team including Frank Morrissey and Mark Logan came in fourth. Once again Brookline won the freestyle relay.

Lancers drop one

By CHRIS SWAN

A 20-point deficit at the end of the first quarter proved too much to overcome for the Lancer hoopers and although they outscored North Cambridge Catholic over the last three stanzas 44-42, the Lancers lost last Friday night in Cambridge 66-48.

6-7 senior Russ Philpot gunned the Black Panthers to a 10-point lead to begin the game. Out of their 12 (the score was 12-2) he did all the scoring.

Each team doubled those figures by the end of that quarter and at the horn, the scorebooks read 24-4.

The second quarter brought a spurt of hope for the Newton faithful in the crowd, with Stevey Venditti muscling his way under the boards, canning most of his 9 points. Meanwhile Timmy Hoban got his scoring tough together. But it was all for naught, because despite outplaying their opponents for half the game, the first and third quarters did Newton Catholic in.

Lion roundballers nipped by Bedford, 60-59

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

Last Friday night at Newton South High School the Lions dropped their sixth straight game as they were nipped by the Bedford Buccaneers, 60-59. It was a hard fought contest which saw the Lions hold the lead for three quarters, Bedford staged a furious comeback in the final quarter enabling them to squeak past South by 1.

Lion Coach Richard Walker went with a starting lineup of Stu Bernstein at center, Pete Felopulos and Mark Sullivan at Forwards, and Tim Hairston and Doug Sparr at the guard spots.

The Lions finally played a decent first quarter. They committed only 4 turnovers (none in the last 6 minutes) and outscored the Bucs 12-10. Co-Captain Mark Sullivan had 6 of South's 12 points in the quarter.

The second quarter was strictly an offensive battle to see who could score the most points. It came out a tie as both teams scored 18 points to put the Lions up by 2, 30-28 at halftime. Doug Sparr (6) and Peter Felopulos (6) combined for 12 of the Lions' 18.

The third quarter was the Peter Felopulos and Doug Sparr show. Doug scored another 6 points, handed out 4 assists and came up with 3 big steals, and Peter Felopulos scored 10 points and had 5 rebounds as the two combined for all of the Lions' 16 points. Bedford was able to score 15 as senior forward Rick Yanusick had 5 for the Bucs in the third quarter; and the Lions took a 3 point advantage, 46-43, into the final period.

Bedford behind the shouting of Terry Jones and Rick Yanusick quickly took the lead from the Lions, and when Yanusick converted a 3 point play with 1:50 left in game, Bedford had a 58-52 lead. But Peter Felopulos' two consecutive baskets brought the score to within 2, 58-56 with 1:05 left to play. With 14 seconds left in the game, Yanusick (who else) made two free throws to give the Bucs a big 4 point lead 60-56. As the clock ran down Stu Bernstein made a basket and was fouled on the play.

Thus Stu went to the line with the score 60-58 and 1 second left to play.

South's strategy was obvious at this point, Coach Walker inserted his tallest men into the lineup and everyone knew what he would tell Bernstein to do. That was to intentionally miss his free throw and get a chance at a tip in and perhaps a tie game.

However, Stu accidentally sank the free throws, and Bedford was able to run out the clock to make the final score 60-59, and what seemed to be a big win for the Lions turned into a heartbreaking loss.

There were some encouraging bright spots for the Lions in this tough loss as Pete Felopulos found his shooting touch hitting 13 of 18 shots and scoring 26 points to go along with being the leading rebounder, grabbing 12. Also, the play of Doug Sparr was very encouraging. Doug played the kind of game everyone had been waiting for this season. Doug scored 12 points (6-10 shooting), played a part in forcing 7 Bedford turnovers and handed out a season high 7 assists. Tim Hairston played his usual steady game at guard. He was able to break Bedford's full court press with relative ease each time he handled the ball, and he had 5 assists to go along with 6 points. The win boosted Bedford's overall record to 6-4, 3-1 in the Dual County League while South's record dipped to 2-7, 0-4 in league play.

Lion Tales: Through 9 games thus far Pete Felopulos is the leading scorer with 117 points for an average of 13 points per game, and is also the leading rebounder with 86. Tim Hairston leads the team in assist with 28. Stu Bernstein is the second leading scorer with 71 points for an average of 7.9 and is the second leading rebounder with 40. The Lions don't have another home game until January 30 against Weston.

Newton Pee Wee A's win

The Newton Pee Wee A's won a close contest, 1-0, against Wilmington at the USA rink in Winchester Saturday night. The only goal in the game was scored with 2:42 left in the first period. Defensemen Chris Heitman carried the puck into the Wilmington zone and made a perfect pass to the stick of center Scott Cohen, who neatly tucked it past the Wilmington goalie.

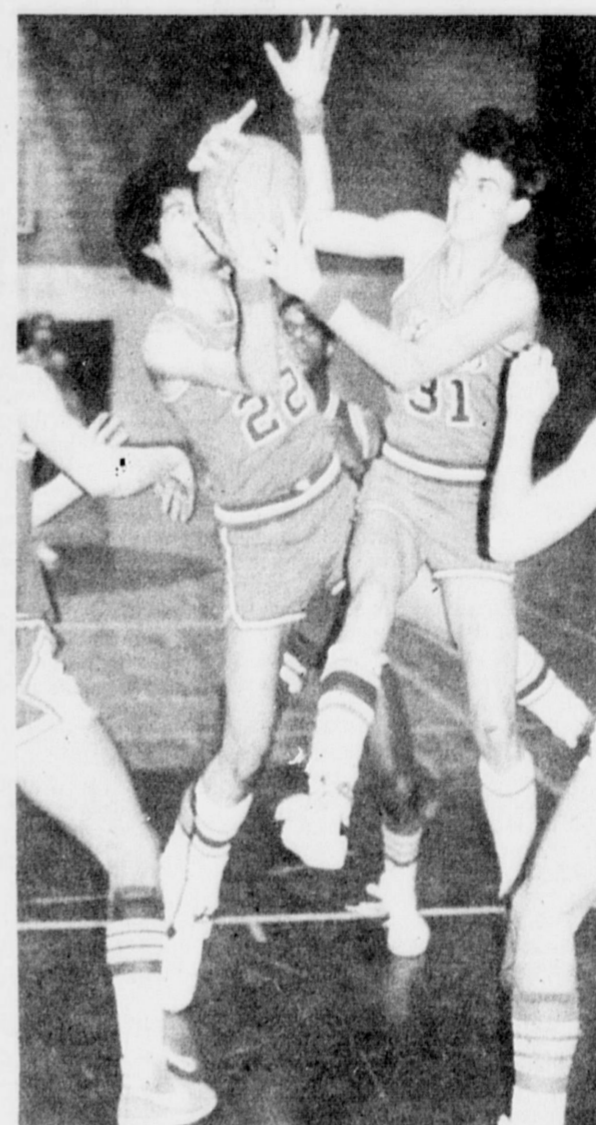

Defensemen Shawn McMillen, Jim Wrye and Brian Dunn also played a major role in the strong Newton defense repeatedly breaking up Wilmington attacks. The forward lines penetrated the Wilmington plays with some good backchecking.

The shut-out was another credit to the fine goaltending of John Fletcher and Mark Devore.

Newton's league standing is now, 8-4-1 and their overall record is 16-8-4.

South gymnasts drop three

By SANDY NAGLER

The Newton South Boys' Gymnastic team held their first meets of the '79 season on January 9 and 12 against Weymouth North and Wayland, respectively. The score was Weymouth North 85.05 - South 72.75. Though the boys lost they still turned in a commendable performance. They received one first place finish, three second place finishes, and three third place finishes.

All around, Rick Nicoletti had a spectacular meet finishing first on the high bar, second on the parallel bars, and third in the vaulting competition.

The other placings were received by co-captain Matty Karas placing second and Jeff Garb picking up third on the pommel horse. Also, Bob Batista finished second in the vaulting competition and Junior, Rob Steinberg received a third place finish on the rings.

On their second outing of the season the boys' were overwhelmed by Wayland, especially by Tim Sullivan who turned in awe-inspiring performances in all six events, as South was handed their second defeat of the season 65.7-89.

The capabilities of the Wayland team were felt after only three events when the Lions were already down by 11.9 points. The South tumblers, however, did not give up and they managed to collect two second place finishes and one third place finish.

Bob Batista finished second in the vaulting competition for the second consecutive time and he also raised his score by .2 of a point. Rick Nicoletti was the other second place finishers for his work on the high bar. The third-place finisher was Matty Karas on the pommel horse.

Girls' Squad

The girls were again handicapped by their opponent's significantly larger squad. Despite this factor the girls managed to break 70, but this was not enough, as Newton North scored higher, winning 96.5-70.

However, they did manage two second place finishes and one third. Carla Ecknaian took one of the second place finishes on the balance beam and she also received the team's sole third place finish for her routine in the floor exercises. Jill Shuman was awarded the other second place finish for her work on the uneven bars.

South swimmers win two

By JIMMY ROSENTHAL

The Newton South boys' swim team won two meets last week to raise their record to four wins and two losses. The two wins came against Xaverian High School and Arlington High School. Both wins came at Newton North's pool, and neither of the meets was at any time close.

In the meet against Xaverian, South jumped out to an 8-6 lead as the undefeated team of co-captain Mazin Shukri, Ned Campbell, Mike Feldstein, and Dave Samuels won the 200 yard medley relay, the meet's first event. In the events that followed, Feldstein took first place in the 200 yard individual medley with his best time ever and Samuels won the 50-yard freestyle event. The diving followed and South brought a 30-point lead into this event.

From the diving until the last event South yielded only one first place. Harry Raphael won the diving competition with a total of 139 points. Finishing in second place for South was Dave Quillen. Quillen accumulated more than 100 points for the first time. In the 100-yard and the 500-yard freestyle Samuels and Feldstein took first place, respectively, 41-ing both swimmers three first places on the day. The next two events saw both co-captains take a first place, Shukri in the backstroke and Kevin Hayden in the breast stroke. Xaverian was able to win the 400-yard freestyle relay, but it was not enough. The final score was 104-68.

The meet against Arlington was almost a duplication of the one with Xaverian. South again opened up with a win in the 200 medley relay, this time with the team of Shukri, Feldstein, Samuels and anchor man Mike Kanellius. Chris Chaloff followed with first place in the 200 freestyle. In the 200-yard individual medley, Feldstein captured first place with Shukri and Chris Madden right behind him. Feldstein again won three events as he took first place in the butterfly to give South a 66-24 lead.

In the remaining events, Ted Leavitt won the 100-yard freestyle for his first win of the season, Chaloff just edged out Shukri to win the 500-yard freestyle and Campbell took first place in the breast stroke event. The final score was South 112 - Arlington 56.

The team's next meet will be Friday at 5:30. The meet will be held at Newton North.

South pucksters go down

By BRIAN J. KILEY

The Newton South hockey team lost to Weston last week, 7-2.

Of all the teams in the Dual County League Weston is the team South looks forward to meeting most. It was Weston that was the victim of the Lion's last victory. Of course that was two years ago and since that time South has been unable to even play a close game against the Wild Cats.

Last week's game should have been close. The Lions, led by co-Captain Bob Weiss and Mike Fein, showed a strong attack. Weiss and Fein were able to carry the puck the length of the ice but their efforts could only muster one goal.

It was the first time this season that the Lions held a lead. It took less than two minutes to do so. Kurt Schluntz

North tracksters rolling

By TONY RICKER

Most of the early-season track action for North was below par, excluding good showings in the Coaches Meet at Harvard and the winter relays in Providence.

North sophomores were outstanding performance in the Sophomore Meet at Bentley. But the indoor season really got rolling when Newton faced Brockton January 9.

When the Suburban League top track powers met, it was clear that the meet would be decided by strategy as well as top performances. However, Brockton's strategy was blocked by 16 personal record-breaking performances by Newton runners. Newton wanted the meet - so Newton took the meet, 47-39.

The competition started with a mile sweep by North distance men Paul Fischer (4:33.1), Andrew Epstein (4:42.6) and Jerry Epstein (4:45.7). At the start of the 1000, Brockton had moved Jim MacKinnon, champion 600 yarder, out of the six to nip Linus Vachon (NN) of second place. Vachon took third in 2:27.1. In the 600, Tony Ricker cruised to second in 1:22.3.

Mike Drew took second in the 300 (36.2) and sophomore Steve Tabor was given third when Brockton was disqualified. Dave Vona, junior two mile sprinter, set a 9:51.6 first place pace and Dan Laredo, also leading the pace, took second in 9:54.2.

Glen Goldman and Ray Mooney in second and third respectively in the dash.

Field events during the meet were dominated by North. The shot was won by George Bloom with a throw of 45'4" and Mike "Sky" Mahoney soared to a height of 6'0" in the high jump. Steve Drew and George Bresnahan took first and second in the high hurdles storming over the barriers.

In the mile relay, Brockton smoked to a first place, but the meet was already won by Newton.

On Friday Jan. 12, North trackmen tallied up a score of 76 to 10 against Waltham. The meet was a chance for junior varsity performers to earn letters and varsity performers to try different events.

Lion JV hoopsters roll by Bedford

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

The Newton South Lions J.V. basketball team continued its winning ways last Friday night downing the Bedford J.V. 57-54. The win upped the Lions record to 8-1 and kept them undefeated (4-0) in the Dual County League.

Mike Kasten led the Lions in scoring with 16 points. Dave Segal had 13, Mike Galvin 9, and Jon Bovarnick came off the bench to play guard well and score a season high of eight points.

Bedford's 54 points were the most the Lions have given up in a game this year as so far this season defense has been the key to their game. A very quick team, they force numerous turnovers (which they almost always capitalize on), and they have held five opponents to under 40 points in a game. Twice they have held a team under 30.

Coach Joe Killilea hopes that things continue to go well for his team as they appear to be on their way to their finest season in years.

Sacred Heart hoop

Elizabeth Haughey and Holly McGrath of Waban and Sheila Curran, Laura Herrera, and Donna McNamara, all of Chestnut Hill were recently selected for the Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart Varsity Basketball team. Junior Varsity team players are Ellen Maloney of Waban, Susan Mullen of Newtonville and Martha and Sara Bradley, June Palumbo and Elaine Fitzpatrick, all of Newton.

Next home game against Concord Academy is set for Wednesday at 3:15 p.m.

Three letter at Mount Hermon

Three Newton area residents have won varsity letters for participation on Northfield Mount Hermon School's sports teams.

The three students are: Anita Nordal, a senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oddvar Nordal, 36 Concolor Avenue, Newton. Anita won a letter in Girls' Field Hockey. The NMH girls, under Coach Jane Morrow, finished the season with a 5-3-3 record.

Stuart C. McLeod, a junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. McLeod, 60 Carlton Road, Waban, won a letter in Varsity Football. The NMH boys, under Coach Vitold Piscuskas, finished the season with a 4-4-0 record.

Heather A. Gifford, a sophomore, daughter of Mrs. Margaret H. Gifford, 37 Parker Street, Newton Centre, won a letter in Girls' Varsity Volleyball. The NMH girls, under Coaches Nancy Stiller and Nancy Tate, finished the season with an undefeated season, 10-0-0.

season alive with a major decision at 114. Don Steinberg, Paul Butters and Rich Shone registered big pins. Scott Buffington and Dave Isenberg also wrestled to victories. Making his first varsity appearance, 128-pounder Ted Scovell looked sharp in taking an early lead over his Belmont foe until his inexperience caught up with him.

Now 4-3, South is at the halfway point of its season. The Lions will travel to powerhouse Wayland this Saturday night.

Understanding those new ski reports

By ALAN KOVACS

By now, skiers in the Northeast have become accustomed to the new system of snow reporting instituted this year by the area members of the New England Ski Areas Council. Those areas, 92 from New England and an additional 12 from New York, have removed all adjectives from their reports and replaced them with words and numbers that mean close to nothing to a great many skiers.

So, no more are such words as excellent, good, fair or poor used. Instead, immediately after a particular area's name is a number which represents the estimated amount of new snow that has fallen during the 24 hours immediately preceding the filing of that area's report.

Morning papers contain reports filed at noon the previous day (and are thus 20 hours old), and late afternoon papers contain reports filed at 7 a.m. the same day (only 8 hours old).

Next is the surface conditions of the trails. The first word describes the conditions of 70% of the open trails and the second symbol describes conditions on the remaining 30%. The words used, in abbreviated form, are powder, packed powder, loose granular, frozen granular, wet granular, wet snow, corn, ice, variable and spring.

To explain some of the uses of these terms, variable or spring would be used if 70% of the trails could not realistically be described by only one of the other terms. The difference between ice and frozen granular is that a ski pole can be implanted in the latter but not in the former. Finally, numbers in parenthesis indicate the number of trails open.

There are basically two reasons behind the change this year in snow reporting. First, as a result of a judgment against Stratton Mountain in Vermont state court, ski areas have been taking all precautions to limit liability. Thus, ski areas have decided that the new reporting system will insulate them from charges of misstatements as to conditions which could be the basis for liability.

Second, there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction with the imprecision of the adjectives (poor to excellent) and the discrepancies between the reports of different areas. So, the ski areas came to accept the view that your conclusions about how good the snow is are as good as theirs.

According to Mill Moore of the New England Council, the new reports give a "snapshot of conditions at a given time." The skier now has a "benchmark" to decide for himself whether or not the conditions are good enough.

Whatever the reporting system, skiers have the ability to make a last minute phone call to a ski area to obtain up-to-date information about ski conditions. Even if this opportunity is taken advantage of, skiers must remember that in New England conditions can change from hour to hour because of the ever changing weather patterns. Ski areas simply cannot be held responsible for the weather.

South girls tracksters on top

By GREG WALSH

"When the going gets tough, the tough get going," and the Newton South High School's girls indoor track team got tougher - to beat that is.

The Harriers defeated Lincoln-Sudbury High School 48-38 last week. The Harriers are now 3-1.

Ilene Tocci, an experienced distance runner, ran a great time of 6:16.4, taking second place in the one-mile. Co-captain Linda Irvine, remained in the top 5 OCL 2-milers, running a 12:25.8, taking first place.

Linda Price, the number one 300 yard runner in the OCL, improved her own best time to 3:30, edging within two-tenths of a second of the OCL record. Price is working hard to improve her already great time, she has the state record in sight. Also placing in the 300 was Kathy McLellan, who took third with 43.6.

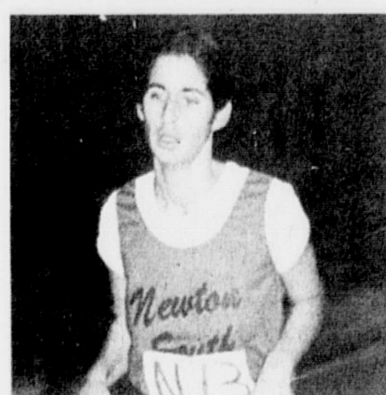

Both the 1000 yard and the 600 yard were lost, literally, by an inch. Co-captain Penny Shockett was edged out first place, but she secured second with a personal best time of 2:07.8. Dorothy Pickett the OCL's No. 1 hurdler, made it a race to the wire in the 600. She was awarded second place with a personal best time of 1:34.1.

Four very important places were earned by Sharon Sussman and Cathy Seasholes in the hurdles and high-jump. Sussman ran a 7.6 for first place in the hurdles, while Seasholes ran a 7.7 securing second place. In the high-jump, both Sussman and Seasholes cleared 4'6", but Sussman had less prior misses, so she took second place, and Seasholes was awarded third.

South went 1, 2, in the 40, Carol Hsiung ran a 5.6, and Robin "Flash" Seidman a 5.7, taking first and second place respectively.

Laura Sacks continues to improve in the shot-put, she took second place with a 29'10 1/4."

Pickett, Seasholes, Shockett, and Price got it together for the relay, taking first place, with a 4:30.5.

Ilene Tocci

NSHS's Harriers will face Acton-Boxborough Saturday, Jan. 20, at Wayland Field.

Hurdles - 1. Sharon Sussman, 7.6; 2. Cathy Seasholes, 7.7; 3. L-S.

South grapplers bow

By DON STEINBERG

The Newton South wrestling team, South, which was similarly jolted earlier in the season by Catholic Memorial, was defeated by Medford High, 36-26, last Friday night.

Because of a scheduling foul-up what South had marked as a 3:30 afternoon match was what Medford had planned on as beginning at 6:30.

After over an hour of waiting for the seemingly late Medford arrival, South finally contacted its foe to learn of the unfortunate mess-up. South's wrestlers decided to wait and wrestle at 6:30.

That laborious decision, which divided the team, meant that the South grapplers would have to control their tempers and appetites until a 6 p.m. weigh-in. Seeking to relieve some of the tension, the Lion coaches convinced the referee (who had arrived on time for a 3:30 match) to let South weigh-in early, an occurrence which is rare.

Considering everything, the night was not a total loss for South. Besides receiving a well-deserved wake-up call, South also saw a few encouraging mat performances. Junior Peter Burgio, wrestling at 107, picked up his first victory of the season with an inspired 35-second pin. Sophomores Andy Cohen and Ethan Miller showed potential in losing close decisions. Dave Isenberg, competing up a weight class at 169, gave his best performance in defeating an excellent foe. Rich Shone thoroughly whipped his opponent, and Rich Tarantino dominated his bout until his rival was disqualified for illegal tactics.

Earlier in the week, South showed what it could do in a normal situation by defeating Belmont High in a home afternoon match. All of South's experienced grapplers won in the 40-22 triumph.

Rec safe skating guide

There's a lot of hard work and experience involved in keeping Newton's three supervised skating areas operating safely for the benefit of the city's residents.

The actual preparation process begins very early in the day for the Newton Recreation Department's Maintenance Foreman, Joe Taranto, his assistant, Pat Forte, and their crews, under the direction of Commissioner, Russel J. Halloran.

The first order of business is to check out the thickness of the ice at each of the three natural surface areas. Crystal Lake in Newton Highlands, Ware's Cove in Auburn-dale and Bullough's Pond in Newtonville.

A minimum of 4 1/2 inches of "black ice" is suitable for skating "as is" at any of these areas, according to Mr. Taranto. In order to put Recreation Department equipment on the ice surfaces, six inches is required.

The thickness of the ice is determined by taking an average of ten spot readings, either by a chisel and measuring iron or by a gauge designed to cut a ten inch hole in the ice if necessary.

If the surface is extremely rough, or has many uneven spots as it was following the last storm, when cross country skiers or snowshoe enthusiasts ventured onto the ice, a long and involved treatment is required to return the surface to first class shape, the condition needed for safe skating.

In Ware's Cove, for instance, a ten inch hole was cut in the ice and water is pumped up from below the ice surface to flood the existing surface. This could take seven hours. The area is let stand for overnight and the next morning the heavy equipment is brought in to groom the new ice surface.

A jeep is sent over the surface to remove excess snow and level the high spots. A second jeep equipped with a two-single edge plane blade, four feet long, eliminates rough spots. The inside blade cuts away the rough areas and the outside blade tapers the surface to make way for the broom. This planing process begins at the outside of the area and works back towards the middle of the Cove. The broom process then sweeps the chips and snow from the center to the outer edges of the skating area.

Taranto emphasizes that conditions and ice surfaces are unique in each of the areas, and are never the same even over a short period, such as two days.

Bullough's Pond, for instance, has a 12-foot channel and several drains located along the edges which allows street water to enter the pond. This water lifts the ice and weakens the surface.

Crystal Lake not only has drains, but also several natural springs which may cause weak areas in the ice.

Ware's Cove is influenced by the Waltham Dam at Moody Street, which, when opened, will cause the ice level to drop.

Skating on these natural areas, under the jurisdiction of the Newton Recreation Department is allowed when all these influencing factors at each area are carefully considered and checked on a daily basis. The final check is made by Commissioner Halloran, Mr. Tarnato and City Safety Officer, George Mead, to insure that all safety equipment including ladders, tires, barriers and first aid material is readily available to the Department's well trained 30 member ice staff, charged with supervising the areas.

Saturday and Sunday, the weekend supervisor accompanies the Maintenance staff during inspection of the skating areas.

On weekdays, the ice areas are staffed by maintenance personnel from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. to assure that residents do not attempt to skate until the supervised period from 2 p.m. until closing. On weekends, the skating begins at 10 a.m. and continues through 9:30 p.m.

Even when a day begins with safe skating conditions, personnel continue to monitor conditions and should weather changes affect the areas, they are closed until they are safe once again.

The Recreation Department also maintains natural ice surfaces at Edmond's Park in Newtonville and at Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton Centre.

Tarnato remembers back in 1942 when there was as much as 26 inches of solid, black ice on Crystal Lake and residents skated from December through March. He also remembers when ice blocks were cut from the lake for use in ice boxes.

Newton Pee-wees win Exeter tournament

Newton's Pee-wee (ages 11 and 12) hockey team won the Jim Houston Hockey Tournament held at the Phillips Exeter Academy campus on Jan. 6th and 7th.

Newton beat Exeter, N.H. 8-0, Philadelphia, Pa. 13-1 and Hyannis, Ma. 5-1.

Newton which is now 37-3-1 was led by John Butterworth (5 goals, 6 assists), Tom Ryan (7 goals, 2 assists) and Tom Lyons (2 goals, 5 assists). Jonathan Cohen with 3 goals and John Connors with 2 goals as well as Paul Healey with 4 assists also had an excellent tournament.

Goalies Mark Buckley and Doug Stocklan, although not tested in the first two games, made some brilliant saves against an excellent Hyannis team in the finals.

The defensemen David Buckley, Tom Ryan, Chris Brotti and Mike Mullowney were outstanding as usual and fine efforts were also put forth by Bobby Chris Pachus, Jamie Rice and Tommy Buchner.

JUNIOR HIGH SPORTS SCENE

By CHRIS ZISI

The Newton Junior High sport scene was busy this week with all the sports seeing full action. In girls varsity basketball, the Weeks Junior High team defeated Waltham South by the narrow score of 41-40. In the Junior Varsity action Weeks Junior High put down Warren Junior High. The game finished with the final score resembling a football score, 16-14.

In boys basketball, Brian Byrd's 16 points wasn't enough to beat Waltham South. When the final seconds ticked away Waltham South had captured a 48-44 ball game. Weeks now has a 3-2 win lost record.

In the sport of hockey, Warren sent 10 goals past the Weeks goalie to capture a 10-0 massacre over the frustrated Weeks team.

Warren 3 7 10
Weeks 0 0 0

Paul Partridge a Weeks left winger says he is anxious to meet the Warren team again this season. Earlier this season Warren defeated Weeks by a more civilized score of 4-1 in the opening game. Last year Warren won the championship in hockey and the way they played against Weeks in both those games they look like the makings of another championship team.

On January 11th the day after Warren beat Weeks 10-0, Meadowbrook put Weeks down by a 2-1 score. The first time Weeks tangled with Meadowbrook the score was the same but Weeks came on top to beat Meadowbrook, earlier this season. Weeks now falls below the 50 percent mark after their two successive losses with a 2-3-1 win lost and tie record. Since they have gotten their uniforms they are no wins and two losses.

This week the Newton High School sport scene will resume as usual. No team will see action on Monday the 15th because of Martin Luther King day. Newton schools will not be in session.

Bald eagle blocks oil refinery construction

By WARREN TALBOT

BOSTON (UPI) — The American bald eagle — the nation's symbol — has spread its wings in the way of construction of a proposed $600 million oil refinery in Eastport, Maine.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Monday rejected a water discharge permit needed to build the proposed 250,000 barrel-per-day refinery, saying it would endanger a major nesting area of the eagle.

The bird was designated an endangered species by the government one year ago.

The Pittston Co. of New York has been trying since 1973 to get a series of state and federal permits needed to build the facility on the northern tip of the Maine coast and the water discharge permit was thought one of the last remaining hurdles to construction.

A company official said recently if there were any more delays the project would be abandoned.

However, an attorney for the Pittston Co. Monday said the firm would appeal the decision, adding that the company was glad the permit was turned down only on the basis of the eagle.

"It's exactly what we expected," said attorney Bruce Chandler of Waterville, Maine.

"The appeal will be based on whether or not the refinery would really endanger the eagles, not on the fact that they are an endangered species," said Chandler. He said the firm only had to prove that the EPA and Wildlife Service assumptions are incorrect.

Chandler said that the decision is to appeal was not inconsistent with remarks made recently by Pittston Vice President Arnold F. Kaulakis who recently indicated the firm would have to have "positive decisions" from federal agencies within the next to six the eight months before scrapping the project.

Chandler said that a decision on the appeal would fall within Kaulakis' time limit.

Paul Keough, a spokesman for the EPA's regional office in Boston, termed the rejection a "major stumbling block" for the company.

The refinery is the only such project actively under consideration in the six-state New England area.

Maine has one of the largest populations of bald eagles in the Northeast and Keough said the Eastport area is a major nesting ground for the birds.

"The (refinery) would have significant adverse impacts on the eagles and their habitat as well as air pollution and secondary development caused by refinery construction and operations and oil spills," Keough said.

"These impacts could not be avoided or mitigated" by any other means except "denial of the permit," he said.

Keough said the EPA had tentatively decided to issue the water discharge permit, but said it was finally rejected on the basis of information provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

On Dec. 12, 1978 the service issued a report saying the project "is likely to jeopardize the continued existence of the bald eagle."

It warned that eagles and their habitat would suffer from air pollution and development stimulated by refinery construction and oil spills.

The study noted that the area from Cobscook Bay to Penobscot Bay is one of the few areas in the country where bald eagle populations have been increasing in recent years.

"This is the only location in the northeastern United States where the eagle population has begun to recover. Production of eagles in the northeastern United States outside of Maine remains near zero," it said.

Keough said the action was taken under both the National Environmental Policy Act and the Endangered Species Act.

Sarah Weddington's mission

By KATHLEEN BURNS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

In her job as White House adviser on women's issues, Sarah Weddington has been assigned the arduous role of peacemaker amidst the warring factions that have polarized viewpoints among women.

The path she has chosen is an economic emphasis on issues that involve all women — married or single, white or black, young or old, urban or rural.

Among the pocketbook issues she plans to tackle are Social Security and pension reform, tax law inequities, credit questions, divorce settlements and the veterans' preference which eliminates most women from equal competition with men for federal jobs.

While she still will deal with such emotional issues as ERA and abortion, the Texas-born lawyer who succeeded Midge Costanza on President Carter's staff prefers a behind-the-scenes approach on controversial topics which have alienated some women and outraged others.

"I personally will continue to be involved in ERA and we will continue to work on all the issues of the International Women Year," she said.

Ms. Weddington is the attorney who successfully argued before the Supreme Court in 1973 on the case that established women's abortion rights. But she echoes Carter's more conservative stance, saying "the Administration is really trying to push contraceptive availability and research. I will be involved in the president's commitment to provide alternatives."

As chairman of an intergovernmental task force involving 15 federal agencies, Ms. Weddington plans to work in tandem with the Women's Congressional Caucus, which also has targeted economic issues as a priority.

To illustrate the differences in Social Security benefits for men and women, she pointed to a family with a man earning $12,000 versus a married couple with each partner earning $6,000. Under current laws, "women will receive 61 percent greater benefits from the single worker family than from the dual worker family," she said.

Another area of inequity is equal pay, in spite of recent legislation: "It's still true that men earn, on the average, 60 percent more than women."

Pension reform is another thorny question she first became interested in during the eight years she spent as a divorce attorney in Texas.

"Those in the retirement group are generally men, whose wives have not worked long enough (or at all) to establish their own benefits," she said. "In almost every private pension plan it is optional at the time you retire to choose survivor's benefits, and if you do, the pension will be less. This has an economic impact on the wife."

In divorce settlements, Ms. Weddington thinks judges should view the husband's pension and Social Security benefits as a form of community property, especially in the case of nonworking wives.

Credit problems continue, in spite of legal changes, Ms. Weddington noted. As a young attorney putting her husband through school, she was required to get his signature on her credit application. Through her efforts, the state of Texas finally changed its laws.

One of five women among the 250 students in her law class, she recalls that some professors refused to call on women in class. After graduation, some firms refused to hire women, asking such questions as who would make dinner.

"Society ought not to have preconceived models for people to fit into but rather that it gives individuals a choice to exercise for their own lives," she said.

After three months at the White House, she tries to remain a realist, unaffected by the aura of power. She misses trial work but loves her current job.

"I never planned to go to law school," she says. She earned a teaching degree but, realizing she didn't want to teach, went to graduate school instead.

"I didn't plan to run for office and decided three days before the filing deadline" to run for the Texas legislature. She won two terms.

"I never thought I would come to Washington and then Agriculture undersecretary John White (now chairman of the Democratic National Committee) called" and she became general counsel at USDA.

"I never planned to come to the White House and then Rosalynn Carter called," she said.

Her next step? That depends on the saying a Texas professor passed on to her: "Where you are tomorrow depends on who you meet today."

Betsy Brown, sitting, and Ellen McCarthy. Honeywell assists Explorers produce their newsletter.

Honeywell employees give Explorers work experience

Dozens of inquisitive teenagers, all members of the Explorer Division of the Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts of America, are currently acquiring valuable occupational experience and training at the hands of various Honeywell volunteers. In Waltham, graphic arts manager Edward G. (Mitch) Mitchell, technical writer Harry Marshall, and compositor James Franklin work with a total of 15 explorers teaching them the fine arts of journalism and newspaper design, composition, and production.

In Newton and Wellesley, six Honeywell employees provide the 28 members of their group with valuable insights into the accounting profession. They are Frank Pocher, controller of national operations; Ron Richards, manager of accounting operations; John Bevilacqua, manager of revenue and volume reporting and analysis; Dick Farber, manager of proposal and contract review; Sal Salvatore, data entry specialist; and Denis Cocchiara, sales accountant.

"Our group meets about every two weeks, usually on a Wednesday night," said Harry Marshall. "They do all the writing for both the Big E, which is the national award-winning Explorer newspaper, and the Little E, which is the monthly newsletter."

Jim Franklin's group does the production work on both publications while Rick Scully, manager of printing services, oversees the actual printing. Sometimes it's hard for us to know who has more fun — the Explorers, because they get a chance to use real equipment to produce a real newspaper, or us, because we see how much our efforts are appreciated."

Mitch Mitchell added, "Where else could these teenagers get a chance to work with computer-controlled automated composition and phototypesetting equipment? We're delighted to provide them with the opportunity, because we know how much good we're accomplishing."

"The whole point of the Explorers' career evaluation program is to give the kids a chance to experience 'real-world' business situations," said Dick Farber. "Just a few weeks ago, our group performed all the accounting functions at an all-day sporting goods sale and auction at the Wellesley Senior High School Gym."

An additional service that Honeywell provides the Explorers is a once-a-year computerized tabulation of the forms that thousands of prospective members complete at their respective high schools. "We handle as many as 40,000 forms at one time," explained computer operations specialist Bill Rounsley.

Phil Connor, Explorer program chairman for the Norumbega Council of the Boy Scouts of America, offered these thoughts on the Explorer program: "Many people still think that to be an Explorer, one must have to have been a Boy Scout. This is simply not true."

Gymnastics program for people 4-8 years

The Brimmer and May School is currently offering a gymnastics program for beginners, ages 4 to 8, at the school's Emily C. Thompson Activities Center, 40 Middlesex Rd., Chestnut Hill, adjacent to the Chestnut Hill Post Office. New students are still welcome to join classes which began this month.

Offered each Monday from 5:30 to 7 p.m., instruction will continue weekly until March 12. Classes are under the direction of Anne Priante and Judy Blinstrub of the physical education staff at the Brimmer and May School.

Gymnastics is the basic training to all movement and provides the fundamentals for body development and Classes at the Brimmer and May Gymnastic School are organized to provide a progression of skills according to each individual child's level of ability and progress. Children are introduced to basics in various apparatus including low beam, high beam, uneven parallel bars, horses and mats.

Anyone interested in enrolling a child in the program may call either 232-3410 or 566-7462 for further information.

Brandeis has 34 courses for spring adult ed term

Thirty-four courses covering contemporary and historical topics make up the spring edition of Brandeis University's Adult Education Program which begins March 14.

Boston politics, poetry, the universe, physical fitness, the family, real estate law, literature and motion pictures are among the array of subjects featured in the nine-week program taught by Brandeis faculty and guest lecturers.

The spring program also includes two separate, special offerings —

"Energy Conservation: Practical Alternatives for the Consumer," and "Yiddish Film and Lectures Series."

The energy lectures will be held Tuesdays, March 20 through May 1, 7-10 p.m. The film series is cosponsored by the American Jewish Historical Society and is scheduled Tuesdays, April 24 to May 15, 7:30-10 p.m.

Adult Education courses carry no prerequisites and are offered on a noncredit basis. Tuition and registration information may be obtained by calling 647-2796.

Circling the Ring of Kerry

Ireland-- "Land of a thousand welcomes"

Ireland — the mention of this little Atlantic isle that skirts Europe brings to mind warm hospitality, castles and rolling green pastures, a kaleidoscope of the past and present. And the visitor can tour this magical land by car, bus, train, bicycle or romantically in horse-drawn caravan.

Although the country is only 189 miles across and 302 miles from top to bottom, there is over 2000 miles of winding bays and white sandy beaches. One is never more than 70 miles from the sea.

The Emerald Isle is actually emerald. Forty shades of green paint the landscape due to the "soft" rain, a misty moisture that gently blankets the land.

The warming Gulf Stream keeps temperatures at a balmy 70 degrees in the summer, and no lower than 40 degrees in the winter. Casual clothing is the rule with emphasis on lightweight fabrics in summer. However, a sweater is always useful as well as a raincoat for the misty showers which may appear "out of a clear blue sky."

Certainly no trip to Ireland could ever be complete without kissing the Blarney Stone at Blarney Castle in County Cork. To the southwest stretches a dramatic coastline where noted towns like Kinsale, Skibbereen and Mizen Head are located. To the east is Waterford, famous for its hand-cut crystal. If golf is part of the vacation plans there are 18-hole courses at Courtown, Kilarney and Rosslare. If sailing is the perfect vacation Cork is a must. The Royal Cork Yacht Club, oldest yacht club in the world was founded here in 1720.

Discover the central counties of Leix and Offaly. Here on the banks of the Shannon there are monastic settlements like Clonmacnoise. History generously left many gifts to Ireland. The finest example of a megalithic tomb in Western Europe is found in County Meath, it dates from 2000 B.C. Explore the Stone Age dolmens, Iron Age forts, monastic high crosses, medieval castles and illuminated manuscripts. According to legend, the dolmens were built by Diarmuid and Grainne, two young lovers, who used them as shelter at night, while fleeing from the wrath of an aging king. At Craggaunowen in County Clare there is a replica of a "crannog", a Bronze Age lake dwelling.

A recognizable name is Tullamore, in County Offaly, the home of "Irish Mist," a drink whose history goes back almost 1000 years. Birr is a prosperous market town in this county, with tree lined malls and Georgian streets.

Ireland is noted for its many castles, silhouetted against the horizon. Cahir Castle, County Tipperary is the largest castle of the fifteenth century and well worth a visit to explore its spacious courtyards and hall.

It's Dublin, Ireland's capital city, that epitomizes and embodies all of the contrasts, the cultural heritage and architectural character that is Ireland. Dublin is situated on the east coast where the Liffey enters the Irish Sea. To the south are the Dublin Mountains and northwest of the city is the Phoenix Park, the largest enclosed park in Western Europe.

Dublin is the home of Trinity College, founded in 1591, St. Patrick's Cathedral and the Abbey Theater, Ireland's National Theatre.

For evening entertainment try Leeson Street which is lined with intimate boites for dancing, dining and discussion. Most are licensed to serve only wine. Dublin, Cork and Galway cities also feature discos.

A full meal with wine will cost about $10 in one of Dublin's better restaurants. Delicacies like salmon, smoked, poached, baked or broiled as only the Irish can do is offered as well as lobsters, habilit, cockles (members of the clam family), winkles (sea snails), and plaice (like flounder). Prawns from Dublin Bay are internationally famous and one of Ireland's most notable contributions to the pleasures of the visiting gourmet. Deliciously thick cream and Irish porridge is served in the morning. There's more to Irish cuisine than boiled potatoes and cabbage!

Newton youth 'strikes' at Kidney diseases

Youth candlepin bowlers from Newton will be tallying their scores on Saturday, Jan. 20, at 12 noon at Newton Centre Bowl to help fight kidney diseases during a bowl-a-thon benefitting the programs of the Kidney Foundation.

Bowlers will be contributing to the kidney cause through the solicitation and collection of pledges for each point scored in a three-string series. Any money amount may be pledged.

Bowlers will be eligible for prizes based on the totals of their dollar returns. Each youngster who raises ten dollars or more in pledges will receive a Kidney Foundation T-shirt, imprinted with organ donor slogan, "Gift of Life."

Henry Munevar, owner of Newton Centre Bowl and league director, is helping to coordinate this event. He explained that pledge donations will be applied to grants and fellowships at Boston-area teaching hospitals, as well as patient care and public information activities.

The Kidney Foundation serves as the central information office in the state for questions regarding the donation of kidneys and other internal organs after death for transplant therapy. Organ donor cards, which become authorized documents when signed by the donor and two witnesses, are available by contacting the Kidney Foundation, 183 State Street, Boston, Ma 02109.

Harvard class on Lifelong Learning opens

Registration for Harvard Center for Lifelong Learning courses will be held Jan. 29, Feb. 2, Feb. 5-9, 12-16, and 20-23, in Lehman Hall.

Last semester people from over 20 Boston communities including 26 Newton residents took classes at the Center. This semester classes start the week of Feb. 12.

This spring the Center will offer over 70 non-credit courses in the liberal arts, science, business and careers, finance, communications and the arts on an open admission basis. Full-semester courses, short-term classes and one-day seminars on topical issues are offered in the mornings, evenings and on Saturdays.

The Harvard Institute for Learning in Retirement is accepting applications for admission to the spring study program. The IIR offers an opportunity for retired professionals to conceive, conduct and participate in study groups and seminars in the company of their contemporaries. The Institute offers access to Widener Library and other cultural and educational activities at Harvard. Applications will be accepted through Jan. 19, 1979.

For further information on either of these programs, contact the Center for Lifelong Learning, Lehman Hall B-3, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, 02138, or telephone, 495-4973.

Children in the Newton Head Start Program smile in appreciation as they try on hats they received from the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross. The hat and mitten sets were knitted by Izora Henley, standing, and members of the

Retired general speaks against SALT II treaty

A group of local beece concerned about defense policies of this nation, headed by Ray Sharnie, president of Metal Bellows Corporation, has organized a dinner to be held on Monday, Jan. 22, at the Marriott Hotel in Auburndale.

John K. Singlaub, retired major general and former commander of U.S. forces in South Korea, will be the guest of honor and featured speaker.

He will speak about the incredibly dangerous pending SALT II treaty and the official Washington unilateral disarmament program. Guests will have the opportunity to ask questions of Gen. Singlaub.

During World War II, Singlaub parachuted into German-held France to train a resistance unit, led Chinese guerrillas against the Japanese, and headed a rescue mission that parachuted into a Japanese POW camp.

He retired early so that he could speak out openly on grave issues affecting the security and defense of this nation.

He challenged the wisdom of withdrawing U.S. troops from South Korea and has been outspoken on the President's refusal to develop the neutron bomb and opposed the Panama Canal giveaway on military grounds. Since he resigned his commission, Gen. Singlaub has become one of the co-chairman of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength, an organization whose membership includes 175 members of Congress and many organizations and individuals who are concerned for the welfare of this nation.

Tickets for the dinner are available for a donation of $100 each and may be obtained from Arnold Garrison, 527-3744.

Campers hold open house

Waltham, Newton and Weston North American Family Campers Assoc. Charles River Chapter 22 invites all campers to an open house on Saturday, Jan. 20 at 7:45 p.m. at the Christ Lutheran Church, 113 Union St., Natick.

The program for the evening will be a color slide presentation by Henry B. Brainerd from the seashore Trolley Museum. Refreshments will be served.

For further information: Telephone Paul Taylor 332-1794 or Lorraine Le Blanc 894-9491 after 5 p.m.

Dr. Albright skates for Big Sisters

Dr. Tenley Albright, Olympic skating champion and two-time World Figure Skating Champion, will join the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston for a benefit evening at Larz Anderson Park, Brookline, on Sunday Jan. 28.

Beginning at 5 p.m. at the park, the "Cheap Skate for Big Sister" will kick-off with a special skating party giving big and little sisters and invited guests the opportunity to join Dr. Albright on the ice, followed by an exhibition on ice with performers from throughout Greater Boston, including Dr. Albright's daughter Elin, who, like her mother, is an avid skater.

The skating party and ice show will be followed by an evening of cocktails, buffet dinner featuring singing waiters and strolling musicians, old movies, and dancing amongst the antique autos and trains at the Museum of Transportation on the park site.

Mary Whalen of Brookline, a member of the Board, is chairwoman of the benefit. Proceeds for the event will support the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, a nonprofit organization founded in 1951, which provides guidance and friendship for girls in need through one-to-one relationships with volunteer Big Sisters.

Tickets are $25 per person for the entire evening and can be purchased through The Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, 140 Clarendon St., Boston, 02110, or by calling 267-4409.

Junior high musicians prepare instrumental concert

On Wednesday, Jan. 24, the Music Department of the Newton public schools will hold the second annual All Newton Junior High School Instrumental Music festival. It will provide an opportunity for instrumentalists of the five junior high schools to rehearse and perform en mass in band and orchestra.

For this year's festival the School Department has enlisted the leadership of two well-known directors, both of the music faculty at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Walter Chestnut will prepare the festival band, and Max Culpepper who has been acclaimed for the quality of his orchestra organizations, will work with the festival orchestra.

The festival rehearsals and concert will be held in the Newton North High School music rooms and auditorium. Students will be bused to and from home junior high schools to meet the schedule at North High School. The rehearsal schedule is Jan. 18 and 23, 3:30-6:30 p.m., and Jan. 3:30-5 p.m.

The festival concert will be Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the Henry Lasker Memorial Auditorium, Newton North High School. The concert is free and open to the public.

Irving Lasoff

Services were held Friday (Jan. 12) in Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Solomon Memorial Chapel, Brookline, for Irving I. Lasoff.

Mr. Lasoff, 76, formerly of West Newton, died Wednesday (Jan. 10).

Mr. Lasoff grew up in Lexington and was a graduate of the Chemical Engineering School at Northeastern University, Class of 1924. He worked for several Boston engineering firms during his career and participated in such projects as the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and the Manhattan Project.

Most recently the 40-year Newton resident was the president and general manager of Britex Corp., Holbrook. He retired in 1975 and moved to Phillipston more than a year ago.

Husband of the late Frances Lasoff, Mr. Lasoff is survived by his son, Arthur M. of Phillipston; a sister, Mrs. Minnie Wolff of Peabody; and his brother, Allen of Milton. He was also the brother of the late Samuel, Harry and Henry Lasoff and the late Ruth Daiteh.

Burial is in Adath Jeshurun Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Catherine A. Martin

A funeral mass was celebrated Wednesday (Jan. 17) in Our Lady's Church for Miss Catherine A. Martin.

Miss Martin, of Newtonville and North Scituate, died Saturday (Jan. 13) in Waltham Hospital.

A resident of Newtonville for many years,

Miss Martin was employed as an executive secretary at Perkins Machinery Co. in Needham. She retired in 1967.

An active member of Our Lady's parish, she was a past president and past secretary of the Legion of Mary, and a member of the Catholic Daughters of America, the Catholic Association of Foresters and the Sen Fu Club of Boston.

Miss Martin is survived by a brother, John D. of Newtonville; and two sisters, Mary E. of Newtonville and Mrs. Nellie McLaughlin of Watertown.

Alice G. O'Kane

A funeral mass was celebrated in St. Ignatius Church Monday (Jan. 15) for Alice G. O'Kane.

Miss O'Kane, 86, formerly of Chestnut Hill, died Thursday (Jan. 11) in Massachusetts General Hospital after a brief illness.

A resident of Chestnut Hill for more than 50 years, Miss O'Kane attended Newton schools and was a graduate of Newton High School and Mount St. Joseph Academy.

She was employed for many years by the Registry of Motor Vehicles and when she retired in 1958 was the secretary in the office of the registrar of motor vehicles.

She was a member of Sacred Heart parish in Newton Centre for many years and a pioneer parishioner of St. Ignatius in Chestnut Hill.

Miss O'Kane is survived by a brother, Msgr. Bernard S. O'Kane, former pastor of St. Bernard's Church in West Newton.

Burial is in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

Sante Soltilio

A funeral mass was said Wednesday (Jan. 17) in Sacred Heart Church for Sante Soltilio.

Mr. Soltilio, 38, of Newton Centre, died Sunday (Jan. 14) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

A native of Capistrano, Italy, he had been a resident of Newton for five years and had been a bricklayer foreman for the Anastasia Brothers Construction Co. of Marshfield for the past 16 years.

Mr. Soltilio is survived by his wife, Mrs. Joyce Soltilio; a son, John; and two daughters, Diane and Susan, all at home; his mother, Mrs. Ida Soltilio of Newton Centre; and two sisters, Mrs. Luigia Vespe of Newton Centre and Mrs. Alba U. Erlich of Framingham.

Burial is in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Earline Pruitt, a graduate of Wheelock College and two-way tutoring Reading Coordinator at Hyde Park High School, is teaching the course. The sessions will meet Jan. 23 and 30, Feb. 6, 13 and 27 and March 6, all from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Because of the great need for reading tutors in schools in all parts of Boston this is the third time during the current school year that School Volunteers for Boston has offered the reading tutoring course. The two earlier courses have been filled to capacity, according to David Hildt, program director.

Pay as you grow.

When you start to work, it's easy to spend your whole paycheck. And that's a good reason to join the Payroll Savings Plan and buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because Bonds grow with you. So while you're working hard doing your job, Savings Bonds can be working hard doing their job. And that job is making money for you.

Bonds can help cultivate your dreams. Whatever they are. A college education, down payment on a new house, or a long-awaited vacation. Even a retirement nest egg.

Put U.S. Savings Bonds to work for you, storing away the fruits of your labor.

Plant the seeds of your future today. You'll be surprised what they can grow into.

NEWTON BUICK RENTAL CAR SALE

I have just removed several of my 1978 Buick Skylark sedans and coupes from my rental department. Because we are not #1 in the rental business our cars are meticulously cared for in our own service department and I know each and everyone of them. They are V-6's with automatic, power steering and brakes, radio and radial tires, body moldings and air conditioned. They are a mixture of nice colors and upholstery and of moderate mileage. See them in our used car showroom at:

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

High school drop-out works for diploma, learns skills in CETA

Bruce Doherty stands in the basement of Building 31 at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) beside a long, gray box-like furnace with yellow stenciled numbers every foot. "They are testing fuels in there," explained the Brookline teenager.

"I don't know very much about what happens, really," he said. "I'm sorry I'm not more articulate," he apologized and then went on to explain how probes in each one-foot section of the furnace give information on how fast the fuel heats, how hot it gets, how efficiently it burns, and how much and the type of emissions carried to the smokestack on the roof of the building.

He also explained in down-to-earth layman's terms how the emissions are removed and concluded by saying that what finally goes out the smokestack is 100 percent pollution-free.

A very concise description, especially from a 19-year-old who twice dropped out of high school, and who thought at one time his only future lay in auto mechanics.

Doherty is one of close to 60 young people from economically disadvantaged homes who has chosen to complete his high school education through a youth employment and training program sponsored by the Newton Area Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and operated by the Education Collaborative for Greater Boston's (EdCo) Triple E Program.

The first program, which alternated a week of classroom work with a week of work at a job site, began last April. A second program began in October and was funded at $151,804.

Triple E is open to economically disadvantaged young people between the ages of 15 and 19 who live in Bedford, Brookline, Lexington, Lincoln, Newton and Waltham. It is geared toward those youths who are having difficulties in their own school systems and to those who need an income in order to complete their high school educations.

Doherty is one who was not comfortable at his home school.

"Brookline High was just too college oriented for me. I'm more mechanically inclined," he explained. "I find the kids in this program more like myself. We know we need the high school diploma, and we're going to work to get it."

Students receive their academic education at the Triple E center at 424 Trapelo Rd., Waltham. Work sites include the Marine Biology section of the Department of Fisheries Sea Foundations, the Cerebral Palsy Center, Costa del Sol, a Hispanic community facility; accounting departments in local government offices, medical labs, food services programs, radio stations and places with data punch operations.

The program focuses on work skills rather than training skills. Overseeing the program is a steering committee made up of 11 representatives of various secondary education programs in the area who advise Triple E in terms of policy, program and structure. Serving on the committee from Newton is Daniel Malia, coordinator of the technical-vocational education, Newton public schools.

Doherty's first work-site was at the Bedford Veterans Administration (VA) hospital, where he worked in the building maintenance department.

"I was surprised to learn how many things I could do," he said.

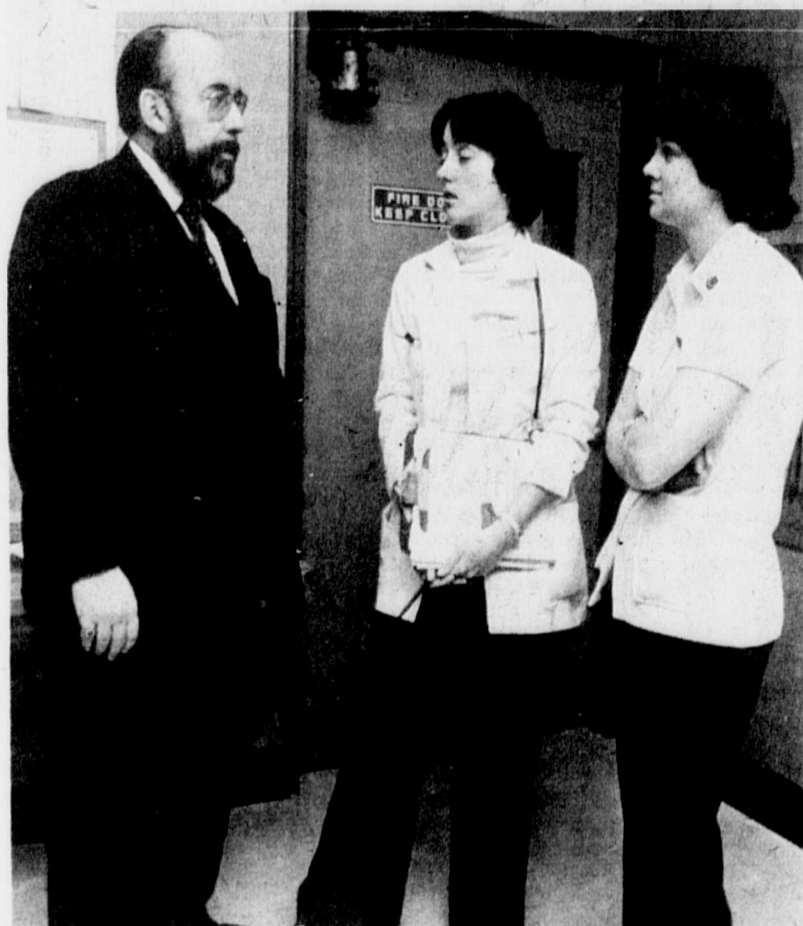

He moved to the MIT site when transportation to the VA hospital became a problem, and has been happy with the change.

"The people here are very dedicated. They know something has to be done by a certain time, and that it has to be done right," he said.

"Once I only thought in terms of auto mechanics. Now there are so many things I know I can do that it's all swimming around in my head. I don't know exactly what I will do when I finish in June," he said. Some of the people at MIT have talked to him about permanent work there, but no formal offers will be made until the university's budget is approved in June.

There are still openings for this second session. To be eligible for the program, students must be enrolled in a high school, live in one of the above-mentioned communities and meet certain federally determined income guidelines. For further information, students should contact their school guidance counselors, Triple E at 738-5600, or Newton Area CETA, 894-5925.

Louis DeLuca, left, executive director of the American Parkinson's Disease Association, discusses the new referral and information center for Parkinson's disease with Joan MacKelvie, center, of Newtonville. ## Hotel donates luncheon for Art Association fund

The Marriott Hotel in Auburndale, under the management of Colin Nadeau, is giving a luncheon on Jan. 24 at noon to benefit the Newton Art Association Inc. (NAA).

The proceeds from the luncheon will benefit the Newton Art Association's Memorial and Endowment Fund.

Each year at an outdoor show in the spring, a monetary award is given from the fund in memory of past presidents, members, and friends of the association, for the best art work in the spring show.

This luncheon commemorates the 30th anniversary of the N.A.A. and features the grand opening of the re-decorated Fairfield Inn at the Marriott Hotel.

Michael Schulman is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon assisted by Newton Art Association officers, Henry Schoenberg, president; Janet Holly, second vice president; and Pertie Holly, governor. Also selling tickets for this affair are: Sophia Jablonski, Memorial Fund chairwoman; Celia Itkin, Frances Merton, Assunta Train, Leonard Walton, Eugene Faucher and Alice Calden.

Tickets are $5

Newton woman directs Brandeis music course

Brandeis University has been awarded a $46,000 National Endowment for the Humanities grant to underwrite a summer seminar on "Medieval and Renaissance Music: From Notation to Performance," for college music teachers.

Seminar director is Brandeis Professor Margaret H. Bent of Newton, chairman of the university's Music Department. She said the program would help college-level teachers of the history, appreciation and performance of early music to develop a more independent and discerning approach than is possible for those confined to dependence on modern scores.

"I feel the seminar will be beneficial in two areas," Prof. Bent said. "It will open up new horizons for individual investigation and, ultimately, will enrich participants' teaching and performance."

She added the seminar will focus on raising awareness of the styles of early music from 1300 to 1600, through first-hand contact with its techniques.

Prof. Bent said, "We will devote our time to such areas as Flemish motets and masses of the early 16th century, English motets and madrigals of the late 16th century, French chansons of the mid-15th century, 14th century Italian secular music, Machaut and his contemporaries, tablatures, and early 15th century English music."

Prof. Bent was born in England, received her bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from Cambridge University, and has been a member of the Brandeis music faculty since 1975.

She is currently working on various aspects of late-Medieval music and recently prepared the edition of Rossini's opera "The Turk in Italy" which was performed by the New York City Opera.

Senior citizens to be guests of Newton Symphony

Senior citizens from Newton and Needham will be guests of the Newton Symphony Orchestra at a special afternoon dress rehearsal on Saturday, Feb. 3, at 2 p.m., at Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton.

Arrangements have been made with the Newton Department of Human Services and Newton's two senior citizen drop-in centers for special transportation to be provided for those senior citizens who wish to attend the concert.

The Needham Council on Aging is also providing transportation for Needham senior citizens.

There will be no charge for this occasion, and all senior citizens are welcome. For transportation details, call 527-6770 (in Newton) and 444-5100 (in Needham).

Michel Sasson, conductor of the Newton Symphony Orchestra, said that this is the first open rehearsal scheduled by the orchestra.

Senior citizens will hear selections from the concert, including soprano Deborah Sasson singing Villa-Lobos' "Bachianas Brasileiras" and an aria from Verdi's opera "La Traviata." Ms. Sasson was the star of the "West Side Story" anniversary production at the Hamburg State Opera House in Germany.

The Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce will sponsor refreshments for the occasion.

Chamber President Margaret Hunt said, "The Newton Symphony Orchestra provides a superb cultural experience for the citizens of Newton and Needham, and the Chamber of Commerce is pleased to support this excellent musical organization."

Library Friends give tours in reorganized Main Library

Library Director Virginia Tashjian, with the help of her staff, has made many changes in the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, in order to make library services and facilities more accessible to the public.

To introduce people to the changes, the Friends of the Newton Free Library, with President Nancy Criscitiello, will sponsor two tours of the Main Library on Monday, Jan. 22, at 10 a.m., and Wednesday, Jan. 24, at 2 p.m.

Reference services will be described. There will be visits to the behind-the-scenes technical services department where books are prepared for the readers, the new and enlarged magazine and newspaper room and the circulation area where cassettes, records and current books are shelved.

Visitors will see the new all-purpose room, the Center for the Visually Handicapped, and the new location of the card catalogue (on the first floor) and the audio-visual equipment available for in-library use.

The tour, which is free and open to all, will last about one hour. Refreshments will be served by the Friends.

The Friends of the Newton Free Library are a group of library supporters organized almost 15 years ago to help foster relations between the Newton Free Library and the citizens of Newton.

Over the years the Friends have sponsored lectures, book sales, functions to honor authors and artists, and two Bookworm Balls.

Mrs. Criscitiello, on behalf of the Friends, invites interested people to join the Friends of the Newton Free Library. Write to the Friends of the Newton Free Library, Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton, 02158.

Parking is available in the municipal lot behind Hubbard's Drug Store. For more information call 552-7145.

Arts Center offers 11 courses plus student program

The Newton Arts Center is registering students now for its spring term, Jan. 22 to March 23. Classes will be given in drawing, painting, printmaking, theater, dance, pottery, calligraphy, photography, antiques, architecture, and art history.

Watch for the new "Young Adult Program" for students interested in preparing for a career in the arts. Special courses will be in architecture around the house; modern art: the 20th Century, and encountering antiquities.

For a free brochure call 964-3424 or stop by the Arts Center, one block east of the Newtonville Library at 61 Washington Park, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

CD budgets for villages now ready

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

After several nights of whittling away at the budget figures for next year's proposed community development plan, the Planning & Development board decided last week to slash neighborhood revitalization programs to $725,000 — a cut of $170,000 over last year's funding level.

In making its cuts, the board took into consideration that there will be available $847,000 carried over from previous years of the community development (CD) program. It also considered how much each neighborhood could possibly spend in light of its present stage of planning.

For Newton Corner, the Planning & Development board (P&D) board proposed $80,000 for the concentrated block improvement program, that is for rehabilitating houses, streets, and curbs on selected blocks. For the village improvement program, the board slashed the request of $200,000 to $120,000.

In making the cuts, the board considered the proposed improvements for both Hunnewell and Farlow Parks as questionable. Both parks are south of Washington Street, in fairly affluent areas, board member Harry Crosby said. The people in those areas could lobby the Recreation Department for their improvements, he added.

Turning to Nonantum, the board cut neighborhood requests from $400,000 to $65,000. In doing so, it allowed funds for the proposed lighting of Jackson Road, but cut the improvement fund for reconstructing Adams Street to $40,000.

The CD program should not have to foot the entire $400,000 necessary to rebuild the street, board Chairman Margaret Smith said. Instead the board decided to allocate $40,000 for the design work provided the city puts Adams Street on the list of road projects to be done with the state gas tax funds.

Nonantum will also receive funds for its temporary and permanent multiservice centers. Both were included in the human service allocations.

For West Newton, the board proposed $20,000 to support land acquisition and site development for a housing development. No site has yet been selected for the project.

The village's neighborhood improvement program will receive $100,000; 285,000 was requested. If West Newton wants to do all the work it proposes for its commercial area, it will have to begin finding additional funding sources, Mrs. Smith said. She also showed concern that so much effort has been concentrated on improving the square.

West Newton has both affluent and low and moderate income people, said Crosby. Both use the square, he said.

19 businesses destroyed by fire

Five Newton firefighters were injured and 19 businesses were damaged in two separate fires in Newton Corner and Nonantum Thursday night when high winds and freezing temperatures hampered firefighting efforts.

The three-alarm fire in the Columbus Hall building at Watertown and Adams street in Nonantum started on the second floor before the first alarm came in at 8:10 p.m.

By the time the third alarm was sounded at 8:40 p.m., all of Newton's active equipment were at the fire, along with two Waltham pieces of equipment.

At about 9:35 p.m. someone reported a car fire on Washington Street across from the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge. Newton's firehouses were being covered by engines from surrounding towns under the mutual aid agreement.

Firefighters from Brookline, Boston, Waltham, Watertown, Wellesley, and Weston arrived and found flames spewing out of three businesses across from the motel.

The Moore and Moore Paint and Wallpaper store at 323 Washington St. and the Newton Delicatessen at 333 Washington St. were "totaled" by the fire, according to Lt. Francis Howley. One-half of Rogan's Sporting Goods at 327 Washington St. was destroyed, he said.

About 18 families from an adjacent apartment building were evacuated during the Washington Street fire and took refuge in Howard Johnson's.

The Washington Street fire was considered "all out" by the Fire Department at about 1:20 a.m. Assistant Fire Chiefs Edward Murphy and Bernard Goulding were in charge of the mutual aid units. Chief Goulding frozen slipped on water from the fire and was taken to the hospital.

Someone at the scene told police that firecrackers were heard going off in quick succession shortly before the blaze was reported.

Lt. Howley said the Washington Street fire was caused by combustible materials igniting from an overheated flue pipe in one of the basements of the one-story building.

The Watertown Street fire kept all Newton firefighters busy until about 3 a.m. Friday when the "all out" was sounded.

Lt. John Ambrone from the state Fire Marshall's office and Newton Fire Capt. Joseph Fitzsimmons are investigating the cause of the Columbus Hall fire.

When firefighters first arrived, they were hampered by frozen hydrants

New owner of Murley property says subdivision will proceed

By ELIZABETH MCKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Jordan M. Friedman of Countryside Road, Oak Hill, has landed on his feet again.

Friedman, the subject of a Boston Globe Spotlight story in 1976 regarding his $5.9 million bankruptcy that started in 1971 and was finally settled in 1974, has been since September 1978 the sole trustee of Peace Realty Trust, owner of the 30-acre Murley land on Dedham Street, according to information on file at the Middlesex County Registry of Deeds.

The one-time trustee of the property, Haim Eliachar of Hilon Corp., Brookline, appointed Friedman trustee himself Sept. 5, 1978, and resigned Sept. 6.

Eliachar is the developer of New Falls subsidized housing in Newton Lower Falls. Construction has not started.

Friedman was involved in a foreclosure of businesses in Connecticut last year, which he had bought with a $3.5 million loan from a Maryland finance corporation.

The organization, the Maryland National Industrial Finance Corp., has debts still outstanding against Friedman's Connecticut businesses, according to a spokesman for the corporation, Alex Fox, on Wednesday.

Nevertheless, Friedman was able on Sept. 8 to buy the three remaining lots that completed the whole Murley parcel for $175,000 and to obtain a mortgage in that amount from the Harbor National Bank of Boston.

Peace Realty Trust, then under the trusteeship of Eliachar, had a mortgage of $550,000 with the Brookline Trust Co. when Eliachar bought the property from the Murley estate in November 1977 according to registry information.

Eliachar was not available Wednesday to comment on why he decided not to develop the Murley property himself.

The subdivision of the Murley land came about after neighbors objected strongly to apartments being built on the property.

Friedman said Wednesday "All systems are go as far as I am concerned" on plans for the subdivision.

Union head fined $70 in driver's license case

By SARAH CLARKSON
of the Graphic staff

Some of the fog surrounding arrest and hearing procedures under the newly decriminalized motor vehicle laws lifted Tuesday during a hearing in Newton District Court involving the president of Local 800, Newton's Public Works Department employees' union.

Louis Rufo, 51, president of the local, was arrested last Wednesday night after he failed to produce his operator's license on the demand of Newton Police Officer Edward Putnam.

Rufo appeared before Judge Monte G. Basbas for a non-criminal hearing on three charges: refusing to produce a driver's license upon demand of an officer, allowing and permitting unnecessary operation of a motor vehicle in excess of five minutes, and leaving a vehicle standing in public way unattended without first locking or making fast or effectively setting the brake.

Judge Basbas found Rufo "responsible" on all three violations and levied fines totaling $70 against him. Rufo was given 10-days to pay the fines.

In his opening remarks, Judge Basbas noted that there are varying interpretations as to whether, under the new motor vehicle laws, an officer has the right to arrest someone for failing to produce his license for a police officer. He said, "The chief justices' office indicated publicly and very recently there still is a problem whether you can arrest. The Registrar says it is an arrestable offense."

As per a memo from Chief Quinn, the Newton Police Department still considers failing to produce a license an arrestable offense.

Officer Putnam took the stand and testified that on the night of Jan. 17, he observed two city trucks parked in a tow zone on Beacon Street near Langley Road, both with their motors running. He stated that he stood by the pick-up trucks for 10 minutes, turned off the ignition and took the keys.

Soon after, a city worker came out of Bill's House of Pizza on Beacon Street, approached one truck and the officer told him that he was "concerned that the motor vehicle was running unattended." Putnam asked for the man's license, he gave it to him and then the man returned to the pizza shop to find the driver of the other truck.

Rufo appeared and asked Putnam what the problem was. Officer Putnam then testified that he asked Rufo for his license three times and "demanded it four times and after the fourth time, I placed him under arrest."

Officer Putnam said he was con-

Water level reached 3 ft. during deluge

Sections of Newtonville and low-lying areas south of Rte. 9 were under as much as three feet of water Sunday afternoon after nearly three inches of rain fell.

City employees and volunteers responded to more than 200 calls of flooded basements that shut off oil burners and left homes without heat.

In Newton Corner and in Brighton UUUU In Newton Corner and in Brighton a flooded underground circuit left about 1500 Boston Edison according to Edison spokesman Walter McGauley.

Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas said that a clogged drain under the Massachusetts Turnpike caused water to flood Newtonville Avenue near G & S Paper Company and Norwood, Bridges, and Parkview avenues.

Thomas said Public Works crews worked with a scoop and with hand grapping tools to free up the ice chunks and debris in front of the drain that caused a backup of from two to four feet of water.

Flooding of homes near the South Meadow Brook was caused simply by the volume of rain, Thomas said. Streets that were effected include Wheeler Road, Bound Brook Road, Truman Road near Parker Street, Dedham Street near the Countryside School, and several sections along Needham Street. The brook flows into the Charles River just north of Needham Street.

Thomas estimated he had between 150 and 175 men on the streets clearing storm drains for more than 10 hours Sunday.

The Fire Department alone received about 150 calls of flooded basements in addition to the 200 calls received by the Public Works Department. Some may have been for the same problem.

Firefighters started pumping basements as soon as the water stopped coming into them. In many cases they would go from one house to another on a street, Lt. Howley said.

In addition to Newtonville and south of Rte. 9, there was also flooding in

Carabetta loses bid to retain building

Even the prospect of 10 or 11 more units of housing for low-income elderly people did not constitute "overriding public interest" to the Board of Aldermen, which Monday night finally denied requests of Carabetta Enterprises to retain an expensive, well-built sales building on the Chestnut Hill Towers property.

The special permit allowing construction of the 428 luxury apartments called for demolition of the building as a condition of the occupancy permit, but when a temporary occupancy permit was issued for one of the twin buildings, Joseph Carabetta asked that he be allowed to convert the model building into an "amenity" for tenants of the Towers.

The plan was to make guest apartments for tenants' guests and to provide function rooms for the tenants' use.

The Board of Aldermen was about to deny that petition at its last meeting, when Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris asked that the matter be held as a courtesy to the developer to allow him to make another try at saving the building.

Monday night Morris told the Board the committee was inclined to believe that the elderly housing comes closer to "overriding public interest," but not close enough.

Ald. David Cohen called the elderly housing a "carrot on a stick," and said the housing subsidy would have to come out of Newton's HUD Section 8 allocation anyway, "taking away from subsidies for other housing in the city."

Ald. Robert Tennant suggested that the honor of the Board would not be diminished by a change of mind, because "things change," but Ald. Dominic Taglienti disagreed.

The reason for denial would be "the credibility of the Planning Board and the Board of Aldermen," Taglienti said.

"You promised seven or eight years ago to tear this down," he added.

Not only was the credibility of the Board at stake, Abutters to the rear of the property, where the building is less than 15 feet from the property line, have brought suit against the Board of Aldermen for issuing an occupancy permit before the building was taken down.

The final vote was 18-4 to require that the building be demolished. Ald. Donald Budge, Richard McGrath, Paul Daley, and Tennant were opposed.

Neighbors like novel plan for Victorian house

A creative solution to the question of what to do with an old, shabby house on Watertown Street offered by developer Jack Antaramian has received approval of the neighbors, according to Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris.

Another developer's announcement last year that he would tear the building down and build eight modern townhouses was received with outrage by neighbors, who felt the new construction would destroy the Victorian character of that particular part of Watertown Street.

Antaramian showed neighbors last week what he will do — keep the existing house and add four townhouses, built of wood siding to match the old house, which will be converted to two apartments.

The proposal, according to Morris, meets the criteria suggested by the Land Use Committee when it rejected the first developer's proposal.

Antaramian's plan takes advantage of a natural slope of land at the back of the property, which is bordered by Cheese Cake Brook. The developer will put parking under the four townhouses, so it will not be visible from the street.

Morris said Antaramian intends to match exterior construction details of the old house, even to the design of the porch railing.

The proposal is not formally before the Land Use Committee yet. Morris thinks it will be docketed during the next month.

'78 license fees bring city $150,864

Total license fees collected by the Newton Board of License Commissioners reached an all-time high in the year 1978, according to Carleton P. Merrill, administrative director of the commission.

As of Dec. 31, 1978, the Licensing Board had collected fees totaling $150,864, including fees for automatic amusement machines totaling $1280.

The previous high total for receipts was $120,213 collected during 1977.

Since 1975, when Merrill was appointed administrative director of the Board of License Commissioners, the fees collected have increased from $111,818. The Licensing Board continues to issue Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission ID cards. Receipts from such cards amounted to $134 in 1978. Receipts from one-day temporary all alcoholic or wine-malt beverages permits amounted to $590 last year.

With the State Registry of Motor Vehicles now issuing ID cards, Merrill anticipates a dropoff in the issuing of the cards, since the majority of licenses no longer accept the cards issued by the cities and towns but require the ID issued by the Registry of Motor Vehicles for proof of age.

As of Jan. 1, there was a total of 166 facilities within Newton holding licenses issued by the Board of License Commissioners. The facilities include 66 holders of common licenses, 33 restaurants with a seven-day all alcoholic license, nine restaurants with six-day all-alcoholic licenses, four restaurants with a six-day wine-and-malt beverage license, and two restaurants with a seven-day wine-and-malt beverage license.

Further, there are three druggists with all-alcoholic licenses. Boston College is the holder of two Section 14 Educational Institute licenses and there are two holders of seasonal licenses in Newton, one for all-alcoholic and one for wine-and-malt beverages.

Members of the Newton Board of License Commissioners and the administrative director of the commission conduct regular inspections of licensed premises in Newton to ascertain as to how the business is being conducted as well as to monitor compliance with the licensee's closing hours. The commission work is aided by Police Chief William Quinn and members of the police department.

Present members of the Newton Board of License Commissioners are Ernest G. Angevine, chairman; Zena F. Nemetz; and Jerome J. Pearlstein.

Fire chief to retire after 40 years in city

Fire Chief Harvey D. Preble has announced his retirement from the Fire Department as of April 1. He will have been with the department 40 years.

In response to Preble's letter of retirement, Mayor Theodore Mann said, "In Harvey Preble the city of Newton has the type of civil-servant professional to be emulated and admired."

The mayor extended to Preble and his family wishes for "all the comfort, happiness and good health that should rightfully be bestowed upon wonderful people."

Preble said in his letter he is retiring for personal reasons involving himself, his family and "our future well-being."

Preble, who will be 65 in August, joined the Newton Fire Department in May, 1939. After service in the Signal Corps during World War 2, he became a fire lieutenant. He was promoted to captain in 1954 and assistant chief in 1957.

Preble was appointed acting fire chief in October 1976, succeeding retiring Chief Frederick Perkins. He was named chief in January 1977.

Mayor Mann said this week the new chief will be taken from the captains or assistant chiefs in the department.

This statement apparently indicates that the mayor will not try again to establish a public safety department, combining the Police and Fire departments under Police Chief William Quinn as public safety commissioner.

Two armed robberies on north side last week

Two armed robberies occurred in two Newton businesses last weekend, one at CVS on Walnut Street and the second at Joe's Discount on River Street.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, a man, described as 5'5", 150 pounds, entered the CVS, 304 Walnut St., pointed a gun at two female employees and said, "Give me all the money and put it in a bag." The robber got away with between $205-$265 in cash. The robber, wearing a hat pulled over his face with the eyes and mouth cut out, was seen leaving the scene in a tan vehicle.

A man described as 6', 210 pounds, approximately 35, robbed Joe's Discount, 344 River St., Sunday, Mar. 21. Pointing a 38-caliber revolver at a female employee, he said, "I want what's in the register." The robber got away with $40 in cash and fled in a blue Chevy that the employee said she had seen around the store at other times.

William A. Vachon, 21, 39 School St., was arrested on charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and malicious damage early Saturday morning after smashing a right rear car window and allegedly attacking a man with a screw driver.

Francis E. Smith Jr., 727 Centre St., stated he was cutoff by a gold car at the intersection of Commonwealth Avenue and Centre Street, and followed to his home by the same car. Smith stated to police that he got out of the car and the driver of the gold car allegedly yelled "Get back in the car or I'll kill you." The driver of the gold car then allegedly proceeded to smash Smith's car window and strike him several times on the shoulder with the screw driver, police said.

Police later spotted the gold car on Washington Street, pulled it over, and said the driver, Vachon, admitted hitting Smith because Smith had cut him off at the intersection.

Officer Edward Woloski arrested a man at 1:30 Saturday morning for assault and battery of a police officer and operating under the influence after the man, Miguel Fernandez, 460 Watertown St., Newton, allegedly pushed Woloski.

Fernandez's car and another car were involved in an accident at the intersection of Washington and Centre Streets. When the officers approached the drivers for licenses and accident report information, Fernandez allegedly yelled, "You are picking at me because I'm Puerto Rican," and pushed Woloski was arrested.

An 83-year-old woman surprised two females in her home on Chester Street last Friday evening and proceeded to talk to them for 20 minutes before calling police.

Police said the two women gained entrance by forcing open the rear door and cellar door. A blue sapphire and diamond ring valued at $500 was taken.

Three males, including one juvenile, were arrested Tuesday morning on burglary, larceny breaking and entering, and malicious damage charges after damaging and vandalizing three cars and breaking into a house on Grant Avenue. Police said all three men were residents of Freeport House, 361 Commonwealth Ave.

John F. Correa Jr., 17, 21 Greenwood Rd., and Warren H. Heaps, 17, 734 Centre St., and one juvenile were arrested after police stopped red and yellow cars traveling too fast down Montvale Road. Inside the car, police found tape decks, candlesticks, an electric typewriter, hub caps, skis, liquor, and tools.

One of the vehicles was registered to John J. Foster, 160 Grant Ave. The officers went to that address and found the house broke into.

Oak Hill land swap rejected

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

Should the city swap 15,000 square feet of undeveloped land opposite the Oak Hill School for a 42,400 square foot landlocked adjacent to the Oak Hill playground?

No said the Conservation Commission. The city land is in an area subject to flooding, and the 15,000 square is in the lowest part of the lot, commission Secretary Helen Heyn said. It will come equipped with a complete set of drainage problems, which will make it difficult to use the property for a housing site, she added.

Although it may be possible to engineer the land to allow a single-family house to be built, it would not be advisable, Mrs. Heyn said. Once the plans were implemented there would be no guarantee against flooding, she said.

Because of the potential flooding problems, the commission wants the Board of Aldermen to reject Charles Nardone's land swap proposal. Commission members do feel, however, the city should do something about Nardone's landlocked lot.

Nardone's lot was left out of a land taking several years ago. It now serves as a buffer between the houses on Winston Road and the playground.

Nardone has made several offers to swap the lot for city owned land over the year. All were refused, according to Principal Planner John L. Simmons.

Once the Conservation Commission was even asked if it would like Nardone's lot, Mrs. Heyn said. The commission refused, but suggested Nardone ask other city departments if they would want to purchase it.

The most desirable solution would be for Nardone to sell the property to the Winston Road residents whose rear lot lines back up to his property, Mrs. Heyn said.

The Planning Department is still researching Nardone's proposal and has not yet taken a position on the matter. The offer will be heard by the Administration & Planning Committee on Jan. 29.

While all Newton's on-duty firefighters were at the three-alarm fire on Watertown Street in Nonantum, an alarm came that a car was on fire on Washington Street in Newton Corner. Firefighters arrived and found three businesses engulfed in flames. Firefighters from Weston, Watertown, Brookline, Boston and Wellesley battled the blaze, believed to have been caused by combustible materials igniting near an overheated flue pipe. (Graphic photos by Rich Williams)

Decorous Board meeting politely over in two hours

A chastened Board of Aldermen Monday night went through its relatively short docket in about two hours, with aldermen displaying almost a ceremonial courtesy toward each other.

This week's meeting was in high contrast to the meeting of Jan. 8, in which breaches of etiquette and decorum were the rule and the Board adjourned in disgust with itself before all the work was done.

The absence of controversial matters helped the situation this week.

Aside from denial of a request from Carabetta Enterprises to retain the temporary sales building at the Chestnut Hill Towers site, the only matters causing dissension were renewal of dormitory and lodging-house licenses and a vote of "no action necessary" on the unused city yard on Auburndale Avenue.

Ald. Edward Richmond wanted not to renew the licenses unless all dormitory facilities are equipped with smoke detectors and unsuccessfully moved to return the matter to the Land Use Committee.

Ald. Susan Schur commented that the committee had always relied on the requisite inspections, which the dormitories and lodging-houses had passed. If the Board approves the new smoke detector ordinance it is currently working on, then smoke detectors would become mandatory anyway, she pointed out.

Ald. Rodney Barker said he did not like imposing a new condition on the licensing requirements with no previous notice.

In favor of requiring the installation of smoke detectors was Ald. Cynthia Creem, who said Newton should take a lesson from other communities that have had dormitory fires, some with fatalities.

However, the Board voted 22-0 to approve the licenses without the smoke detectors. Ald. Edward Richmond immediately filed a motion for reconsideration, which delays the matter until the next Board meeting.

Richmond said he took that step to gain two weeks in which to find out whether dormitories are in fact required to have smoke detectors and whether they do have them already.

The fate of the Auburndale Yard cannot be decided until Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas has presented his overdue plan on what facilities are needed by the Public Works Department.

Ald. Richard McGrath, chairman of the Public Facilities Committee, moved that no action was necessary on a $150,000 appropriation request to move the Water & Sewer Department to the Auburndale Yard from its Watertown Street yard.

McGrath wanted to clear the matter from his committee's docket, since the Water Department apparently is not going to move. Conflicting reports on how much the administration wants the move, or whether it still wants the matter considered, were not resolved.

Neighbors of the Auburndale Yard want the city to make some decision, preferably to close the yard permanently, because of the undesirability of having an occupied facility near-by with its problems of deterioration.

McGrath argued that whatever decision is made, the identical request as has been carried on the docket will not be made, so a new docket item with the correct request should be filed at that time.

The "no action necessary" was approved by a 12-10 vote.

The Board voted not to allow resubmission of a request for a special permit for a fast-food restaurant at 340 River St., West Newton. A petition for a sub shop at that location had been heard and denied late last year, and the Board did not feel the new request was a substantially different one.

Two appropriation requests for fuel oil were approved. The Fire Department got $20,000 and the Library was given $10,381 for fuel oil and electricity.

City departments have been caught short by increases in the price of oil and cuts made by the Board of Aldermen in the 1978-79 budget in anticipation of fuel savings to be achieved by the city's energy inspector.

The trouble with Billy

Now isn't there one in almost every family?

There's the aunt who invites strange men to her apartment, the uncle who lifts a few too many, the grandfather who tells dirty jokes, the stepmother who shoplifts now and then.

Why should anyone be surprised about Billy Carter?

It was probably disturbing to Billy that his beer promotion failed, that his mother gets all kinds of publicity by speaking her mind. She even represents the president at state affairs, such as foreign funerals.

And as President Carter said, Billy is a private citizen. If he wants to visit Libya and invite a bunch of that country's bigwigs to Plains, Georgia, that should be his business.

The only trouble is that the Libyans probably don't quite understand it all. There are few countries in the world where off-beat relatives are given such free play. In most other lands, they are sent off to remote areas with elaborate facilities and all sorts of toys with which to amuse themselves.

In Billy's case, there might be another possibility. Is the president trying to tell Israeli Prime Minister Begin something? Billy, we suspect, would not object to being a buffoon for a purpose.

Year for retrenchment

The 69th session of Congress Monday may well be a rather contentious one if only for the fact that Congress may not have a great deal to do. President Carter is determined to reduce the federal deficit to $30 billion or less and this means that Congress simply will not have much extra money to spend. And if Congress cannot spend money, what else is there for it to do?

Well the 69th Congress could spend some time on debating non-spending items, and undoubtedly it will. The president is going to ask the Senate to ratify a new SALT II agreement with the Russians. The Senate will also have to approve the appointment of an ambassador to China. And Congress will have to adopt legislation effecting the terms of the Panama Canal Treaty, turning over administration of the Canal to Panama.

On all of these subjects conservative voices will be raised to a high-decibel level, led by Republican candidates for the presidency like Ronald Reagan, Robert Dole and Philip Crane.

On the other side of the coin liberals led by Ted Kennedy will protest loudly against the president's decision to put off any consideration of national health insurance and welfare reform. They will fight just as vigorously against cutbacks in jobless relief and other social programs.

Given the mood of the country, there will be much talk about reducing taxes, but how is that to be done and reduce the deficit at the same time? The best bet is that there may be a move to call off or postpone the marked increase in Social Security taxes due to take effect next year.

There will be general agreement between the president and Congress to do as many of the unpopular things which have to be done in 1979 and hope that voters will have forgotten about them in the election year in 1980. This is the year for retrenchment.

Mood and mission of the 96th Congress

By ROBERT F. DRINAN

It is always a moving experience to witness the first day of another Congress.

On Jan. 15, 77 new members out of 435 took the oath of office to support the Constitution and to serve the nearly 500,000 persons they will each represent.

A strong consensus has emerged that the 96th Congress is not likely to enact new programs — especially if they involve expenditures. The feeling everywhere seems to be that the forthcoming Congress will be one given to oversight of existing programs and government agencies.

One objective of the new Congress will be to economize in order to reduce sharply the budget deficit. Indeed, not a few members of the Congress are stating that the House may outdo President Carter in economy measures.

It always appears to be open season on the Congress — especially concerning the unbalanced budget. However, it is worth noting two important points which relate to the budget deficit. In the first place, a large part of our present $30 billion deficit is due to the unemployment we face. Last year the federal government reimbursed the states about $19 billion for unemployment compensation and spent about $10.5 billion more on 700,000 positions and job training programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Secondly, Congress has a responsibility to address the inflation problem not merely in terms of the deficit, but also by working to lower the alarming price rise in the necessities — health, housing and food.

Although the present time is not psychologically the moment to talk about unfulfilled needs of the American people, I feel compelled to mention my hopes that Congress will give additional funding in the following three areas:

While the U.S. government now spends about $7 billion for Basic Opportunity Grants and guaranteed loans for higher education, additional funding for these purposes is still necessary since there are thousands of middle-income parents unable to finance their youngsters' post-secondary education.

The 24 million older Americans who receive Social Security benefits have only 38 percent of their medical bills financed by Medicare. I hope that the new Congress will initiate a program that reimburses at least in part the expenses which senior citizens have for prescription drugs, eyeglasses, dental care and similar items.

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has been insufficiently sensitive to the importance of health research funding and preventive health programs. Congress, in its haste to cut the budget deficit, must not sacrifice research and prevention programs which will in the long run contribute greatly to the well-being of our citizens. Child immunization programs, smoking research and education programs, and hypertension screening are examples of the efforts of the federal government which must not be shortchanged.

The fiscally cautious mood of the Congress may prove extremely helpful to those of us who are striving to fashion a new energy policy for the United States. It is simply imperative that we cut back on our present $45 billion expenditure for foreign oil. While we actively pursue alternative sources of energy, such as solar and solid waste, we must also significantly increase the efficiency of our energy use, expand mass transit, and promote the development of our existing energy resources.

Congressman Robert Drinan represents the Fourth Congressional District, which includes Newton.

A timebomb in New England

Analysis by Frank Sargent

"A timebomb in the earth..." That's how one observer described it to me this week: hazardous waste buried all over America, 35 million tons a year, one to three million tons in New England alone.

In fact, not all the waste is buried. In Lowell, Mass. there are 20,000 barrels of waste on a site abandoned when a chemical company went broke. The barrels are falling apart. Nobody knows what they contain, but it will cost the state a million-and-a-half dollars to clean it up anyway.

In Rehoboth, Mass., dumped chemicals have turned up in water, endangering sources drawn upon by sections of Rhode Island.

In North Attleboro, radioactivity was recently detected in the earth of a playground, a site once used as a dump by area industries.

Near Niagara Falls, two sites have been found five miles apart where thousands of tons of chemical waste has been disposed over a ten year period. That situation is so bad the state has relocated more than 200 families from the area.

In a sense, these are "good" cases. The danger is known. No one knows how many dozens or hundreds or thousands of chemical dumpsites are yet unknown, threatening water supplies, endangering lives, like "timebombs in the earth..." But there's some good news about this bad news about the environment. Paul Keough, spokesman for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in this area, reports the EPA has now proposed regulations controlling the handling and disposal of wastes that include acids, caustics, explosives and toxic chemicals.

The feds will require that all hazardous wastes be identified and safely transported to sites approved by the EPA or the state, ending "midnight dumping" — disposal of unknown quantities of unknown wastes literally by the side of the road, or in a river, even in an open field.

Those firms producing waste will be required to identify its chemical makeup, track its movement to approved sites, and maintain and monitor those sites for 20 years.

Monitoring is crucial because the most alarming aspect of this problem is that buried wastes can "travel" through the soil, move into water supplies, and possibly poison thousands of people without anyone knowing what's gone wrong.

The new regulations would require clay or plastic lining to prevent such movement from landfill dumpsites, the sites would have to be 500 feet from any water source, and site owners would have to assume responsibility for $5 million for any incident of damage.

Which is fine for the future, and long overdue. But if the future is not the problem, the past certainly is, and its an even tougher one, one the federal government must confront immediately.

Meaning that while we can safeguard the chemical waste dumpsites of the future, we can't alter the past. There are dangerous dumpsites all over New England, all over America. Some of them are turning up now, by accident, as public health emergencies, in life-threatening ways.

We're finding them only when they make people sick.

The federal government must greatly enlarge its efforts to find and defuse those "timebombs" before any more of them "explode" on us.

(Former Governor Francis W. Sargent is now a Transcript columnist and a TV and radio commentator.)

Remembering the man who was Sgt. Whelan

By RICHARD BULLWINKLE

For the seventh time since last May, Newton and its citizens have suddenly lost an experienced, senior member of the police force to an accident or a fatal illness.

Last Friday, Sgt. Robert W. Whelan became the latest name added to the Newton Police Roll of Honor.

The sense of loss and stability for his family, friends and the Newton police force is still rippling out in shock waves as the reality of his passing brings changes to that void.

Later in this column you will read about his wife, Jo, and four kids, Mike Walsh and Bill, Jane and Bob Whelan.

Sgt. Whelan was a second-generation police officer from the big Irish police family (nine brothers and sisters) of the late Tom Whelan and very much alive Jenny Whelan. Except for a Navy stint, he put in 26 years on the police force for the city of Newton.

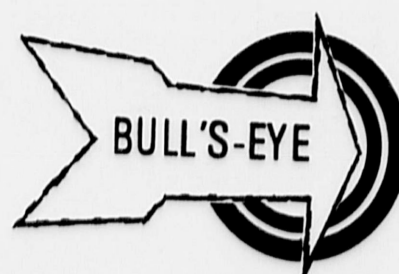

The one-dimensional reading of a life and accomplishments somehow seems to miss the mark of who and what Bob Whelan was all about.

Mayor Theodore Mann expressed grief at the loss of a man who was so intimately involved in crises in the city and worried about others before himself.

Chief Quinn quietly, but deeply affected, accepted the loss of another quality, loyal officer.

Where would the sly Celtic wit come from now?

Brother officers wondered about yet another loss to the strange hours, crazy diets and sudden stressful situations that each of them faces each time he steps out on the street. I suppose that is a kind of Sword of Damocles; an officer never knows what each day will bring, good or bad.

The real Whelan was a quiet, unassuming, knowledgeable police officer who honestly cared about people — not the richest or most powerful, but the "old-timers," or those down on their luck.

More than one stood before his bier this weekend, tears rolling down weathered cheeks, with a belt of liquid courage in some to help them say goodbye to a man who helped them when they needed a meal, a few bucks or just a ride home.

Bob lived the Christian ethic of his faith more than anyone I know.

Brother officers considered Bob Whelan a "policeman's policeman," physically tough and highly competent, who always retained his sense of humor.

Father Owens of Our Lady's pointed out in his eulogy how much better off we were for having been touched by his life. What if there were only a void?

In a larger sense, why do we wait until someone is gone before we tell him how much we like him or love him? How important were the problems he was worrying about?

The second family, the police family, surrounded Bob's family in a protective sea of blue to help them over the rough spots.

The police pallbearers, led by Captain Drew, included Officers Meredith, Kiley, DeVito, Marzilli and Akins, all long-time friends and partners over his 26-year career.

As the final salute was given on that cold Newton hillside by Chief Quinn and his comrades in law enforcement, the real loss began.

I know that I'm going to miss a good man, my brother-in-law, Bob Whelan.

Richard Bullwinkle is a former West Newton alderman.

South High athletic field

To the Editor:

I find it necessary to write and set the record clear as to my position with regards to the South High School athletic facility.

First and foremost, Mayor Mann's attempt to have the Board of Aldermen sanctify his decision to spend $340,000 on a project that during his campaign for reelection he promised the taxpayers of the City of Newton would not exceed the limit of $250,000, did not win approval.

The Board of Aldermen by its action on Jan. 11, officially took "no action" as to whether the mayor should or should not exceed his own self-imposed ceiling by the additional $90,000. The previous Board of Aldermen, of which I was not a member, gave the mayor the right to spend the $340,000 way back in 1977.

However, if I were consulted or asked to vote on the present plan, I would have recommended the elimination of the football field. By eliminating the football field, but still providing for all the other functions, track etc., the facilities could be built for $210,000, according to the City Engineer.

I know the football field is highly desirable and contributes much to the school spirit, but, as the chairman of the Public Facilities Committee, I must fit it in a priority with other competing demands of our community.

Before spring arrives I must decide whether to spend $900,000 to repair a faulty heating system in a brand new, but poorly designed and poorly built, high school. I must also decide whether to spend approximately $700,000 of the taxpayers' money on replacing dilapidated public works equipment. Also, there is an urgent need to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to bring to a safe level proven hazardous health and safety conditions that exist in our city maintenance garages which are presently affecting the health and lives of our municipal employees. We have recently been forced to spend $1 million to bring one of our oldest grammar schools up to liveable standards. All this when the school population is diminishing and schools are being closed.

If there is one message that I hear clearly from every section of the community it is: "Mr. Alderman, be very, very careful how you spend our money, we cannot afford new taxes."

With all these demands and pressures in mind, I find it difficult to spend the additional $130,000 for the football field which will be used only for home football games totalling three hours a day, approximately seven-ten days a year. I know what the field means to the students at South High and they are right in working hard seeking aldermanic votes to build the facility, but, I would hope that they can understand that my resistance to the expenditure is not because their need of the field is not valid. It is, but, if I am to be responsible and work within the fiscal restraint imposed upon me by the demands from our entire community, I simply feel we cannot afford it.

Ald. Richard McGrath,
Ward 4

Dedham St. sewer

To the Editor:

We have informed the Newton assessors that we intend to place our real estate taxes into an escrow account until we receive the services we are entitled to, the same as every other taxpayer.

During the past two years we have had a sewage overflow in our basement. It enters through a basement sink, the washing machine, and flows all over the floor. It has already ruined a playroom floor, furniture, and other items kept in the basement.

Each time it occurs, it becomes necessary to disinfect the basement. At one time the Sewer Department which is well aware of our problem, was kind enough to drop off a bottle of disinfectant for our usage, and informed us that we had a problem and nothing could be done to alleviate this situation.

Upon investigation it has been discovered that this overflow is due to the building of new homes in the area without additional sewer lines. The sewer lines are over 100 years old and yet when Dedham Street was recently repaved, these antiquated and overtaxed lines were not replaced.

This health problem will spread to other homes in the Dedham Street area unless remedial measures are taken immediately. Another home in this area already has the same problem. The mayor of Newton and the water commissioner are aware of this health hazard.

We believe that the residents to Dedham Street should be informed of what they have to look forward to in their homes in the very near future.

General Singlaub

To the Editor:

In connection with The Graphic's item regarding Retired Major General John K. Singlaub's appearance in our area this week, I submit that The Graphic does serious damage...no doubt inadvertently—to the cause of journalistic fairness.

You report that General Singlaub "will speak about the incredibly dangerous pending SALT II treaty." This important proposal may strike General Singlaub as "incredibly dangerous," but there are millions of Americans who regard it quite essential and pray for adoption of the treaty.

General Singlaub is certainly entitled to his views and to a notice in The Graphic that he is speaking in Newton; but by accepting the press release as it apparently was sent to you and publishing it as a news item without making it clear by using quotation marks that the denigration of efforts to pass the SALT II treaty should be attributed to the general and not to The Graphic, you misled some readers.

This may seem a trivial matter. But this nation will soon be locked in grave debate over the treaty; and as the so-called "Coalition For Peace Through Strength," represented by General Singlaub, sounds all the bugles of public opinion to defeat the treaty, press vigilance is imperative.

Let those who wish to harken to the call of General Singlaub do so; but please let the rest of us who have not forgotten General Dwight Eisenhower's indictment of the military—industrial complex have newspaper reporting free of press-agency adjectives.

Robert E. Segal,
Newton Highlands

(Editor's Note: The writer is correct. The words "incredibly dangerous" should have been deleted as part of routine editing, and were not. We apologize.)

FOR HANDICAPPED children, summer can be boring. Not so in Houston, Tx., where the March of Dimes sponsors a camp for youngsters with special needs. Counselor Billy Folts joins Iris Shuler for crafts. Other activities include swimming and dramatics. The March of Dimes aim is birth defects prevention.

Opinions Equal services

To the Editor:

We have resided in Newton since 1949 and during this period observed many homes being built and occupied by new neighbors.

This process in itself does not cause any neighborhood problems. However, in the zeal of public officials to issue building permits, it appears that they neglected to take into consideration the "old," overburdened sewer system passing in front of our house at 859 Dedham St.

It would also appear as though they did not take into consideration the water table nor the conservation of wetlands which normally consume excess surface water. This excess surface water and the many newly constructed houses tying into the old overburdened sewer system have caused serious problems in our neighborhood which have become noticeable for the past couple of years.

Our house is located in the lower part of Dedham Street and as explained to us by the Newton Sewer Department, when the sewer system gets overloaded the sewerage backs up to the lowest part of the street, i.e. the area in front of our house and the houses on both sides of us, causing the sewerage to back up into our house.

This has happened in various occasions. We, as citizens and taxpayers of Newton, are entitled to the same services all other citizens and taxpayers get. Among these services is "adequate" sewerage system. Having lived in this house for the past 30 years we have seen this problem get progressively worse. The problem has become particularly acute since construction of the Esty Farm property which eliminated wetlands and the building of houses on the perimeter of the Peabody School. Whenever we have heavy rains or snow thaw creating surface water which cannot be naturally absorbed, we have a sewerage backup.

It is our contention that a study and enlargement of this system or a separate sewer system for the new homes should have taken place before this problem occurred. Inasmuch as this problem is present, we insist that the city forthwith use whatever means would be necessary for temporary relief and for permanent correction and until such improvement is made, further home building in our area should cease. This would include the contemplated construction planned on the Peabody School property and further along Dedham Street in the Marley property.

Inasmuch as our complaints have been ignored and have gone unheeded, we have no course of action left, except: going to the media, instituting a tax strike by paying our real estate taxes directly into an appropriate escrow account, and as suggested by our attorney, wherever appropriate seeking injunctive relief by halting further construction in our area.

Alternative Home

To the Editor:

The Board of Directors and the staff of the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association would like to applaud the staff and the residents of "Alternative Home," transitional community residences for adults who have emotional problems.

We have had the opportunity to work closely with this community resource which offers supportive group living experiences and which serves as an interim step towards independent living, for many of our residents who temporarily require a protected environment.

We recognize that all new programs and methods of delivering service have obstacles to overcome. Resolution of problems are made easier when community commitment and support are recognized.

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Needham area serviced by these homes are fortunate that a far-sighted group of concerned citizens developed and implemented this program. As we gaze into the future, both within this state and this country, the community based residence as an alternate strategy becomes a priority goal. Alternative Home is an excellent example and leader in this field. It deserves all of the appreciation and support that the communities can offer. The Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association recognizes, appreciates and applauds this vital service.

Two Chinas

To the Editor:

Communist China's friendship is suspect as is that country's designs on Taiwan. Why else should we be obliged to sever diplomatic relations with our allies if a future take-over is not part of a Communist scheme?

Up to a point, President Carter's position is understandable. Red China represents a great part of the world's population and good relations are a prerequisite for peace. Renouncing our friends before the world has done much to lessen our credibility.

Doing the right thing is seldom easy, but surely some way could have been found to keep our relations with the two Chinas in balance.

CD services allocations increased

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

The Planning & Development Board decided last week to allot 17.2 percent of the proposed community development budget next year to human services, an increase from 12.3 in fiscal 1979.

The Human Service Committee requested $634,600 or almost 30 per cent of the total budget. In its first pass through the figures, the Planning & Development (P&D) board wittled the numbers down to 21.5 percent. In an effort to make additional cuts, it pared the figure down to $390,000.

Of this amount the board allotted $140,000 to direct social service programs, which include day care scholarships and mental health services. Neighborhoods, such as Nonantum, wishing to fund directors for their own multiservice centers, will have to apply to the Human Service Committee to be funded from the $140,000. If Nonantum wins such funding the P&D board members want the director's salary paid by community development funds for only one year.

"If we fund a coordinator, what happens when the funds are gone?" asked board member David Lurensky. Lurensky was referring to the possibility that the federal government may limit aid eventually eliminate the community development program.

The coordinator will have to find other funding sources to make the multiservice center self-supporting, board Chairman Margaret Smith said. Much of the increase in the human services budget, according to Mrs. Smith, will be seed money to help organizations, such as the multiservice center, to become self-sustaining.

A concern was also voiced that Nonantum might not be able to maintain its multiservice center once it is built. The center is slated to include the Hawthorne Gym plus an addition to be built adjacent to the gym.

If the community is unable to maintain the building, the city will have to, which would mean cutting back in other city-provided services, Community Development Director Stephen Andrews said. The city, which will eventually own the building and lease it at a nominal fee, could make maintenance a condition of the lease, he added.

The Nonantum multiservice center may eventually be the city's monument to the community development program just as libraries across the country are to the Carnegie Foundation, said board member Harry Crosby.

Nevertheless, board cut $100,000 for this year's funds for the building. Rough estimates indicate Nonantum will need $550,000 to build a 10,000 square-foot addition to the Hawthorne Gym. It already has $220,000 from last year's community development budget.

The cut will hopefully encourage Nonantum to explore the possibility of using slightly less space or to decrease some of the construction costs through some other means, Mrs. Smith said. At the very least, she added, it should make the community hurry along through its design phase to obtain firmer estimates in time for the 1981 budget allocations.

The board also decided to make funds for a temporary multiservice center a separate line item for Nonantum. While it did not take this action with other neighborhoods, it felt there is a long commitment to sustain Nonantum's center until a permanent one can be built.

The board felt so strongly transportation would help alleviate the need for each neighborhood to have its own multiservice center, that it chose to make a transportation study a separate line item. Originally it was part of the Human Service Committee's direct funding request.

For anyone wishing to comment on the board's proposed budget, it is not too late. There will be a public hearing on Jan. 31. After the hearing the board will then review the budget again.

Planning Board favors funding housing rehabilitation

Guided by a major interest in housing related projects, the Planning & Development Board proposed last week to allocate 12 per cent of next year's community development budget to housing rehabilitation.

With $140,000 from the previous years, the rehabilitation program will have available $440,000. Of this amount, $140,000 will be for administrative costs.

The rehabilitation program gives those who qualify grants or low interest loans for improvements to their houses. With a proposed staff of three, Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund (NRHF) Director Gerald Early estimates the program can process and implement 140 applications a year. This projection does not include implementation of other programs, such as the commercial improvement program, which will also come under NRHF's domain.

The rigid requirements for processing applications and overseeing work are keeping the NRHF's completion figures low, according to Community Development Director Stephen Andrews. Hopefully, some means can be found to streamline the operation, he said later.

Turning to the historic heritage requests, the board proposed $78,000. This allocation includes $50,000 for a historic preservation revolving fund.

This fund would allow the Historic Commission leverage to purchase a house and to restore it. Once the construction work is completed, the commission would sell the building and use the proceeds from the sale to buy another house.

Another proposal whose funds were whittled down was the economic development activities program. This program is expected to be the outcome of the survey and study of Needham Street. It is hoped that this study will eventually result in both more jobs and a greater tax base for the city, Andrews said.

Money from next year's budget could be spent to have an economic coordinator do an analysis of the area, Andrews said. The community development money may be the seed money to allow the city to obtain more grants for improving Needham Street, he added.

Board member David Lurensky was especially interested that the city end up with more than just a lot of analyses. "We suffer from paralysis from analysis," he said.

The board allocated $40,000 for all community development corporations (CDC) throughout the city. Presently only Newton Corner has a CDC, but other communities are considering starting them.

"It is necessary to look at every CDC proposal independently," City Planner Juris G. Alksnitis said. The term is becoming a catchall and a fad, he said. Community Development Corporations have worked in other cities, said Judith Beran of the Planning Department. To be successful, each must have a strong board, she added. The board liked the CDC concept. It saw each as having the potential of becoming self-sustaining.

Peabody School sale stays with Leventhal

The sale of the old Peabody School to Edward Leventhal in association with Jung-Brannen architects will proceed as planned, Mayor Theodore Mann said this week, despite charges by an alderman that another developer's proposal would be more advantageous to the city.

The mayor said Monday that after reviewing the proposal for conversion of the building to housing submitted by Chestnut Development Associates he will stick with his first choice, Leventhal.

The former city-owned school will be converted to 22 condominium apartments, including two reserved for low-income occupants.

The Board of Aldermen set the minimum sale price of the 12-acre property at $400,000 but Mayor Mann negotiated that figure up to $420,000 with Leventhal (not $425,000 as he first reported).

Chestnut Development had offered $500,000 but through a misunderstanding had neglected to say in its proposal that it intended to comply with the low-income housing provision.

That problem was cleared up two weeks ago. The return to the city between the two plans is very small, the mayor said, and the design layout and complete package offered by Leventhal are more desirable.

Letters have been sent to the two other developers telling them Leventhal has been awarded the sale, the mayor said.

Women's track team will have meets at Newton North

Newton North High School's women's track team will compete in home facilities next year following the School Department's resolution of a year-old complaint about unequal facilities for men and women athletes.

Newton North senior Lauren Jones first complained to the School Committee last January about the women's track team competing at a Brookline facility where there are no starting blocks or lines for the track. The men's track team competes in the "simulated outdoor area" at Newton North that has a specially designed track.

Mrs. Jones, daughter of School Committee member Katherine Jones and a member of the Student Advisory Committee to the School Committee, this year filed a complaint under Chapter 622 of the state laws which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex, race, religion, or national origin.

Newton North Athletic Director James Ronayne told the School Committee that last spring he volunteered the use of North's facility to the other athletic directors in the Suburban Athletic League, but they decided to have the meets in Brookline.

Women's indoor track is now in its third season, Ronayne said, and it has grown "immensely" since last year.

A survey of athletic directors from six other towns that the women's team competes against found that three of them feel the Brookline facility is "unequal," and all but Brookline agreed to play at Newton North next year.

Of the three remaining meets this year, the undefeated Newton North team will take on the undefeated Brookline team in Newton on Feb. 3.

However, the Weymouth meet will have to take place in Brookline as had been scheduled because those students work on Saturday when the North facility would be available.

The women are scheduled to play Brockton Thursday, Jan. 25, but Ronayne was not sure if that meet could fit into the schedule for the North facility which is also used by Newton South High School teams. Lauren Jones said after the School Committee meeting Monday night that she was satisfied with the solution worked out by Ronayne.

North asbestos tests negative

The latest test for asbestos and other airborne particles at Newton North High School was negative, the School Committee learned Monday night, but a wipe test for dust particles by the state Division of Occupational Hygiene raised more questions than it answered.

The test for air-borne materials taken Dec. 22 at Newton North High School in six locations by David Leith, Sc.D. of Harvard, found that the air inside the school has fewer fibers in it than the air that has been measured outside the school.

It is not known if the fibers measured during the test were asbestos or other material, but results of a previous test were examined with an electron microscope and no asbestos particles were found.

Leith said in his report, "I do not believe a significant health hazard exists due to asbestos fibers in the air at the school at this time."

Division of Hygiene inspector Karen Irving took wipe samples from ceiling-level wooden slats on Main Street and in the cafeteria which are below the pipes and beams that were sprayed with asbestos when the school was built.

The test found that "fibrous insulation material" was on the slats in both locations and on top of some lockers, but it did not state whether the material was asbestos.

The School Committee found the report inconclusive, and asked that Leith be requested to perform wipe tests and analyze the results to determine if there is asbestos flaking off.

School Committee transfers funds

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The School Committee looked at a revised budget for the current year to approve fund transfers from accounts with a surplus to accounts with a deficit.

But the total deficit was $269,000 larger than the surplus, so the members voted to dip into a special education reimbursement account to pay for $162,000 in special education expenses and $108,000 in health insurance premiums.

James Egan, director of budget and accounting for the School Department, said the transfer request from the special education reimbursement account is appropriate because it is money paid back by the state for money Newton has already spent.

The transfers in the school budget amounting to $267,000 were completed by the School Committee's vote Monday night to take care of deficits in the fuel, utilities, transportation, and unemployment compensation accounts.

The remaining $269,000 transfer from the special education reimbursement account will have to be approved by the Board of Aldermen since the account is under the purview of City Comptroller Lawrence Marino, not the School Department.

Marino said Tuesday after hearing of the School Committee's action, "I don't see anything wrong with that" as long as the special education students' needs are taken care of.

Technically the transfer of the money in the reimbursement account to the school budget will take three steps. First the Board is asked to approve spending $162,000 for special education tuitions and for the EdCo preschool program.

Then the remaining $110,041 is scheduled to be transferred to the city surplus account, and finally the Board is asked to appropriate $107,000 to the School Department from city surplus for health insurance premiums.

School Budget Director Egan said that although the money was given to Newton and earmarked for special education, "the money is sitting dead" because the new Chapter 70 reimbursement law lumps all school reimbursements together and allows that money to be spent for the schools in general.

Last year the School Committee requested and received a $1.2 million supplementary budget from the Board to cover salary increases and special education, utilities, and cafeteria expenses. At that time the School Department also made note of the $255,000 additional reimbursement the city received for special education beyond what was expected.

This year the total school budget was $34.9 million before this supplemental request.

In justifying the increased expenses projected through the end of this fiscal year that ends June 30, Egan said there was nothing added to the budget for anticipated fuel increases. Fuel and utility accounts are expected to run $157,000 over what was budgeted.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield premiums rose 17 percent in January, the first increase in two years, and the Harvard Health Plan rose 7.8 percent this year.

The main savings in the budget, $215,000 of the $267,000 surplus, came from the salary account. Some positions, such as custodial jobs, have not been filled this year, and other savings came from hiring new people at lower salaries than the people they replace.

Ms. Green selected

Carol J. Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Green of Newton, has been selected by New England Telephone to attend a 15-week executive program in business management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Sloan School of Management.

Ms. Green, a district manager in the corporate planning department at the telephone company's headquarters in Boston, is responsible for supervising the administration and collection of information dealing with antitrust matters for use by the company's legal department.

Ms. Green graduated from Simmons College and the Hebrew College in Brookline, both in 1970. She is an active alumnae of both Colleges.

$1400 deducted by schools for bus service problems

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius said Monday more than $1400 has been deducted from the regular payment to Metropolitan Coach Company for failure to provide some service bus ice in the beginning of the month.

Metropolitan Coach, the parent company of the Garden City Bus Company, is still under contract with the city although it has reportedly backed out of other school bus contracts in neighboring cities and towns.

School Committee Chairwoman Honora Kaplan is concerned that many of the buses now in use do not have the two-way radios and high-back seats called for in the Newton contract.

Last week a bus without a radio broke down in Chestnut Hill and the bus driver was about to leave elementary students on the bus unattended to seek help. A mother of one of the children was passing in her car and stopped to stay with the children while the driver called for help.

Mrs. Kaplan said she considers the two-way radios "a safety factor" and the Committee "will not tolerate them continuing (to run buses) without them."

Cornelius said about two-thirds of the 45 buses needed every day do not have the radios or high-back seats. The seats Newton contracted for are three inches higher than those required by federal law.

The money withheld from the company for service from Jan. 2 to 12 was the result of buses not being supplied as needed, not a penalty for the lack of radios or special seats.

City Solicitor Daniel Funk said that although the lack of radios and proper seats is "technically speaking, a breach of the contract," the city is trying to get the company to meet the contract without taking it to court.

Benjamin Goodman, owner of the company, could not be reached Monday or Tuesday for comment on how long the firm will continue transporting 3000 Newton students.

Solicitor Funk said the future of service has been uncertain since two weeks ago, and the company could go out of business tomorrow or last until the end of the year.

If Metropolitan Coach folds, the cost of bus service for the students would be higher, Funk and Cornelius said.

The School Department has contingency plans that ideally will ensure uninterrupted service for elementary students and no more than two days without buses for secondary students.

Auburndale Club sold to theatre group

After months of negotiations, the sale of the Auburndale Club building is final, and it is now the home of a professional theatre group, the Turtle Lane Players.

Because the new owners are a professional group, they needed a use variance from the Zoning Board. They were granted the variance several weeks ago, and the official ownership exchange of took place Wednesday morning.

The Turtle Lane Players, a Dover-based touring group of about 30 men and women, was formed in May of 1977. Their past productions include, "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ, Superstar." Now that their home is at 283 Melrose St., Auburndale, they hope to involve Newton residents in their productions through open auditions.

All is not lost for the Auburndale Club, however. The Club will continue to hold their popular dinner dances in their old home.

Some of the conditions placed on the use variance included that seating must be limited to 200 persons, no other activity can take place while the theatre is in use. The Players must prepare a revised parking and landscaping plan to be reviewed by the director of Planning and Development within three years and "theatre" must mean live performances.

The Players plan to do rehabilitation work on the inside of the building, including heating and plumbing repairs.

Collisions, trees cramp drivers' styles

A car driven by Wayne M. DeVaughn, 21, 30 Reed St., Randolph, was forced into a chain link fence at the Newton Courthouse Saturday at 12:59 a.m., while attempting to avoid a car coming out of the courthouse parking lot.

Driving the second car was John McGrath Jr., 39, 69 Springfield St., Watertown, who was arrested at the scene and charged with operating a vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Two cars collided at the intersection of Cabot Street and Eastside Parkway early Saturday morning. Donato Colino, 75, 51 Green St., Newton, told police he was unable to avoid colliding with Jan H. Thall, 119 Blake St., Newton.

Two drivers, having trouble with the slippery roads, skidded into a utility pole and a tree and were treated for bruises and abrasions.

On Saturday morning, Robert W. Conchiglia, 28, 3512 Stearns Hill Rd., Waltham, said he was traveling down Watertown Street, and, to avoid hitting a vehicle, skidded on the snowy road into an Edison pole. TRAFFIC, Newton 33333

Monday at 9 a.m., Rebecca Tchiftidjian, 58, of West Newton, was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital for bruises and abrasions, after her car skidded on some ice on Commonwealth Avenue near Islington Road, and hit a tree.

How to make a McDonald's Big Mac sandwich at home.

In Theory It Could Be Done.
Everyone knows the recipe: "Two beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles, onions on a sesame seed bun."
But can you really make a McDonald's Quality Big Mac sandwich at home?
In theory, yes. In reality, here's what you'd have to do:

Sirloin, Too?

Your first test will be meat selection. McDonald's uses nothing but 100% pure beef (no fillers) from selected cuts, including the chuck, round, and sirloin.
And make it lean — leaner than the ground beef most people buy.

Use Only Quality Ingredients.

Buns are baked to exact specifications (including number and placement of sesame seeds) and inspected at each delivery for size, shape, slicing, taste and freshness.

The cheese is not available at your grocery store. It is McDonald's special-process American, made to our order.

Lettuce, pickles, onions are the highest-quality McDonald's professional buyers can find.
And then there's the special sauce.

Sorry, Can't Tell.

The recipe took many years to develop. We'd really like to give it to you, but it's a closely-guarded secret. You might possibly duplicate it (after some years' time) with your own crash research program.

Install Special Equipment.

Now that you have all the ingredients, you will need some special equipment. A bun toaster, for example. And, of course, a calibrated grill with thermostat probes for precise cooking control.

Sharpen Your Spatula.

When cooking, everything must proceed like clockwork. Patties are seared after a few seconds to seal in the juices. Because of the searing they must be turned with a spatula sharpened and re-sharpened to a knife edge.

Is Your Sandwich Properly Dressed?

Meantime, the sandwich is "dressed," which is our term for assembling ingredients on the bun in proper style and order, the object being to create a masterpiece that looks as good as it tastes.

The Final Test.

Serve hot and fresh or don't serve it at all. That's a McDonald's Quality Big Mac.
And, in theory, you could make it at home.
But wouldn't it be better if you went to McDonald's?

Mofenson files bill on school closing impact

A bill which would require a school committee to prepare a Neighborhood Impact Statement before closing a school has been filed in the legislature by State Reps. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) and Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton) on behalf of a Newton citizens group.

Newton Citizens for Neighborhood Schools drafted the bill after a non-binding referendum, instructing Mofenson to vote for such a bill if filed, was passed by his district's voters 2 to 1 last November.

The bill would require that an impact statement be prepared describing all alternatives to the closing, all attendant costs, and impacts on the affected neighborhoods. In preparing statements, a school committee must seek assistance of municipal planning officials, schedule public hearings and set up any other procedure necessary to insure that all relevant community concerns are raised and addressed.

Brian Yates, legislative director of NCNS, who with technical assistance from Rep. Mofenson's staff, drew up the bill said that he intends to gain support for the bill from neighborhood groups in other communities that have been faced with school closings.

"The neighborhood impact of school closings is clearly an issue of statewide significance," Yates said in a press release, "and we will work to build a coalition of groups that have come to understand the issue through their own bitter experience."

The NCNS, a citywide coalition with representatives from each of the seven villages of Newton, was formed last April during the controversy over the closing of Hamilton and Emerson Schools. The group advocates among other ideas, a comprehensive plan covering all possible educational and community uses of each school building during the 1980's, including the possible creation of school-community centers in which excess school space is rented to compatible community groups.

CD budgets

Some money should be spent in the low and moderate income neighborhoods, he added.

Newton Highlands requested $45,000 for housing development site support and $227,500 for its neighborhood revitalization program. The board proposed $30,000, and $100,000, respectively. It is hoping the village will use the $100,000 to implement its plans for improving the commercial section of Walnut Street in the Highlands.

For Newton Upper Fall, the P&D board proposed $75,000 for the Pettee

Square project, $25,000 for a funding program for the historic district on Chestnut Street, and $10,000 for preservation of features on historic homes in the village.

Some board members found Newtonville's projects for sitting areas, a tot lot, and street beautification lackluster. While it was tempted to allocate $50,000 to the village, it chose to budget $75,000 since it was proposing $85,000 for Thompsonville.

Thompsonville's $85,000 allocation was a cut from a requested $270,000. While paring down the figure, the board chose to eliminate money for paving Beecher Terrace, since it would only benefit a few families. It also eliminated some money from the sidewalk funding request and wiped out allocations for a design study for improving the neighborhood's water pressure.

Although Newton Lower Falls originally asked for $50,000, the request was later withdrawn. Most of the target area falls within the Lower Falls Urban Renewal project area, which still has a surplus fund of $427,000.

Rufo

cerned that the motors were running because, "last year we lost two city vehicles like that."

Rufo claimed, however, that since the Mayor had called a snow emergency, he felt his pick-up was an emergency vehicle and therefore, like police, could keep the truck's motor running while he went in to get a "slice of pizza and a can of tonic."

It was pointed out that according to the statutes, city trucks are not emergency vehicles.

"I didn't think that was the proper thing for him (Officer Putnam) to do," said Rufo. "I was tired, we were both tired."

During a press conference Monday, Mayor Mann described the union president's arrest as "rotten," and a "situation totally uncalled for." He said it was an "action the city should not be particularly proud of."

When asked by Judge Basbas why he refused to show Putnam his license, Rufo said, "I thought that nobody has the right to open anyone's vehicle and turn off the engine and take the keys." Judge Basbas told Rufo it was well within a policeman's prerogative to do so.

Rufo said he thought the officer was doing his duty, and that he thought he was also doing his.

If, however, Rufo had turned over his license to Officer Putnam, some of the confusion that existed in district court wouldn't have happened.

Since this was the court's first case involving an arrest on an arrest for a non-criminal violation, proper court procedure wasn't already established. According to the new laws, these non-criminal violations, if the violator chooses as Rufo did, are to be heard before a magistrate. But, Rufo's arrest complicated matters.

In an emergency conference before Tuesday's first session began, Judge Basbas, Court Clerk Henry H. Shultz, and Assistant Clerk James Waldron decided that in the event of an arrest on technically non-criminal violations, the alleged violator would, now and in the future, appear before the judge for a non-criminal hearing. So, minutes before the session began, Rufo's hearing was hurriedly added to Judge Basbas's list of cases.

When Rufo's case was called, the judge still wasn't certain as to the proper procedure. "This is the first case we've had under this new law," said Basbas. "I have to take five minutes to review this."

When the judge returned, he affirmed that since Rufo had been arrested, it was under his authority to hear the case and the trial began.

Commenting after the case was over, Clerk Shultz called the arrest of the PWD's union president "an unfortunate set of circumstances. Two men were fighting the snow storm and they were tired. No one wanted to back down."

Junior highs committed to mix of student abilities

Newton's junior high schools are committed to teaching students of varying abilities in the same class, and will continue to do so for the next three or four years, Assistant Superintendent for Program Norman Colb told the School Committee Monday night.

At a meeting in Bigelow Junior High School with about 75 persons attending, Colb and the five junior high principals outlined their problems and goals to the School Committee.

School Committee Chairwoman Honora Kaplan had asked the six men to consider three questions for the meeting. She asked about the overall objectives for junior high students, whether there is a discrete curriculum for schools or just a "watered down" version of high school courses, and what changes they would like to see in the next five years.

Meadowbrook Junior High Principal Irwin Freedman addressed problems of the two-year junior high school in 1981 when Weeks Junior High closes and Newton South becomes a four-year high school.

There have been some meetings with Weeks and Meadowbrook teachers of the same subjects to discuss what they value most in their courses, Freedman said.

One thing that will be missing in a two-year junior high is the "luxury" of having students three years that has allowed for an "evolutionary" program based on the students' needs' the Meadowbrook principal said.

In addressing the overall goals of the junior highs, Assistant Superintendent Colb said the schools should be an extension of elementary school learning with additional vocational skills taught in industrial arts and home economics.

It should be a "skill centered curriculum" that allows students more choice in their courses as they get older. Junior high students should also be free to experiment somewhat with allowances for "nonfatal failure," Colb said.

Realizing impending staff reductions due to declining enrollment and the School Committee's order to the superintendent to present a budget at the same amount as this year's, the principals made pleas for summer workshops and other staff development programs.

Warren Junior High School science teacher Frances Weiss said she was in a summer workshop last year to learn of new ways of teaching gifted students, and is now using experimental "contract units" with advanced students that allow them to progress with a more challenging curriculum at their own pace.

Warren Junior High Principal Thomas Lynn said those workshops are needed for developing ways of dealing with individual students' needs in classes with students of different ability.

Colb said in three to four years he will know if the extra effort being taken now to stimulate gifted children in regular classes is successful. Until then he is not willing to have children "tracked" according to ability, except as is now being done in math classes.

School Committeewoman Sandra Fleishman said she has twice been told by parents that teachers said they could not get textbooks needed for classes.

Mrs. Fleishman said she later found out that there is money available for textbooks, and the teachers in these cases really felt the texts were not appropriate for the classes.

Assistant Superintendent Colb reassured the School Committee that "there is enough money for textbooks in all courses for which textbooks are needed."

"We do have a central spine" of materials, Colb said, but he could "absolutely" use more to expand and individualize the curriculum.

Storm

businesses on Watertown Street in West Newton Square, Howley said.

Civil Defense and Red Cross crews were also out with a combined total of about 25 people.

Deputy Police Chief Jay Moskowitz, head of the Civil Defense and Auxiliary Police and Fire units, said the flooding Sunday was "the worst I've seen in eight years."

Moskowitz was critical of people who went sightseeing in their cars and took unnecessary trips to stores.

"If people hear of storm warnings, why don't they stay home?" he asked.

Oftentimes his people in Auxiliary Police cruisers had to stop in the middle of flooded streets to allow people trapped in stalled cars to walk over into the cruiser's back seat.

The CD rescue truck pulled about four to five cars from flooded streets, Moskowitz said, and his crew worked with Red Cross disaster workers to help pump out flooded cellars.

John Cicciu, head of the Red Cross disaster team, said his volunteers assured Newton Corner residents without electricity that the Red Cross would help out with food or other necessities if the need arose. There were no calls for their help.

Both the Red Cross and CD crews were preparing Tuesday night for more flooding problems from rain that was being forecast for Wednesday afternoon and evening.

which will contain something less than the 40 house lots originally proposed because of difficulties with drainage that still have to be worked out.

Friedman said he is going to make the subdivision with the streets, sewerage and utilities and sell house lots. He will retain some control over the design of the houses but will not engage in building the houses.

The six house lots on Dedham Street at Parker do not fall under subdivision control, and foundation work has begun there.

The builder, Meritt Homes, Inc., could not be located in telephone books and so could not comment on an "order to remove a hazard" issued by the Newton Building Department in regard to unattended and unfenced excavations.

Revised subdivision plans will be reviewed by the Planning Board acting as a board of survey.

Approval in this case may require both a covenant in the deed to assure that the subdivision is completed as approved and a financial bond, according to Planning Board Chairman Margaret Smith. Usually either a bond or a covenant is enough.

Energy can be saved anytime, everywhere

From the U.S. Department of Energy
Energy demand is growing much faster than domestic supply. Demand must be restrained through conservation and fuel efficiency. Currently the situation is more critical due to the loss of production from the oil fields in Iran. Steps to conserve can be taken immediately with little effort and at little or no cost. They will save dollars while they are saving fuel.

For Business

Lower temperatures to 65 degrees during the day and to 55 degrees at night. Energy savings of 5 percent can be achieved for each degree of reduction.

Reduce lighting by 50 percent as a temporary measure. Consolidate offices where possible and turn off lights and heat in unused spaces. Turn off decorative lighting and outdoor signs.

Save gasoline by keeping vehicles in peak condition and tires at maximum safe inflation, using improved lubricants, and replacing worn tires with radials. Drivers should observe speed limits and avoid idling engines. Deliveries should be consolidated to reduce trips.

Encourage carpooling by offering priority parking, adjusting work hour shifts where needed, and assisting in matching rides and riders.

Curtain building use at nights and on weekends except for essential functions.

Residential Heating

Space heating is by far the largest use of energy at home. You can achieve considerable savings in this use by following a few simple steps. Here's how:

1. Keep the indoor temperature at 65 degrees during the day, except when there are older people or those with health problems in the home (many older people cannot tolerate temperatures below 68 degrees).

2. Lower thermostats to 55 degrees at night and add an extra blanket. Or use an electric blanket, which uses very little energy compared to furnace needs.

3. Close off unused or underused rooms.

4. Open blinds in the daytime to let the sunshine in; close them at night.

5. Tape cracks around doors and windows until you can install permanent caulking and storm windows.

If you are willing to spend some money now to ensure considerable fuel saving in the future, consider improving your present oil furnace. Home oil burners often are oversized. Installing an appropriate-sized nozzle at a cost of between $50 and $100 could save as much as 8 percent in fuel use. Replacing your existing burners with high-speed flame-retention head burners at a cost of $200 to $350 should cut fuel use by about 16 percent.

Residential Hot Water

1. Turn your water heater thermostat down to the "normal" (140 degrees) or lowest setting (110-120 degrees). If your dishwasher does not clean as efficiently at the lower setting, you can compensate by careful pre-rinsing. If you wash dishes by hand, use dishpans instead of running water.

2. Take shorter showers and add a flow restrictor to the shower head.

3. Use cold water in the washing machine it works well for most loads.

4. Wrap insulation around hot water pipes and the water heater to stop heat loss, but be careful not to block heater air vents.

Residential Lights and Appliances

1. If you have a refrigerator (one in every seven homes does), empty and unplug it.

2. If you have a separate freezer, open it as infrequently as possible.

3. Reduce the number of times you use your clothes dryer by planning your wash loads.

4. If you have an electric dishwasher, turn off the drying cycle, open door, and let the dishes dry in the kitchen air. Heat from the machine also will help warm the room.

5. Unplug instant-on TVs when not in use. Even when turned off, they continue to use 10 percent of the energy they draw when turned on.

6. Take the time now to replace large light bulbs with smaller ones and, where possible, to remove bulbs that are not absolutely necessary. Switch off lights in unoccupied rooms. Use fluorescent lights as much as possible; they are three times more efficient than incandescents.

7. Use your electric oven less often. Prepare more stove-top meals, and use smaller "toaster ovens" when possible.

Transportation

1. Avoid fast acceleration. Sudden bursts of speed are great gasoline wasters.

2. Anticipate traffic conditions and reduce or avoid unnecessary braking. Watch all activity on the road and predict what is going to happen in the moments ahead. Slow down in good time.

3. Develop the habit of driving with a steady foot on the accelerator.

4. Make one trip do the work of two or more. Combine short trips; you save time, gasoline and money.

5. Drive no faster than the legal speed limits on the highway. The 55 mph limit is a fuel-saving as well as life-saving law, and the President has urged local and state authorities to step up its enforcement.

6. Carpool with your neighbors or fellow workers when possible.

7. Use public transportation if it is available.

8. Keep tires inflated to the safe pressure recommended by the tire manufacturer.

9. If you have been putting off getting a needed tuneup, do it now. This could avoid the gasoline loss that occurs in an inefficient engine.

10. When changing engine oil, consider the improved types now on the market. They save gasoline.

Kennedy raps Carter cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says President Carter is putting the burden of budget cuts on the poor. Carter says he's increasing aid to the poor by $4.5 billion.

That is one of many issues raised by Carter's proposed $531.6 billion federal budget for 1980 in its first day on Capitol Hill.

The fact Kennedy is a potential Carter rival for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1980 makes it a political as well as a budget issue.

"The fact is," Kennedy said in a statement issued by his office Monday, "that the administration's budget asks the poor, the black, the sick, the young, the cities and the unemployed to bear a disproportionate share of the billions of dollars of reductions in federal spending that are necessary if the target, which I support, of a budget deficit below $30 billion is to be reached."

The administration has compiled a list of programs "for the poor," totaling $63.8 billion in the current fiscal year and rising to $68.5 billion in Carter's 1980 budget, an increase of slightly more than the $4.5 billion Carter cited in a recent news conference.

Semantically, the issue is unresolvable. No one agrees which programs are "for the poor." Some congressional aides questioned whether the administration's list should have included urban development grants or should have omitted certain health services.

But the issue is broader. Kennedy faulted Carter's budget for making cuts — either absolute or below the level needed to keep up with inflation — in areas such as medical and nursing schools, basic medical research, jobs, education, and food and nutrition.

Registration material is available by writing to BACE, Box 202, Newton 02158, or by calling the special conference line, 527-7944 Monday through Friday, 1-4 p.m. or Monday evening 7-9 p.m.

Rosary Academy

Rosary Academy has open house on Feb. 4

In observation of Catholic Schools Week, Rosary Academy, 130 Lexington St., Watertown, is planning an open house on Sunday, Feb. 4 from 2 to 5 p.m.

Drawing from the Archdiocesan theme of the week, "The Family," Rosary Academy will emphasize its educational programs that give students a solid Christian education from kindergarten through high school and prepare them for college or the business world.

During the afternoon, tours through the school will be provided for parents and prospective students with all teachers available for discussion of classroom programs and curricula. Displays of materials related to the religious education, art, language, reading and math programs are planned.

Rosary Academy was founded in 1911 by the Sisters of St. Dominic of the Congregation of St. Catherine of Sienna as a resident and day school then bearing the name of Sacred Heart Institute.

Though there is a concentration on the basic skills development, the curriculum is geared to foster the growth of individual self-worth with a process that unites previous grade experiences with present and future classroom teaching.

Rosary Academy's current student-teacher ratio for the high school is 9:1 and 17:1 for the elementary school. The academy's faculty consists of 19 religious and 9 lay teachers.

The open house marks the beginning of registration for the next school year. Rosary Academy accepts boys and girls from kindergarten to grade 8, with the high school open for girls only. The Academy also has a nursery school for children 3 to 5 years old.

Rosary Academy's current enrollment numbers 310 students from 15 cities and towns.

Rosary Academy students Ann Marie Sherry, Caroline Brady, and Kathleen McNamara recently showed a slide presentation to students in the eighth grade at Newton Catholic to acquaint them with Rosary.

Weddings

Marie Kirk, Kevin Burke are married in Osterville

Mrs. Kevin Burke

Marie Bishop Kirk became Mrs. Kevin Joseph Burke on Dec. 30 at Our Lady of the Assumption Church in Osterville. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Kirk of Osterville, formerly of Newton and North Falmouth. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Burke of Wilmette, Ill., where the couple will make their home.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin. Her sister, Susan Ann Kirk, was maid of honor, and her niece, Mary Heather Henry of Chatham, N.J., was flower girl.

John Burke of Wilmette was his brother's best man, and another brother, Michael, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Burke was graduated from Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Newton, and Boston College. Her husband, also a graduate of Boston College, is employed by The Insurance Company of North America in Chicago, Ill.

Spring is just around the corner and the 108th New England Spring Garden and Flower Show arrives on St. Patrick's Day. Members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which sponsors the show, have spent all year organizing the event. Members include Mrs. C. Campbell Patterson (right), flower show judges chairwoman and a member of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club; and Mrs. John F. Pasieka (left), flower show general chairwoman.

Spring Flower Show opens in March for nine days

Winter has a way to go. But if you're sick of snow, think flower show.

The 108th New England Spring Flower Show will be held Saturday, March 17 through Sunday, March 25, at Commonwealth Pier Exhibition Hall, 170 Northern Ave., Boston, where it has been staged for the past three years. Announcement of the opening was made by Mrs. Patricia Storey, president and acting executive director of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which sponsors the show.

Mrs. Storey says that the nine day spring spectacle is the largest and longest running show of its kind in the country. More than 150 garden and trade exhibitors participate every year.

The 1979 flower show opens at noon on Saturday, March 17, and will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. excepts Sundays, when it will close at 8 p.m. Commonwealth Pier Exhibition Hall stands between Anthony's Pier 4 and Jimmy's Harborside restaurants, with easy access from the Southeast Expressway and South Station. Acres of parking are available.

Admission will be $3.50, with children under 12 admitted free when accompanied by a parent. Special advance sale tickets may be ordered by sending a check or money order for $2.75 with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Flower Show Tickets, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, 300 Massachusetts Ave., Boston 02115. Information on special discount rates for groups and senior citizens is available at the above address, or by phoning the Society at 536-9280.

Tennis to benefit Diabetes Ass'n.

The Boston Tennis Club will play host at "Set Point for Diabetes", a tennis benefit for the American Diabetes Association, New England affiliate, on Saturday Feb. 3.

Guests may enjoy an evening of tennis, racquetball, backgammon or darts from 7-11 p.m. at the Boston Tennis Club, 653 Summer St., South Boston. They may meet celebrities, challenge them to a game, or enjoy the sociability of the evening with friends.

Tri-churchwomen to hear of hospice program Feb. 7

Linda Kilburn, MSW, will speak on the hospice concept at the annual Tri-Church luncheon of the women of Waban. The luncheon will be served this year at the Parish of the Good Shepherd, 1671 Beacon St., on Wednesday, Feb. 7, at 12:30 p.m.

Ms. Kilburn is project coordinator for the Hospice of the Good Shepherd, Inc., which has recently joined with the Newton-Wellesley Hospital and the Newton Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association to develop hospice services for this area. The hospice concept, which originated in England, serves the terminally ill and their families, offering maximum physical care with emotional, educational and spiritual support.

The tri-church meetings have been held annually in Waban since 1942. Women of the three churches meet in the morning to sew and make surgical supplies for the Newton-Wellesley Hospital. The churches take turns serving luncheon, and a program follows.

Mrs. Howard I. Suby is hostess for the Church of the Good Shepherd. Chairman from St. Philip Neri Church is Mrs. Thomas Duncan, and from The Union Church in Waban, Mrs. Frank Gardner assisted by Mrs. George Vasconcellos.

J. Parker joins law school staff

Jacqueline Y. Parker of Newton Centre has been appointed an instructor in legal method by the New England School of Law, 126 Newbury St., Boston.

Ms. Parker was graduated in 1969 from Tufts University and received her juris doctor degree summa cum laude from New England School of Law in 1977. She received a letter of distinction for excellence in legal scholarship after clerking in the Superior Court of Massachusetts in 1978. During the time she worked in absentia for her law degree at the University of California in Berkeley, she was research assistant for a casebook on law.

Ms. Parker and her husband have a son, Kenneth.

Martha M. Michaud of Newton retired recently from her position as secretary to the chief of civilian personnel at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

Open House Feb. 11 at Lasell Jr. College

An open house and college visitation day will be held at Lasell Junior College in Auburndale on Sunday, Feb. 11, from 2 to 5 p.m. Dean Harry G. Adamian invites those interested in attending to call the admissions office at 243-2225.

There will be workshops on financial aid and student life. The transfer and placement director will be available for questions.

Campus Notes

Named to the dean's list: Susan M. O'Neill, of 178 Quinobegun Rd., Waban, at Regis College; and Kevin Keane, at the University of Maine.

Elizabeth Feinberg Kline of 111 Spiers Rd., Newton Centre, and Riva Esformes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Esformes of Quinobegun Road, Waban, received bachelor of science degrees in childhood education from Wheelock College in December.

Marcia E. Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Jackson of 25 Appleton Cir., Newton, has been an intern at the "Massachusetts Lawyer's Weekly Newspaper" during the January winter term of Skidmore College.

Ellen A. Pollak is married to Mr. Goldstein in Boston

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Goldstein

Ellen Amy Pollak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Pollak of Newton, was married to Andrew P. Goldstein on Nov. 19. He is the son of Mrs. Irving Goldstein of Brookline.

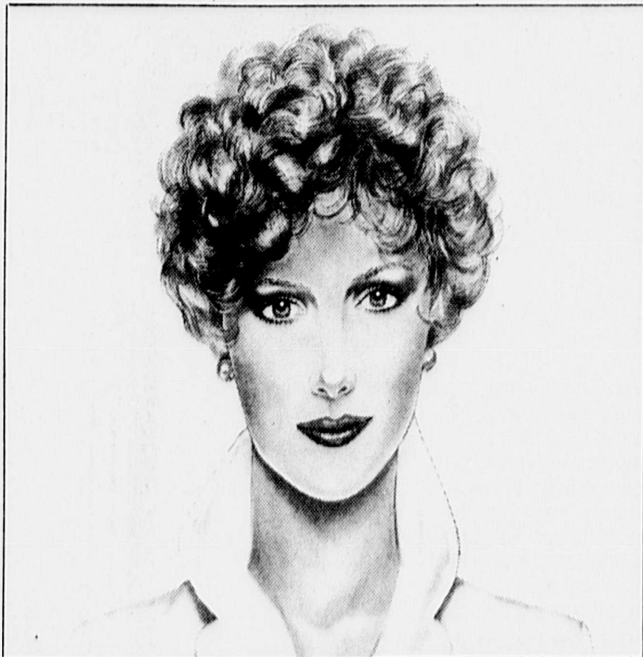

Rabbi Murray Rothman performed the evening ceremony at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, where a reception was held in the Oval Room.

Anita Kaplan of Newton attended the bride, and Steven Goldstein was best man for his brother.

Mrs. Goldstein is a graduate of the Chapel Hill and Bryman Schools. Her husband, a graduate of Boston University, is a psychologist. After a wedding trip to Hawaii, they will live in Brighton.

Dr. Paul Riley of Norwood

No fooling Dr. Paul Riley of Norwood

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
In Focus Editor

A slightly pompous Englishman breezily explained to a nearly apoplectic physician that Americans ought to really have centralized hospitals. How, asked the bristling physician, did the English doctor propose patients be transported to these hospitals? "By limousine," came the outrageous answer, smoothly delivered.

What saved the Englishman from attack was his hasty identification of himself. The arrogant English doctor in tweeds is really the affable Dr. Paul Riley of Norwood, a serious dentist whose avocation is comic impersonations.

Typically, Riley comes into a large, professional meeting where there are physicians, surgeons, dental specialists or accountants and he successfully passes himself off as a foreign "authority."

"Then I proceed to infuriate them," he says. He irritates them by knowing where they are vulnerable and by adopting a pretentiously dignified personality to accompany any one of a number of foreign accents he adeptly mimics.

When he feels he has gone far enough, he says "I will identify myself, but usually they won't believe me right away" so he goes into his hilarious repertoire of stories for about 30 or 40 minutes.

He works hard at developing material and preparing for these meetings pointing out that "you can't stand before 1,000 people unless you are prepared." He admits he is nervous saying "anyone who is up there and is not nervous is not doing it right."

Sometimes as he is entertaining, he asks himself "what am I doing here?"

Indeed, why is a thoughtful, dedicated dentist with a thriving practice attending an annual convention or meeting as a comedian?

His wife, Lea, offered one explanation—"he's a performer at heart, but the life is difficult so he chose a different way to make a living." Riley clearly enjoys dentistry and continually takes courses to keep up with the latest techniques in dentistry, even travelling to New York to study.

Yet, performing as a genteel comedian is his way of relaxing. It gives him "great pleasure to make people laugh." Goodnatured, Riley says "it is not my purpose to humiliate anyone... sometimes people are still mad, but generally, most will say you really fooled me, and just enjoy a good laugh."

The father of four boys and one daughter, Riley is 54 years old. He has a youthful sounding voice which he can skillfully manipulate. Dressed casually in grey flannel slacks, with a navy blue sweater over an open shirt, he gazed at the blazing fire in his living room. He said his desire to make people laugh is partly derived from happy memories he has of sitting around the kitchen table where humor lightened the conversation.

Riley's family has lived in Norwood since his great grandfather immigrated from Ireland in the 1840's. Deeply rooted in the town, he has great love for Norwood. He speaks colorfully whether about Norwood's history or of the doctor who owned the large, Colonial home where he lives and has his practice. His conversation is laced with assorted stories related in various dialects.

Some of the best stories he tells are true ones, based on Norwood characters. Riley has a remarkable memory and an eye for detail. He can draw a verbal picture of someone he knows or knew and by mimicking their speech produces the person for you.

He began as a youngster by imitating the Irish brogue, something he says was "no great accomplishment" since people speaking in that rich brogue were all around him.

In high school, his teacher, Elizabeth D. James, "a remarkable woman," asked him to read the part of a cockney character in Emperor Jones a play by Eugene O'Neill. "To my surprise I could do it instinctively," and to demonstrate, he lapses into a cockney accent.

"In college, I had Jewish friends, and I was a listener and could duplicate what I heard." He committed an array of Yiddish stories to memory, adding to his repertoire. Travelling to Maine, he was prompted to "duplicate my favorite accent—a downeast lobster fisherman."

He was doing this purely for his own enjoyment until he met Walter Flaherty, a Watertown police sergeant who looked Italian and who "had a gift for the Italian accent and inflection." Flaherty would go to meetings as an Italian impersonator and even after he announced his name, Riley said "it was difficult to believe he could do that." Flaherty and Riley met at one such meeting and Flaherty urged Riley to make use of his talents. It was advice that Riley tucked away in a corner of his mind. He couldn't use it then because "I had other interests."

A graduate of Boston College and Tufts University Dental School, Riley served in the Navy during World War II and was recalled during the Korean War. It was during his second stint in the Navy that he began entertaining on a small scale.

Since his first appearance, the demand for Riley increased and word began to spread about the delightful dentist who doubles as a comedian. He keeps his bookings limited and usually chooses engagements in cities he and his wife "want to visit."

Then he removes his white coat, dons a new personality and the next person he fools may be you.

THE READERS WRITE... Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026

Dear Diane: Can you suggest some easy ethnic meals?
JAS, Roslindale

Dear JAS: If you are alert to the charms of and variety of ethnic foods, cooking will never be dull for you. There are more distinctive national cuisines than days of the week and an infinite number of specialties in each. Using soup as a base can help you create these meals—quickly and economically. Here are some recipes:

TEMPURA

- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of shrimp soup
- 1 cup flour
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 small eggplant (about 3/4 pound), peeled and cubed
- 3 chicken breasts, split, skinned, and bones (1 1/2 pounds boneless)
- 1 medium Bermuda onion, sliced
- 1 medium green pepper, cut in 1-inch squares

Salad oil
In bowl, combine soup, flour, egg, and salt. Chill 30 min. or until ready to use. Meanwhile, salt eggplant; let stand 30 min. Pat dry. Cut chicken into bite-size pieces. Dip chicken and vegetables into soup batter to coat lightly. Half-fill wok or large saucepan with oil; pre-heat to 375 deg. F. Cook chicken (about 5 min.) and vegetables (about 3 min.), a few pieces at a time, until slightly browned. Drain; keep warm. Serve with dipping sauces. Serves 6.

Ethnic foods

MOUSSAKA

- 1 medium eggplant (about 1 1/2 pounds), cut in 1/4-inch slices
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- Olive oil
- 1 pound ground lamb or beef
- 1 1/2 cups chopped onion
- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed tomato soup
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Generous dash pepper
- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 2 egg yolks, well beaten
- 1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese

Dip eggplant in slightly beaten egg, then bread crumbs. Brown in olive oil (add oil as needed); remove. In same skillet, brown lamb and cook onion until tender; stir to separate meat. Pour off fat. Add tomato soup, parsley, salt, and pepper. In 2-quart shallow baking dish (12x8x2), arrange alternate layers of eggplant and meat mixture, ending with layer of eggplant. Blend mushroom soup and egg yolks; pour over eggplant. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 325 Deg. F. for 45 min. serves 4 to 6.

KITCHEN CORNER

When Chinese Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping arrives in Washington on January 29 for talks with President Jimmy Carter another tenuous hurdle between the nations will be crossed. From these meetings a whole new era involving technological, economic, social and cultural trades could arise.

Coincidentally, the day before the two statesmen meet marks the beginning of the Chinese New Year, an occasion long celebrated in the United States even while relations between the two countries remained in the deep freeze.

The Year of the Sheep, which not only marks 4677 lunar years since the reign of the first Chinese Emperor Huang Di, but also a new age in relations with the Chinese people, would be a fitting time to give Chinese cooking a try.

The New Year menu suggested here follows the rules of fine Chinese cooking.

When a Chinese host and hostess serve their guests dinner, they probably will not begin with a soup course. They may serve a light clear soup throughout the meal, or they may serve a hearty soup, in the middle of the meal.

Tasty little tidbits, the sort of delicious mouthfuls we call "appetizers," may be served as a snack or at several times throughout the dinner. Pork Dim Sum, the recipe for which is given here, is typical of these appetite teasers. They are tiny Chinese dumplings stuffed with ground pork and flavored with soy sauce and sherry. Western cooks will be happy to know that they can be frozen ahead and baked at the last minute; or baked, frozen and warmed through before serving.

Preparation is all important, too, in making successful stir-fry dishes such as Stir-Fried Chicken With Ham and Broccoli. Like so many Chinese classics, this one cooks in a matter of minutes, but it is important that all the ingredients be prepared ahead, ready to pop into hot oil as needed. This way each of the ingredients will be at its peak of flavor and texture.

Almond Cookies, a treat in many Chinese restaurants, might be just the touch to finish your lunar New Year and welcome in a new era.

STIR-FRIED CHICKEN
WITH HAM AND BROCCOLI

- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, boned, skinned, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 1/2 cup corn oil, divided

- 4 cups broccoli flowerets
- 1/2 cup sliced onion
- 1/4 pound ham, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons corn starch
- 1/4 cup water

In medium bowl stir together soy sauce, sherry and pepper. Add chicken; stir to coat well. In wok or large skillet heat 5 tablespoons of the corn oil over medium-high heat. Add broccoli and onion. Cook, stirring constantly, about 3 minutes or until tender crisp. Remove broccoli and onion. Add remaining corn oil to pan; heat. Add chicken. Cook, stirring constantly, about 3 minutes or until meat is tender. Add ham cubes; cook 1 minute longer. Stir together corn starch and water until smooth. Add to pan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Return broccoli and onion to pan. Toss with meat mixture until vegetables are heated through. If desired, serve over rice. Makes 4 servings.

PORK DIM SUM

- 1/2 pound ground pork
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 1 tablespoon minced green onion
- 2 teaspoons dry sherry
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 cup flour
- One-third cup corn oil margarine
- 3 tablespoons ice cold water
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon water

In medium bowl stir together ground pork, soy sauce, corn starch, green onion, sherry and ginger. Place flour in another medium bowl. With pastry blender or 2 knives cut in margarine until coarse crumbs form. Sprinkle water over mixture while tossing to blend well. Press dough firmly into 2 balls with hands. On lightly floured surface roll out one ball of dough to one-sixteenth inch thickness. With 3-inch round cookie cutter, cut out circles. Knead scraps into remaining dough, roll and cut as before. Place about 1 heaping teaspoon filling in center of each circle, fold over into crescent shape and seal edges tightly with fork. Place puffs on ungreased cookie sheet and pierce each with fork. Lightly beat egg with water. Brush tops of puffs with egg mixture. Bake in 400 deg. F oven about 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes two dozen.

Note: Pork Dim Sum can be frozen. To reheat bake unfrozen in 400 deg. F oven 10 minutes. If desired, Dim Sum may be frozen unbaked. Place unbaked Dim Sum on ungreased cookie sheet and bake in 400 Deg. F oven about 20 minutes.

With the Chinese New year, Jan. 28, brings an opportunity to begin Chinese cooking.

Traveling Meals celebrates 5th year

At the recent fifth anniversary Traveling Meals celebration, Paulette Bowes of Newton Centre gave a concert on the clarinet, accompanied by David Witten on the piano.

Ms. Bowes, who received her master's degree at the N.E. Conservatory, is a member of the Worcester Symphony. On Jan. 28 at 8 p.m. she will give a concert at The All Newton Music School of which she is a faculty member. She will again be accompanied by David Witten.

Rev. and Mrs. Carl Saunders were the hosts at the Centre Methodist Church, and they helped make Traveling Meals' Fifth Anniversary Party a warm and friendly occasion.

Also present were Mayor Theodore Mann, Rev. Gene Bartlett, Ald. Ethel Sheehan, Katherine Bowes, president of Traveling Meals; Coordinator Thomas Brehm and many friends and well-wishers.

'Skiathon '79' benefits disabled

Richard W. Husher of Waban was recently appointed as committee member of New England Skiathon '79.

The committee is a regional subsidiary of Ski For Light Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to conducting cross-country skiing programs and related sports activities for visually and physically disabled persons.

Husher is involved in preparations for the annual cross-country Skiathon to be held on Saturday, Feb. 3, at the Weston Ski Track, Weston. Skiers may participate by paying an entry fee or by obtaining sponsors who pledge an agreed upon sum per kilometer skied. There are no limitations placed upon the amount pledged or the number of kilometers skied. The skier who obtains the highest dollar amount of pledges will be awarded a trip for two to the Caribbean.

Proceeds for the event will benefit the Vinland National Center, a sports health center for disabled persons, scheduled for completion in 1981. Skiers of all skills are invited to enjoy the fine kilometer trail. Skiathon will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Barbados' lushly beautiful Bathsbeba coast, dotted with beaches, is the perfect spot for sunbathing, or leading a horse on an exhilarating gallop along the water's edge.

Barbados-warm, hospitable queen of the West Indies

It's a wind-blown autumn afternoon, or a snowy winter day, and like everyone you meet and speak to, you're eager to escape to some unnamed paradise in the West Indies.

Day after day, you find yourself dreaming of luscious palm-clad strips of white sand, clear aqua water washing lazily against the shore. Then, suddenly, fantasy becomes reality, and it's time to begin planning your getaway. But which island?

From the vantage point of a stateside travel office, they may all appear alike. Not so! Each island has its own individual flavor, its own particular features and attractions.

And your mission, as a canny vacationer, is to choose the one that will offer you the most in all ways, one that is large enough to have all the facilities you are looking for, but not so large and busy that you will become just another person in an immense crowd of tourists. Your own personal Eden, the island of your dreams, may well be Barbados!

Barbados, lapped by the trade winds, and blessed with a marvellous climate (the temperature averages between 75 deg. and 85 deg. year-round) has long been a host to travelers from all over. As far back as the 17th century, in fact, businessmen from England and other parts of the world visited the island George Washington was one of Barbados' most distinguished guests, and the house where he is said to have stayed, in 1751, may still be seen in Barbados capital city, Bridgetown.

The attractions of the island are many and varied. One of its features is its distinctly British flavor, it's old world grace and courtesy.

In Bridgetown one may see Trafalgar Square, named in honor of Lord Nelson after his death, with a fountain at its center, and flanked by the Barbados Houses of Parliament.

One of the great pleasures in Bridgetown is shopping, walking the length of Broad St., and in and out of the adjacent side streets which are lined with stores. These shops are brimming with fine merchandise, which is available at incredibly low prices, because so much of it is imported duty-free.

Choose from a wide selection of English tweeds, Irish linens, Madras cottons, Liberty silks, cashmere sweaters, English and Continental glassware and tableware, high quality watches, cameras and binoculars, and a vast selection of French perfumes.

Also, readily available are West Indian handicrafts; straw goods, shell and bead necklaces, wooden figures, and of course, Barbados own rum, originally known as "Rumbullion" or "Kill-Devil." Barbados has been producing this liquor since the 17th century, and has truly gotten its manufacture down to a fine art.

One should make an effort to visit Pelican Village, just outside Bridgetown, a center of the island's handicraft industry. There, one may purchase Bajan arts and crafts, and other locally produced items.

Barbados offers the finest opportunities for water sports of all kinds. There are facilities available for fishing, yachting, water skiing, and scuba diving the latter amid either the eerie seascape of the coral reefs, or a host of old shipwrecks in Carlisle Bay.

For those who prefer to keep their feet solidly on land, there are first-rate golf and tennis facilities available, as well as horseback riding along the beach on the wild Bathsbeba coast.

And for those who prefer watching to participating, cricket matches are played from June through January, polo is played in season, and horse races are organized by the Barbados Turf Club in March, May, August and November.

At night, the musically-inclined tourist can visit night clubs to enjoy the unique sound of the steel drum band, or to watch incredibly lithe performers execute the limbo.

From morning through night, there is always something exciting to do in Barbados!

By Josephine Arria

When he made the movie Mutiny On The Bounty, Marion Brando discovered Tahiti's many splendours. Of course, Captain Cook and the great impressionist painter Paul Gauguin discovered them long before that. Tahiti is just two hours beyond Hawaii, and in addition to the usual water-sports and outdoor activities such as golf and horseback riding, Tahiti has its own unique attractions. The Gauguin Museum, massive Tiki stone carvings, ancient temples and sacrificial altars. It also offers an uncommon shopping port, offering Tuamotu Pearls, Black Pearl Shell jewelry, handcrafted Tikis, and beautiful handprinted fabrics.

What far away land of enchantment have you dreamed of visiting? What exotic and exciting port has caught your imagination? BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner, can turn your dreams into reality with a wave of the magical wand. Stop in and let us show you how easy it is to vacation in the far reaches of your imagination. Come to BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC. today. We are the people who make dreams come true. ## Arts in Parks plans winter programs

Arts in the Parks and the Newton Recreation Department have a solution to the "Winter Blues," programmed weekday morning activities.

New programs this session include Rug Hooking with Maryanne Lincoln, an expert fibre artist with an extensive background in wool dyeing. Ms. Lincoln will teach all the basic techniques in Rug Hooking as well as offering projects for the more experienced students.

Among the other courses offered are Quilting with Hancy Halpern, Crocheting with an Art Form with Carol Govan, Needlepoint, Bargello and Embroidery with instructor Bette Feinstein and Ukrainian Easter Egg Dyeing with Tania D'Avignon.

All of these instructors are experienced teachers, as well as artists and are eager to share their love for their arts with beginners.

For more information, or a copy of the brochure detailing the Arts in the Parks Programs, call the Newton Recreation Department at 552-7120, or send a self-addressed stamped envelope to the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale, Ma., 02166.

David Kosowsky of Newton, right, receives a pin for 10 years of service as a trustee of University Hospital in Boston, from John Cogan Jr., president and chairman of the hospital. Kosowsky, founding president of the Damon Corporation, was re-elected a vice president of the hospital trustees.

Kids' theatre opens season

The Boston Children's Theatre Touring Company season opens Saturday, Jan. 27, playing weekends through April 29, bringing live theatre, by and for children, to communities outside the Boston area.

This season's production is "The Reluctant Dragon", with Alice Cohen as director. The cast, made up of youngsters from the Boston Children's Theatre's Creative Drama Classes, will include Valerie Holmes, Jennifer Lerman, Debbie McIsaac, Jill Rosenfeld, Adam Thorburn, and Sheryl Watson all of Newton.

Also in rehearsal is the Boston Children's Theatre production of "The Hobbit", which will open at New England Life Hall on Saturday, Feb. 17. Other performances will be given each day during school vacation week, Feb. 20, 24, and Mar. 3 and 10 at 2 p.m. The play is adapted from J.R.R. Tolkien's classic fantasy, "The Hobbit", which tells the story of Bilbo Baggins, Gandalf the wizard, the thirteen Dwarves and their adventures in search of Smaug, the wicked dragon who lives in the Lonely Mountain.

For information on all activities, write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 791 Hammond St., Chestnut Hill, MA 02167, or telephone 277-3277.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital puts brain scanner on line

Newton-Wellesley Hospital patients, as well as patients in other hospitals between Boston and Worcester, are now assured of access to computer tomography (CT) brain scanning at significant savings over what it costs for the service in a Boston hospital.

A December dismissal of a suit brought by the Department of Public Health means that Newton-Wellesley is not affected by new regulations governing purchase of CT scanners, and that the hospital may proceed with full use of the equipment.

The CT scanner is considered crucial in diagnosis of brain injury, strokes, brain tumors and infection because it is more accurate and sensitive than conventional X-ray equipment, detecting minute differences in tissue density.

Combining X-ray and computer techniques, the CT scanner produces cross-sectional images of the area studied.

As the patient lies quietly in one room, X-ray beams pass through the head or body at multiple angles. These X-rays are differentially absorbed by the body tissues, and the information derived from them is recorded by sensitive detectors.

After many computations, the information is used by the computer to reconstruct a specific cross-section which then appears, either in black and white or color, on a television screen in an adjoining room.

Newton-Wellesley's scanner is receiving intensive use. Patients are referred from Leonard-Morse, Framingham Union, Glover, St.

Elizabeth's, and other hospitals in the Western suburbs as the cost of the service is lower than at Boston hospitals.

NEWTON DIET CENTER 969-DIET

Diet facts & fallacies

By Darlene Crump

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

Much is being written and read today about the necessity of vitamin supplements in the diet. This stems from the fact that the body itself cannot generate its own vitamins and so must rely on intake from outside sources. The DIET CENTER recommends that those vitamins should come as nearly as possible from their natural sources, foods.

Those vitamins soluble in water, meaning they are washed out in the urine since they cannot be stored in the body, include the B-complex and the C vitamins. The fat-soluble vitamins which are stored in the fatty tissues of the body include A, D, E, and K. Water-soluble vitamins are expressed in International Units of I.U.

Badminton

The Badminton Program continues from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. each Thursday at Warren Jr. High School under the direction of Joe Wright and Carol Phillips. Interested Newton residents 16 and over should report to either director on Thursday nights. Players should bring their own racquets and wear appropriate clothing and shoes.

Hamilton School Program

Supervisor, Bill Barry, reports the Hamilton School evening programs are going well. All programs are conducted from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Monday - Junior & Senior high school boys; Tuesday - Junior and Senior high girls; Wednesday - Junior & Senior high boys, and Thursday - Adult Volleyball. Directors are Steven and Sheila Chapman.

Recreation I.D. Cards

The next date for getting Recreation I.D. Cards will be Saturday, February 3rd, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. at the Hull Street entrance to North High School. Applicants should bring proof of residency and the fee of $2.75. They may also be obtained on Tuesday, February 6th from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. and Wednesday, February 14th, 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Newton residents who wish to participate in the Recreation Department sponsored activities at North High after school hours must have the I.D. Card.

Women's Basketball

The Recreation Department's Women's Basketball League plays its games at Bigelow Jr. High School on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. Women 16 years and older are welcome. The League is directed by Doreen Mangini.

Also junior high school age girls are invited to play basketball at the Frank A. Day Junior High Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. The program director is Doreen Mangini.

Judo

Sol Sidman directs the Judo program at the Newton Centre Hut Tuesday or Thursday nights.

Tennis Registration

The Recreation Department has scheduled registration for the second Indoor Tennis Session for Saturday, January 27th. It will be held at the Meadowbrook Jr. High School from 10 a.m. to Noon. The second session of Indoor Tennis will begin on January 29th and run through April 8th. People who have participated in the first session are not eligible to register for the second. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis and the number is limited to 200. All registrants must have Recreation I.D. Cards issued by the Newton Recreation Department.

Water Safety Courses

Supervisor, Carol Stapleton, announces that the Newton Recreation Department is offering an Advanced Life Saving Course and Water Safety Instructors Course at the Newton North High Pool. The Advanced Life Saving Course will run from January 30th until February 22nd. Registration will be held at the North High pool office from 7 to 10 p.m. on January 23rd and January 25th. Instructors will be Robert Carleo, Joanna Bonazoli and Brian Gordon. The Water Safety Instructors Course will begin February 26th and run to April 6th, or until the program is completed. To register, call the Newton Recreation Department Monday thru Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. between February 15th and February 23rd only. No registrations will be accepted before February 15th. Instructors will be Benn Merritt, Bill Grimes, Maria Mosc.

Skating Information

For further information call 244-1656 or 244-6439. Soft sole shoes are required.

Cross-country 'ski-a-thon'

Think snow on Sunday, January 28. That's the day for the first annual Cross Country Ski-a-thon for Mentally Retarded People to be held at selected sites throughout Massachusetts. If the weather refuses to cooperate and there is no snow, the Ski-a-thon will be held on the following Sunday, February 4 or, if necessary, February 11.

Organized by the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC) the Ski-a-thon is co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Jaycees, Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc., and Anheuser-Busch, Inc. Proceeds will help MARC create needed services and opportunities for mentally retarded people.

Cross country skiers can join the action by obtaining a registration form from MARC, 381 Elliot Street, Newton Upper Falls, MA 02164; telephone (617) 965-5320; or their local Eastern Mountain Sports stores and local ski shops.

Celebrity skiers will be on the ski trails, too. People who cannot ski and would like to participate in the Ski-a-thon can sponsor a celebrity skier by contacting the MARC office, Eastern Mountain Sports stores, or local ski shops for celebrity sponsor forms.

Bill Lee, former Red Sox pitcher; Bud Collins, Boston Globe; Randy Vataha, former Patriots wide receiver; Tony Pepper, Jack Williams, Mary Stewart, Garry Burbank, Channel 4; Tom Ellis, Anne McGrath, Ron Gollobin, Bob Copeland, Dick Albert, Channel 5; Harvey Leonard, Channel 7; Charles Laquidara, Judy Ferguson, WBCN; Jordan Rich, WRKO; Don Batting, WBZ; Diane Stern, WEEK; Roger LaPlante, radio station 14Q and Channel 27; and Thom Aldert and George Allen, Channel 6; are celebrity skiers.

Ski-a-thon sites are: Esplanade, Storrow Drive at the Hatch Shell, Boston; Christian A. Herter Center, 1170 Soldiers Field Road along the Charles River, Allston; Belmont Hill School, Belmont; Putnam Golf Course, Brookline; Noble & Greenough School, Dedham; Sheraton-Bosboro, Boxboro; YMCA, Cross Country Ski Area, Hopkinton; Wilder Ski Track, Veterans Golf Course, South Branch Parkway, Springfield; and Attleboro Area at the Plainville Airport site. The Ski-a-thon is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Former Governor Francis W. Sargent is honorary chairperson for the Ski-a-thon.

Think snow on January 28. And participate in the Cross Country Ski-a-thon for Mentally Retarded People. ("No Snow" dates are February 4 and, if necessary, February 11.)

Martial arts weekend Feb. 10

BUSHIDO-KAI AIKIJU-JUTSU WEEKEND, an annual event at the Bushido-Kai Martial Arts Center, 5 Main St., Natick, will be held Sat. and Sun., Feb. 10-11. Registration will be from 11:00-11:20 on both days. Classes will run 11:30-3:30 on both days and are open to all area judo, ju-jitsu, and aikido practitioners. A $5 mat fee will cover one or all classes.

For further information, call 655-6535 anytime.

South Lion five drop eighth straight

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

"When will it all end?"

Those were the words Lion coach Richard Walker must have been thinking as he walked out of the Lincoln-Sudbury Gymnasium last Friday night. He would have been referring to South's eight-game losing streak, which included losses to Concord-Carlisle last Tuesday and Lincoln-Sudbury on Friday as their record dropped to 2-9 overall and 0-6 in the Dual County League.

The Concord-Carlisle Patriots improved their record to 3-2 in the D.C.L. as they defeated the Lions 54-46 last Tuesday in a game in which the Lions could never get closer than the 11-8 score at the end of the first quarter.

Ed Pagano, 6'8" center, broke the Lions back as he hit for nine fourth quarter points and 18 on the night to go along with seven rebounds. Pagano was fed inside all night long by Grayland Owens (six assists) and Pat Harrington (five), and when the Lions shut him off, Captain Bill Carson poked in 13 from outside.

Peter Felopulos was high man for the Lions with 11 points and seven rebounds, followed by Tim Hairston with 10 points and Stu Bernstein with nine.

Enter the Lincoln-Sudbury Warriors, a team which won but two games last year. Exit Lincoln-Sudbury a 52-37 victor over Newton South, extending the Lions losing streak to 8 games.

The Lions committed 11 turnovers in the first quarter and were able to score only five points, compared to Lincoln's 12. South shot a dismal 2 for 12 in the quarter.

The second quarter didn't go much better for South. Peter Felopulos scored six of the Lions 11 second quarter points however, L-S poured in 17 with Darren McNair and Chris McNamara combining for 10 as L-S took a 29-16 lead at halftime.

This was a disastrous first half for the Lions. They would up committing 17 turnovers. At one point, South had a 5-2 lead, but a 17-1 spurt by L-S making the score 19-6 Warriors, killed the Lions hopes in the first half.

The Lions outscored L-S 13-9 in the third quarter as Felopulos six and Stu Bernstein (five) combined for 11 points to make the score 38-29 Warriors at the end of three periods.

With 6:50 left in the final quarter a Tim Hairston field goal pulled the Lions to within five 38-33. However, turnovers led to a 10-2 run by the Warriors to make the score 48-35 with only two minutes to play and wrapping it up for the Warriors, boosting their record to 3-2 in the D.C.L.

This was another poor showing by the Lions on offense. They attempted only 35 shots the entire game (six in the final quarter) compared to L-S's 52. South committed 30 turnovers compared to Lincoln's nine and they made good on only seven of 17 free throws while L-S made 10 of 14.

Encouraging bright spots for the Lions were Peter Felopulos' play. He scored 19 points and had 16 rebounds tying his season high, and the play of Mike Kline at guard. Mike didn't score any points, but he came off the bench to spark the team by handing out five assists.

The Lion JV also fell on hard times last week as they lost their games to Concord and L-S. Against L-S they gave up the most points (77) they have all season as their record dropped to 8-3, 4-2 in DCL.

The Newton Graphic Sports

South's Peter Felopulos warms up

Lion tumblers fall

By SANDY NAGLER

The Newton South Girls Gymnastics Team lost their third straight meet to Brookline High on January 16. The girls did remarkably well, taking first in three of the four events, but this was insignificant because only five girls were able to compete for South. This factor enabled Brookline to overpower South by a score of 94.85-56.6.

Carla Ecknain placed first in the floor exercises and on the balance beam for the second time this season.

Jill Shuman continued her fine work on the uneven bars, placing first. This was a hard earned victory for Shuman who had previously placed second in that event in each of the previous meets.

Statistics

Floor: 1 - Carla Ecknain - (6.65); 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - B.H.S.
Vault: 1 - B.H.S.; 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - B.H.S.
Balance Beam: 1 - Carla Ecknain - (6.6); 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - B.H.S.
Uneven Bars: 1 - Jill Shuman - (6.25); 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - B.H.S.

In their fifth meet of the season, things were almost all down hill. The Lions lost their fourth consecutive meet to Walnut Hill last Friday 99.4-73.2. Despite losing, everything was not all bad for the Orange and Blue. They managed to pick up their first place in the vaulting competition and they also picked up another third place finish and one second.

Sophomore Joanne Beatty took third in the vaulting competition with a well executed handspring vault.

Jill Shuman continued her excellent work on the bars, taking the team's only second place finish.

The other third place finish was taken by Carla Ecknain for another one of her beautiful performances in the floor exercises.

The week's losses gives the girls a record of 1-4 on the season. Their next meet is on January 26 at 3:30.

Statistics

Vault: 1 - W.H.; 2 - W.H.; 3 - Joanne Beatty (6.85)
Floor: 1 - W.H.; 2 - W.H.; 3 - Carla Ecknain (6.3)
Beam: 1 - W.H.; 2 - W.H.; 2 - W.H.
Bars: 1 - W.H.; 2 - Jill Shuman (5.9); 3 - W.H.

Boys Squad

The Newton South Boys Gymnastics Team widened its losing streak to three, losing to Brookline High 69.02-60.2 on January 16. Although the Orange and Blue did not win, it was their closest meet of the season, losing by only 9 points.

The team's all-around gymnasts, Bob Battista and Rick Nicoletti, continued to perform well. Battista took second on the parallel bars and in the vaulting competition, along with a third place finish on the rings. Nicoletti had third place finishes in both the floor exercises and in the vaulting competition.

Matty Karas and Dale Stackhouse did well on the pommel horse finishing second and third respectively.

Statistics

Floor Exercises: 1 - B.H.S.; 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - Rick Nicoletti
Pommel Horse: 1 - B.H.S.; 2 - Matty Karas (3.3); 3 - Dale Stackhouse (2.8)

Rings: 1 - B.H.S.; 2 - B.H.S.; 3 - Bob Battista (2.7)
The boys next meet is on January 26 at Billerica at 7 p.m.

North hoopsters bow, 56-55

By BRUCE GER

The Newton North High basketball team faced the Boxers of Brockton last Friday at Reggie Smith Gym and was defeated, 56-55, despite controlling the game for more than three quarters.

Guard Keith Meredith played a superb game, leading all Newton scorers with 19 points.

The first half was very close, but the Tigers had the edge. Periodically North built strong leads. However, the Boxers would not allow them to pull away. Newton's edge came from the fact that they had very aggressive rebounding from the likes of Bob Hess and Jim Calechman.

In the second half, the Tigers were not able to build the leads they could in the first. Despite this, they retained a slight edge until the three-minute mark of the game, when Brockton tied it. The Boxers then gained a slight lead, which they held until there was one minute left in the contest. The teams then exchanged baskets. The Tigers, trailing by a single point, missed two shots as time ran out.

All told, it was a well-played, aggressive game, the second half being more aggressive than the first. The loss drops the Tigers' record to 7-4. They travel to Weymouth North tomorrow.

Scoring Summary:

Keith Meredith	19
Phil Averback	10
Bob Hess	10
Dave Coppolla	7

South swimmers split two

By JIMMY ROSENTHAL

The Newton South boys swim team won one of the two meets that they had last week. The first meet, against Bedford High School, came as a disappointment to South as they lost by a score of 93-79. In the team's other meet, St. Sebastian's High School, South rolled all over St. Sebastians winning by a score of 103-59.

South went into the meet with Bedford thinking that it would be a very close contest, although Bedford had the edge. This was not the case, however. After the first event of the meet, Bedford jumped out to a 10-4 lead. South's four points came because the team of co-captain Mazin Shukri, Ned Campbell, Mike Kanellius and Ted Leavitt came in second place.

Going into the diving competition South trailed by six points. The diving was where South expected to take the lead. And they did take the lead as Harry Raphael took first place and Dave Quillen was right behind him in second.

South's divers gave the team a two-point lead, but it did not last for very long. In the next event, the 100 yard butterfly, South's Mike Feldstein took first place easily. However the lead was again in Bedford's hands, where it would stay.

In the remaining events, Feldstein won the 500-yard freestyle and Shukri placed second in the 100-yard backstroke.

South's meet against St. Sebastians started out rough as South had to settle for second place in the first event along with a 10-4 deficit. The next event was indicative of what was to later happen as Alex Atwood and Chris Madden swam for first and second place, respectively, in the 200 yard freestyle.

Although South did extremely well in the 200 free, St. Sebastians regained the lead after the next event. Not until the 50-yard free did South take the lead away from Sebastians again. In this event, South's Phil Miller, Leavitt and Bob Goodman combined for second, third and fourth place. The diving followed with Raphael winning, Shukri close behind him and Quillen in third. South was now ahead 41-30 and only allowed Sebastians 29 more points.

In other events South's Dave Samuels won the 500-yard freestyle, an event he had never attempted before, Raphael took first in the backstroke with Chris Chaloff taking second, and co-captain Kevin Hayden breezed in to take first place in the breaststroke.

South's next meet will be tomorrow at Newton North against Concord Carlisle High School. The time for the meet is to be announced.

Sister Irene Kraus to be AHA's board chairman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

A press release with an Anaheim, Calif., dateline a while back started:

"A Washington, D. C., hospital executive was chosen today to hold in 1980 the highest elected office of the American Hospital Association — the trade association which represents 6,400 of the nation's hospitals."

The position: chairman of the board.

The release was from the American Hospital Association's House of Delegates meeting in annual session in Anaheim.

The next paragraph let out a surprise: The "executive" is a Roman Catholic nun — Sister Irene Kraus, D.C. She is the first woman and the first religious to head the AHA. The D.C. is for "Daughter of Charity," the Emmitsburg, Md., religious order started by St. Elizabeth Ann Seton.

Sister Irene was born in Philadelphia. She attended grade schools in Terre Haute, Ind., St. Louis, and Altoona and Harrisburg, Pa., where the family moved with her father's work for the Pennsylvania Railroad before settling in Baltimore. She now is President of Providence Hospital in the nation's capital.

She had an Irish-descent mother and a German-descent father. Some say that mixture makes a spiffier. But Sister Irene operates behind a mild manner, reflecting the strict self-discipline developed during her formation as a religious. To bolster her calm, she knits or does needlepoint — most frequently in planes or while filling an unexpected lull before a meeting.

In the forties, Sister Irene taught grade and high school at St. Patrick's in Richmond, Va.

After that, she worked in and helped run hospitals in Saginaw, Mich., Boston, Mass., Binghamton, N.Y., Waterville, Me., Detroit, Southfield, Mich., and Nashville, Tenn.

The nun wears a modified religious habit — a calf-length navy princess style dress with long sleeves, and a short veil that allows her face to be framed by graying hair.

Until 1964, before religious orders in America either gave up their habits for secular clothes or adopted modified habits, Sister Irene and the other Daughters of Charity wore on their heads cornettes — huge white starched headpieces that looked like a gigantic freeform butterfly.

Pictures accompanying reports she wrote for hospital journals show also before the current dress, adopted in 1964, she wore an interim modified habit: ankle length dress and a full veil covering even the hairline.

After her election, Sister Irene told the AHA House of Delegates she was "grateful for the honor and trust" placed in her. She said the nominating committee realized "that this is a man-sized job and it needed a woman to do it."

She smiled when she said it.

Peers make it plain Sister Irene is not a "token woman" chosen in this era of the women's revolution to show the AHA is willing to give a woman some power.

She has, they say, a solid record of administrative accomplishment and has worked her way up, serving on panels on ethics and malpractice and on various boards.

But she doesn't swear like a man. An in-house joke at the AHA in Chicago is that "a lot of people are cleaning up their language."

Sister Irene, during her administration, will be helping to lead the nation's hospital system in the stormiest weather ever. The American Hospital Association, along with the Catholic Hospital Association (which Sister Irene headed in 1972, 1973) and the American Federation of Hospitals, has been battling tough-talking Joseph Califano Jr. and his campaign to set a limit on expenses hospitals run up.

The United States Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare easily irritated every hospital administrator and board member from coast to coast last year when he described hospitals as "obese" and their expenses "bloated."

But Califano doesn't scare easily. Just the other day he gave hospitals across the nation a massive case of collective shudders by declaring he wants Congress in 1979 to vote a 9.7 percent lid on expenses run up by hospitals.

Califano tried last year to get Congress to enact a similar measure but the hospital industry, led by the AHA, battled down the proposal.

Hospital board members, literally pillars of their communities, called on their elected officials in Congress and pleaded their case. After that, the HEW Secretary couldn't gather enough Congressional support to plow through the hospital industry defenses.

As an alternative to the mandatory lid that did not pass, the hospital industry launched a voluntary cost containment program, looking for places to slash expenses.

The voluntary containment program has slowed the upward thrust. In 1977, without such an effort, expenses shot up 15.9 percent.

In 1978, as a result of the industry's voluntary containment crusade, costs went up at a slower rate, 12.9 percent. The hospital industry says that is progress.

Sister Irene, whose cheering section includes 28 nieces and nephews, says Secretary Califano's new campaign pegged to a 9.7 percent lid is "totally unrealistic" in this era of continued inflation.

She expects hospitals to drain a little of the remaining fat out of their operations by the end of 1979 — holding increases to an annual rate of 11.9 percent. Anything below that could be gained only by cutting services, affecting the quality of care.

Some of those services, according to Sister Irene and other authorities on the hospital front, literally can make the difference between life and death.

She talked about reasons hospital expenses — which directly affect the hospital bill given patients — cannot go down and will, in fact, keep going up.

Points she made include these:

—The high cost of paper. Providence Hospital, for one, has just been notified of a 20 percent price increase by its supplier of paper. That covers everything from the cost of forms to be filled out according to government regulation, toilet tissue, paper towels, paper plates and cups and the many other disposables used by hospitals — as an infection-control measure and for economy.

Hospitals use a lot of paper, according to Sister Irene.

—The hike in Social Security taxes and the minimum wage. As an employer, the hospitals must pay their share of the SS increases. And, by law, they must raise the minimum wage when the government says it must go up.

—The increases in the cost of oil, announced by OPEC, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. At its last meeting OPEC authorized a 14.5 percent increase, in stages. This affects the heating and electric bills in hospitals. But it pushes up the price of other items in the hospital budget. For example, many plastic things made of petroleum products will carry higher price tags. Hospitals use lots of plastic supplies.

One, plastic bedpans are used as a convenience to patients. They aren't as cold as the old stainless steel ones.

—The increasing numbers of older persons coming to hospitals. They require more services and have more ailments. More utilization means more expenses.

—Hospitals are big users of almost everything. As a result, they are affected by every union contract that is signed. The contracts call for wage hikes and the cost of the products or services from the members of that union go up. Hospitals can't wiggle out.

—Food prices. Hospitals can't bring down the price of hamburger or beans to fit a budget — no more than a family can.

—Malpractice insurance rate increases. Providence this year must pay a 25 percent premium increase.

Sister Irene talked like a lot of hospital officials when asked what would happen if Congress passed Califano's "lid" on hospital expenses.

If hospitals are required by law to hold expenses to a certain level, "we will have to fire all but essential persons." Social service workers, for one example. The total quality of care and services will go down.

What about unnecessary surgery, blamed by some healthcare critics for ballooning hospital costs? Hysterectomies are high on the critics' list. Some 770,000 of the operations in which the uterus is removed were performed in America last year.

The threat of a suit in the current malpractice climate probably has something to do with a number of hysterectomies, according to Sister Kraus, who sketched a scene often cited.

The scene: a patient develops cancer of the uterus two years after her doctor refused to perform a hysterectomy on demand.

The patient's reasons: If the doctor had taken out my uterus when I asked, I wouldn't have this cancer today. The patient sues the doctor for malpractice.

If she could have her way, what changes would Sister Irene make in the hospital industry? Or like to see come about by the year 2,000 — provided hospitals remain on the scene as voluntary entities?

She would like to see more "vertical patients."

Vertical patients? Yes. Vertical as opposed to horizontal. The "vertical patients" wouldn't spend overnight horizontal in a hospital bed. When able, they would return home at night.

How many patients could follow the "vertical patient" route while being treated or tested in a hospital?

Sister Irene estimated 30 to 40 percent of the admissions at Providence Hospital probably could fit into a "vertical patient" system, if it ever came about.

One innovation already exists on many a hospital scene. That is, according to the AHA official, "package deals" that give a patient a choice on total hospital expenses connected with specific services.

For maternity at Providence, there are package deals for one, two or three day stays for a flat rate.

"The ones using it," Sister Irene said, "are those with poor insurance coverage."

Some of these pay the bill out of their own pockets.

It is not extremely rare for a package deal patient to elect the one-day maternity package.

This supports the view of hospital economists who say if patients paid part of the bill out of their own funds — say the first two or three days — people wouldn't be talking their doctors into putting them in hospitals so much and they wouldn't stay so long and the nation's healthcare bill wouldn't be so big.

Not paying insulates patients from the dollar cost of the hospital services. These patients know they have Social Security benefits or another third party payer such as Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Once in the hospital they want all that's coming to them in the way of services performed.

This situation, as much as surgery on demand, is blamed by critics for puffing up the nation's healthcare bill — an estimated $173 billion last year, $60 billion of it for hospitals.

A closer look at the length of stay, as Sister Irene sees it, is facing many hospitals. Some stays can be shortened. Twenty-to-25 years ago, a maternity patient was in for 10 days. Now, for example, less than a week is the rule.

There is another reason for hospitals to be looking at and working on length of stay:

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is showing increasing concern about the length of time Medicare patients stay in short-term general hospitals for bed care.

HEW has good reason. It is paying the hospital bills for most persons 65 and over. That population goes to the hospital twice as often as the under-65.

The Medicare recipients also stay one-and-a-half times as long.

Jaycees seek nominations for 1979 Award

The Newton Jaycees are accepting nominations for their 1979 Distinguished Service Award recipient.

Eligible candidates for the award are men and women between the ages of 18 and 35 who have contributed time and effort to community betterment outside their normal occupations. Past winners of the award include Joseph DeNucci, Dick Reynolds, Lois Pines, Paul Guzzi, Franklin Flaschner, and Carleton Merrill, and Robert Alkon.

The Newton Jaycees Distinguished Service Award Committee, headed by Theodore Gross, hopes to receive numerous nominations from the Newton community.

Nomination papers may be obtained by writing to Newton Jaycees, P.O. Box 202, West Newton, Ma. 02165 or by calling Theodore Gross (244-2899) or Bonnie Feldman (332-8862).

IRS tax films available on how to file

"Doing Your Own Tax Return," a 27 1/2-minute film which leads taxpayers line-by-line through the 1978 Form 1040A Federal income tax return, is available for loan free from the Internal Revenue Service.

The 16mm, color film explains each section of the tax form in the order in which it is completed. Filing status, exemptions, and tax benefits such as the Earned Income Credit, are discussed.

Other films available from IRS include "The American Way of Taxing," on the U.S. tax systems and services offered to taxpayers, and "Hey, We're in Business," which covers the tax rights and responsibilities of small business persons, in both English and Spanish versions. Both may be borrowed free of charge.

Groups that would like to book any of these IRS films should write to Edward V. Callanan, Public Affairs Officer, JFK Post Office Box 9112, Boston, MA, 02203, or call him at (617) 223-6020 ext. 23.

Marriott's Fairfield Inn will reopen Saturday

The completely renovated and refurbished Fairfield Inn Restaurant in the Newton Marriott Hotel will officially reopen Saturday, Jan. 27, Colin G. Nadeau, general manager, has announced.

Redone in a "Mediterranean motif," the restaurant will feature a large crepe wheel and a variety of crepe specialties in addition to its regular offerings.

The Fairfield Inn will offer a new menu for luncheon and dinner featuring a wide selection of crepe entrees including such favorites as Crepes St. Jacques, Crepes Rataouille and Crepes Stroganoff. In addition, the restaurant will offer new dessert crepes such as fudge mocha crepe, Black Forest crepe and even a crepe sundae!

Another feature of the dinner menu will be the popular mix & match combination, which includes a full-course meal except dessert for $6.50. Guests select any two of the following entrees: barbecue ribs, schrod, Crepe St. Jacques, sirloin strip steak, barbecue chicken and steak Teriyaki.

Traditional entrees include roast beef, london broil, sirloin steak, liver and bacon. A variety of salads, french fried potatoes and fried onion rings are also included in the new menu as well as a number of sandwich selections.

The new design concept will be highlighted by Mexican-Spanish provincial touches such as a wrought iron gate at the entrance, white stucco walls, double high back chairs, oak tables, earth tone beams suspended from the ceilings, and decorative, opaque glass dividers, extended brick pier and wrought iron dividers. The crepe machine will have eight pans and a three-foot radius. Located in a special section near the entrance to the Fairfield Inn, it will have decorative ceramic tile on the top and base of the machine. Crepe delicacies will be highlighted at both luncheon and dinner.

Near the crepe machine will be a new provincial-style bar with orange, brown and gold bar stools, an unusual wine rack display with suspended stemware racks, and a mirror wall.

Sgt. Robert Whelan

Police Sgt. Robert Whelan, 53, a 26-year veteran of the Newton Police Department collapsed and died at his home in West Newton Friday (Jan. 19).

Sgt. Whelan is the seventh member of the Newton Police Department to die in the past eight months.

Sgt. Whelan entered police service in 1953 as a patrolman and was later assigned to the Detective Bureau. He was appointed a sergeant in January 1975. After a period as a patrol supervisor, he returned to the Detective Bureau as a detective sergeant.

Sgt. Whelan was from a community service oriented family. His father was a Newton police officer and his brother, Thomas, served as a Newton and a Metropolitan Police officer.

The sergeant was a native of Newton and attended local schools. After graduation, he entered the U.S. Navy.

As a police officer he attended Narcotics School, conducted by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics; the Massachusetts Police School on Narcotics, the State Police Comprehensive Criminal Investigation Program, the State Police School of Photography, the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council seminar on search warrants and CPR as a basic life support rescuer. Sgt. Whelan was five time a president of the Newton Police Memorial Association and served as chairman of the Annual Ball, and the annual Police Memorial Breakfast.

He was a member and past director of the Newton branch of the Massachusetts Police Association, a member of American Legion Post 440, Sons of Italy Umberto Primo Lodge No. 1069 and the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Watertown.

Police Chief William Quinn described the officer as "not only a fine police officer, but also a gentleman and a good friend."

Sgt. Whelan is survived by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Whelan; his mother, Mrs. Jenny Whelan; a son, Robert, of Newton; a daughter, Jane, of Long Beach, Calif.; a stepson, Michael Walsh of Waltham; four brothers, James, Joseph, and Michael of Newton and Richard of Windsor, N.H.; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Kapsch of Varina, Iowa; Mrs. Frances Mahoney of Long Island, N.Y.; Mrs. Carol Hadro of Auburn-dale.

A funeral mass was celebrated Monday (Jan. 22) in Our Lady's Church. Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

ADAP moves to new location

ADAP, (American Discount Auto Parts) has recently moved their corporate headquarters to the Avon Industrial Park in Avon, Massachusetts. The new 80,000 square foot building will be ADAP's corporate headquarters and central warehouse for the New England Area.

In 3 years, this rapidly expanding automotive super-market chain has outgrown 4 corporate offices and just recently opened their 9th store in New England. The newest store is located in Woburn, Massachusetts, off Route 128, in the Olympia Industrial Park, with 9,000 square feet of both Foreign and American parts.

ADAP plans to open 3 new locations in the New England Area in the upcoming months.

DRIVE-IN CUSTOMER PARKING

We're famous for auto painting. That's because we shine at collision work, too.

Small dents and scrapes are duck soup, but the tough stuff is just as easy at MAACO. If you've had a major collision, just bring your car here. We'll contact your insurance agency or broker, make sure an adjuster sees your car, and do a top-quality repair job fast. And our expert painting starts at just $79.95.

PTA Council reviews program for gifted students

The Newton PTA Council will review the School Department's approach to gifted children at its meeting Thursday, Feb. 1, at 8 p.m. at the Bigelow Junior High School library.

David Ackerman, administrative assistant in the Division of Program, is coordinating a system-wide effort to improve what is being done for gifted students.

He will discuss what the current curriculum includes, what is being planned, and will answer questions about the program.

Coffee will be served at 7:45 p.m.

CETA plans to contact graduates for evaluation

How successful are the CETA training programs? Do graduates from these programs obtain and keep permanent unsubsidized employment?

To obtain hard factual data on these questions, Newton Area Comprehensive Training Act (CETA) and four other subgrantees of the Balance of State Prime Sponsor are monitoring the current status of recent clients who have completed their CETA participation. The Balance of State includes all cities and towns in the Commonwealth with the exception of Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Brockton, Cambridge, Fall River, Lowell, and New Bedford. Each of these cities is also a Prime Sponsor and will be conducting similar follow-up evaluations.

The studies are under the direction of the Research and Development Unit of the Department of Manpower Affairs.

Bentley College has been awarded a $17,966 contract to collect and analyze this information for Newton Area CETA. In addition a follow-up evaluation coordinator has joined the Newton CETA staff. The state office will finance the total Bentley contract and one-half of Coordinator Joseph Flynn's salary for the one-year project.

Flynn will be responsible for supplying Bentley with the names of CETA training participants who recently finished their CETA training, as well as the participants' previous work history and the type of training received.

Student interns at Bentley, under the direction of Patricia Pannell, a full-time instructor of Manpower Economics and Industrial and Labor Relations at Bentley College, will contact these participants first by letter and then by telephone to solicit information on their present work status and how it relates to the training received at Newton Area CETA.

Information on all trainees who terminated between May to October 1978 will be sent to the interns, who will update the former trainees' files. The information will then be key punched and fed into Bentley's DES system 1060 computer and processed using the Statistical Package for the Social Science.

This information will include the characteristics and types of training that were the major determinants of the clients employment situation once they left the CETA program. A complete set of the data cards as well as the computer printouts will be delivered to the Research and Program Development Unit of the Department of Manpower Development.

Regular reports will also be received by the Newton office on a monthly and quarterly basis during the study, and a final report will be submitted by Dec. 5.

31 students play with area youth orchestra

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra, Walter Eisenberg, music director, has announced plans for two concerts this winter in the Greater Boston area. Thirty-one Newton residents are members.

On Sunday, Feb. 4, the Senior and Repertory Orchestras will perform at Cary Hall, Lexington, at 3 p.m. The concert, sponsored by the GBSO Parents Committee for the benefit of the orchestras, will include works by Delius, Weber, Liszt, and Tchaikovsky. Admission is $3.50 adults, $2 students and senior citizens.

GBSO's Gala Twenty-first Anniversary Concert will be given at Jordan Hall in Boston on Sunday, March 18, at 7:30 p.m. Maestro Eisenberg will conduct the program, which will feature a performance of Stravinsky's Firebird Suite. Tickets will be $5 adults, $3 students and senior citizens.

GBSO, one of this country's premier youth orchestras, has won international acclaim for its concert tours to Great Britain, Switzerland, Israel, and Columbia, South America. Music Director Walter Eisenberg and Assistant Conductor Paul Roby rehearse the orchestras weekly at Boston University in preparation for the 10 concerts given each year. This season concerts will be given throughout Eastern Massachusetts, with assistance from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Concert details and ticket information are available at 353-3348. Newton students in the orchestras are:

Simone Feinhandler, Charles Wilcox, Mary Barker, Eric Belsley, Karen Belsley, Ann Doherty, Eric Hints, and Rebecca Katsenes.

Also, Alison May, Rebecca Miller, Marjorie May, Katherine Mullen, Mary Mullen, Elisabeth Ochs, Patrick Powdermaker, Margaret Prager, Betsy Rodman, Richard Romanow, David Rosenberg, and Jenny Shader.

Also, Elsa Stanger, Cecelia Tsai, Kenwood Tsai, Susan Wessel, Marcy Wiershien, Bela Wurtzler, Amy Alexrod, Sarah Prager, Bumby Schnitzler, Mary Shea, and Louise Zeitlin.

Sculptural and functional porcelain by Barbara Zolli will be displayed during February at Limited Editions, 1176 Walnut St., Newton Highlands. Her work was recently exhibited at the Newton Main Library. A reception for the artist will be held Friday, Feb. 2, from 8 to 10 p.m.

Boston Ballet holds annual choreographers competition

The works of seven male choreographers will be judged by a panel of three women when the Boston Ballet opens its annual Choreographers' Showcase on Jan. 27. This year, for the first time, the Showcase is an international competition and the winner will take home a $500 cash prize as well as the Boston Ballet Award, a specially commissioned sculpture created by Massachusetts artist Russell Jacques.

The Showcase will be held at John Hancock Hall Jan. 27, 28 and 31 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 1-4 at 8 p.m. Matinees are scheduled for Jan. 28 and Feb. 3-4 at 2:30 p.m. Tickets range between $4-$10. For more information call 542-3945.

Judging the competition will be critic and lecturer P.W. Manchester; Kirsten Ralov, associate director of the Royal Danish Ballet; and choreographer Anna Sokolow.

Critic Walter Terry will present the Boston Ballet Award at a by-invitation-only awards banquet following the opening night performance.

Contestants include, Gary Davis, of the Fusion Dance Company; Edward Henkel, of New York; Constantin Patasas, of the National Ballet of Canada; Tom Pazik, of the Atlanta Ballet; Stuart Sebastian, of New York; Bruce Wells, of the Connecticut

Ballet; and John M. Wilson, of the University of Arizona.

BSO lecture, symphony with Arts in Parks

Arts in the Parks and the All Newton Music School, have joined in offering two special Friday afternoon programs at the Boston Symphony.

The program on Feb. 9, will begin at the All Newton Music School on Chestnut Street, West Newton, at 11:30 a.m., with a lecture on "Mahler's Tenth Symphony" by Boston Symphony Music commentator, Michael Steinberg. This will be followed by a light lunch at the All Newton Music School.

A bus will be available to subscribers, free of charge, for a round trip to Symphony Hall in Boston, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform Mahler's Tenth Symphony under the direction of Nikolaus Wyss.

A second program has been scheduled for April, and other Arts in Parks activities get a copy of the Spring Brochure from the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale, Mass., 02166.
